This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

HISTORICAL STATEMENT

The Johns Hopkins University was founded by a merchant of Baltimore, Johns Hopkins, who bequeathed the greater part of his estate for the establishment of a university and a hospital. The University was incorporated August 24, 1867, the certificate of incorporation reading as follows:

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

Know all men by these presents, that we, Thomas M. Smith, William Hopkins, Lewis N. Hopkins, John W. Garrett, Alan P. Smith, John Fonerden, George W. Dobbin, George M. Gill, Andrew Sterett Ridgely, Thomas Donaldson, James A. L. McClure and Charles J. M. Gwinn, being citizens of the United States of America, and of the State of Maryland, and being desirous to form a corporation for the purpose of organizing a "University" for the promotion of education in the State of Maryland, do hereby declare and certify that we do, by this instrument of writing, and by virtue of and under the provisions of an Act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at the January session thereof in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, and being the Act of eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, chapter three hundred and seventy-nine, form a corporation, under the name of "The Johns Hopkins University," for the promotion of education in the State of Maryland, which shall be governed and controlled by twelve Trustees, who shall manage the concerns thereof, and which said twelve Trustees shall be Francis T. King, Lewis N. Hopkins, Thomas M. Smith, William Hopkins, John Fonerden*, John W. Garrett, Francis White, Charles J. M. Gwinn,

*On the death of John Fonerden, James Carey Thomas was elected to fill the vacancy.

Galloway Cheston, George W. Dobbin, Reverdy Johnson, junior, and George William Brown, and which said University shall be located in Baltimore County, in the State of Maryland.

Witness our hands and seals, set hereto on this twenty-fourth day of August in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

The following amendments to the charter have been enacted by the State Legislature.

I

AN ACT to grant certain additional powers to "The Johns Hopkins University," a corporation incorporated under the General Laws of Maryland.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That "The Johns Hopkins University," a corporation duly incorporated by certificate, recorded in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Baltimore County, shall have powers to establish branches of the said University in the City of Baltimore, to hold, or to purchase and hold, all property in said City, needed for the successful conducting of the branches of the said University in said City, and to keep and maintain a principal office in said City for the conduct of the business of the said University.

Section 2. And be it enacted, That the said "The Johns Hopkins University" shall have power to admit students of the said University, who shall merit the distinction, to the office and profession of Surgeon, or to the degree of Doctor of Medicine, or of Doctor of Laws, or of Bachelor or Master of Arts; to grant to students in such University such certificates of proficiency and attainments in any special study as the said University may see proper to confer; and to grant the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Medicine, and Master of Arts, or such other degrees as may be proper, to any person who may merit such distinction, whether such person be a student of such University or not.

Section 3. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved March 22, 1876.

II

AN ACT to authorize the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, a corporation incorporated under the General Laws of Maryland, to make and constitute the President for the time being of its University and each of his successors in said office, during their respective terms thereof, a member ex-officio of the Board of Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, in addition to the number of twelve Trustees of said University now authorized by law.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, a corporation duly incorporated by certificate under the General Laws of Maryland, be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to make and constitute the President for the time being of the Johns Hopkins University and each of his successors in said office, during their respective terms thereof, a member ex-officio of said Board of Trustees in addition to the number of twelve Trustees of said University now authorized by law.

Section 2. And be it enacted that this Act shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 4, 1892.

As stated in the foregoing certificate, the corporate name of the institution is "The Johns Hopkins University."

The Board of Trustees organized June 13, 1870, and held their first business meeting February 6, 1874. The founder had died December 24, 1873, in the seventy-ninth year of his age,—having been born May 19, 1795. The election of a President of the University took place December 30, 1784, the choice falling upon Daniel Coit Gilman, at that time President of the University of California. President Gilman was inaugurated February 22, 1876, and instruction began October 3, following. The Johns Hopkins Hospital was dedicated May 7, 1889, and this paved the way for the opening of the medical school of the University four years later (October 1, 1893).

President Gilman resigned his office February 22, 1901, after a service of twenty-five years, and he was succeeded by Ira Remsen, Professor of Chemistry in the University, whose election took place June 3, 1901. On the twenty-first and twenty-second of February, 1902, the University celebrated the completion of twenty-five years of work, and President Remsen was inaugurated.

The work of the University began in two houses at the corner of Howard and Little Ross Streets, in Hopkins Hall and a chemical laboratory on Little Ross Street,—the last two buildings having been erected by the Trustees. As the need arose, other buildings were constructed,—including a considerable addition to the chemical laboratory, a biological laboratory, a physical laboratory, a gymnasium, a home for the Young Men's Christian Association (the gift of Mr. Eugene Levering), and finally McCoy Hall, a large central building containing offices of administration, assembly room, the general library, and numerous smaller rooms for seminaries, department libraries, classes in languages, history, etc. The medical school is housed in several buildings in another section of the city, adjoining the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The Hospital forms a part of the medical school of the University, in accordance with the expressed wish of the founder. It occupies a commanding site facing North Broadway. The buildings include a central structure chiefly devoted to administration, two large private wards, a considerable number of separate buildings containing the public wards, a large dispensary building, a surgical building and amphitheatre, a pathological institute, and a nurses' home. The Harriet Lane Home for Invalid Children, the Phipps Psychiatric Clinic, and the Phipps Dispensary for the Treatment of Tuberculosis are important adjuncts to the Hospital and are situated within its grounds.

At the time of President Remsen's inauguration, it was announced that a suburban site had been given to the University by Messrs. William Wyman, William Keyser, Francis M. Jencks, Julian LeRoy White, and William H.

Buckler, of Baltimore, and Samuel Keyser, of New York. This site comprised originally one hundred and seventy-six acres of land within the city limits, about two miles directly north of the Washington Monument. Fifty-six acres have been deeded to the city for a public park. The hope was expressed by the donors that the sum of one million dollars would be contributed by the friends of the University within a certain time, to be added to the permanent endowment funds of the University. This hope was realized July 1, 1902. The development of the new site is in progress. A botanical laboratory and greenhouse have been erected, and a fine athletic field is now in use by the students. A general scheme of arrangement of the future buildings has been adopted by the trustees, as the result of a competition by selected architects, and the plans of several of the most important structures have been completed. The funds required for these buildings have not yet been supplied, and, until that need is met, a removal is not possible.

The original endowment of the University amounted to somewhat over $3,000,000. This has been supplemented by several gifts, including the Endowment Fund of 1902 ($1,000,000), the John W. McCoy Fund ($500,000), the Women's Medical School Fund ($100,000), the Mary Elizabeth Garrett Fund ($307,000), the Adoniram J. Robinson Fund ($42,000), the Herbert B. Adams Fund ($42,000), the Johnston Scholarship Fund ($90,000), the Donovan Fund ($100,000), and several others. The income-bearing funds have a "book value" of $4,580,000; the real estate and buildings, books, scientific apparatus, and general equipment are valued at $1,900,000. The assets of the University have thus a total value of about $6,500,000.

In June, 1909, the General Education Board offered to contribute to the University the sum of $250,000 towards the endowment, provided the institution secures, on or before December 31, 1910, a supplemental sum of $750,000, in cash or pledges. Under the terms of this offer one-half of the million dollars thus acquired may be used in the construction of buildings; the remainder is to be added to the permanent endowment. The Trustees, aided by the Alumni, are now engaged in efforts to obtain the needed subscriptions, and it is confidently expected that the conditions of the gift will be met by the date specified.

The Legislature of Maryland has recently made an appropriation of $25,000 a year for 1911 and 1912.

GOVERNMENT OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

TRUSTEES

The Trustees are the ultimate source of authority in all matters pertaining to the University. They act collectively, through the standing committees named on page 9, and through the President of the University.

PRESIDENT

Ira Remsen

The duties of this office were thus defined by the Trustees, September 14, 1876:

The President of the University is the authorized means of communication between the Board and the various officers of instruction and administration employed in the University; it shall be his duty to consult with the Professors in respect to the development of their various departments and the general interests of the University; to determine the appropriate duties of the Associates and Fellows; and to exercise such superintendence over the buildings, apparatus, books and other property as will insure their protection and appropriate use. In respect to these matters and all others which concern the welfare of the University, he shall consult frequently with the Executive Committee, and he shall attend the meetings of the Board of Trustees. Purchases, alterations, repairs, and other incidental expenses must not be ordered by any of the officers of the University without his previous assent, or the expressed authority of the Board.

By resolution of the Trustees, May 2, 1892, the President of the University was constituted a member ex officio of the Board, and also ex officio is a member of the Executive Committee.

ACADEMIC COUNCIL

Ira Remsen (Pres.)	E. H. Griffin (Sec'y.)	J. S. Ames
B. L. Gildersleeve	A. M. Elliott	Maurice Bloomfield
Paul Haupt	Henry Wood	J. W. Bright
W. H. Welch	W. B. Clark

By authority of the Trustees, the Academic Council (now consisting of the President and ten Professors) has met since the organization of the University to guide the various departments of study, to select the Fellows, and to act upon such other matters as may be brought before them.

BOARD OF UNIVERSITY STUDIES

Ira Remsen (Pres.)	R. W. Wood	Christopher Johnston

DEGREES CONFERRED

It is proposed to print hereafter, at stated intervals of two or three years, the lists of those who have held the Johnston Scholarships and the Fellowships and of those who have received Degrees; accordingly, these lists are omitted this year from the annual Register, which, however, includes the names of those upon whom degrees were conferred during the year 1908-09, as below. In order to make the record complete, the cooperation of the Alumni is requested. Such information as to titles, degrees, positions, etc., as will supplement and perfect the statements hitherto published, will be gladly received.

DEGREES, 1909

When the institution is not named, this university or the Johns Hopkins Hospital is to be understood. (F) indicates that the person has held a fellowship here. *—Died.

LIBRARIES

1. THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY numbers 147,412 bound volumes, selected with special reference to the instruction here given. It is arranged in several collections, of which these are the chief:

General Reference,
Historical,
Economics,
Political Science,
Mathematical and Physical, Chemical, Biological,
Geological, Classical,
Semitic,
Sanskrit,
Modern Languages,
McCoy Art Library,
Medicine,
Physiology and Anatomy,
Philosophy, Psychology, and Education

The reference library and reading room is open daily from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.; the other rooms in accordance with special regulations.

The library receives the publications of the leading scientific societies of the world and the chief literary and scientific periodicals. The whole number of serials received exceeds fifteen hundred. The list is supplemented by those of the Peabody Institute and other institutions, so that the whole number of journals accessible (exclusive of ephemeral publications) exceeds two thousand. Important books are received by the library as soon as published, by purchase or by the courtesy of dealers.

2. THE PEABODY LIBRARY is a choice collection of books purchased since 1861. It is particularly full in academic transactions, long historical series, and costly illustrated books. It numbers 170,000 volumes, well bound, catalogued, and arranged. It is open daily, without charge, from 9 a. m. to 10.30 p. m.

3. THE ENOCH PRATT FREE LIBRARY numbers 267,845 volumes and is open daily, without charge.

4. THE MARYLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY contains 43,361 volumes of historical works and is open daily.

5. Other libraries of Baltimore are the New Mercantile Library (81,000 volumes), the Bar Library (30,000 volumes), the Medical and Chirurgical Library (21,000 volumes), the Maryland Diocesan Library (30,000 volumes).

6. Washington is so near that its museums and libraries may be easily visited. Among the chief institutions of interest to students are these:

The Library of Congress.
The Smithsonian Institution and National Museum,
The Army Medical and Surgical Museum and Library,
The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey,
The U. S. Geological Survey,
The U. S. Naval Observatory,
The Libraries of the Departments and Bureaus,
The Corcoran Art Gallery.

DISSERTATIONS FOR THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY.

REGULATIONS OF THE TREASURER'S OFFICE

I. The Treasurer's Office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

II. All bills should be presented at that place, endorsed as correct by the person under whose authority the expense has been incurred.

III. No member of the academic staff is allowed to incur a bill in the name of the university, unless authority is given for the same by the Trustees, in advance, either as an item in the annual budget, or as a special appropriation. Blank forms of application are provided for special requisitions.

IV. Orders for books and apparatus to be imported from Europe will not be considered authorized, unless countersigned by the President or the Treasurer of the University.

All goods must be consigned to and addressed "The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md." Goods for other parties (societies or individuals) must not be included in the university cases. Invoices, sworn to before the U. S. Consul, must be sent by mail. and a duplicate invoice by the following mail, both addressed to The Johns Hopkins University.

Unless otherwise ordered, goods from Europe should be sent as follows:

From Germany by the North German Lloyd steamers sailing for Baltimore from Bremen; from England by steamship lines from Liverpool to Baltimore; from France and Italy, via Havre and Liverpool.

Printed copies of instructions to shippers, which can be obtained at the Treasurer's Office, should in all cases be enclosed with the orders.

V. The Treasurer's Office will make purchases, at wholesale rates, of supplies which are required for the current needs of the university.

VI. Such pass books as are authorized by the Treasurer should be presented for balance and settlement every month.

VII. The wages of all persons employed by the university will be paid at the Treasurer's Office.

VIII. When C. O. D. packages are expected, previous arrangements should be made for their reception.

IX. Outlays made for individuals (express parcels, postage, telegraph messages, etc.) should be settled at once.

X. An annual allowance is made by the Trustees, in the budget, for such expenses as they approve, and in deciding on the items they are governed by a consideration of the general interests of the university, as well as by the needs of special branches of instruction. Balances to the debit or credit of any account are carried forward to the new account at the opening of each financial year (September 1). A statement of the amount of the balance and of any additional appropriation will be communicated to the parties severally interested, if requested, after the Trustees' meeting in October.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

1. The Scientific Association, meeting monthly, under the presidency of Professor H. C. Jones.

2. The Philological Association, meeting monthly, under the presidency of Professor Gildersleeve.

3. The Historical and Political Science Association, meeting fortnightly.

4. Naturalists' Field Club, which makes weekly excursions during the spring and autumn and holds monthly meetings for the presentation and discussion of papers.

There are also companies which meet weekly in the laboratories for the reading of the scientific journals, and seminaries in several departments of study.

STATEMENTS IN RESPECT TO THE COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The Johns Hopkins University has had in view, from the beginning, two main objects,—the advancement of learning through investigations conducted by its teachers and its properly qualified students, and the communication of learning through carefully planned courses of instruction. The facilities which it provides and its methods of administration are intended both for the encouragement of research, in the case of those competent to undertake it, and for the discipline and guidance of those whose chief concern is the acquisition of knowledge.

The work of the University is carried forward—

I. Under the Faculty of Philosophy.

II. Under the Faculty of Medicine.

The students enrolled under the Faculty of Philosophy are:

(1) Those who have obtained a baccalaureate degree from a college of good standing, and desire to follow advanced courses in scientific, literary, or historical subjects; and also persons who wish to take advantage of the opportunities for individual investigations here afforded. Women are admitted, with the consent of the professors under whom they wish to work, on the same terms as men.

(2) Undergraduate students, who are, in most cases, looking forward to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, but some of whom are engaged in special studies without reference to graduation.

The requirements for admission to the undergraduate courses, the arrangement of these courses in the several "Groups," etc., are stated on pages 172-194. More detailed information is given in "The Collegiate Instruction of the Johns Hopkins University," which may be obtained on application, personally or by letter, to the Registrar of the University.

The students enrolled under the Faculty of Medicine are:

(1) Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine. These must be college graduates, or must give evidence by examination that they possess the attainments indicated by a baccalaureate degree in arts or sciences. Women are admitted on the same terms as men.

(2) Doctors of Medicine desiring to pursue certain special courses, which are annually announced.

The terms of admission to the medical department and the general plan of instruction are briefly stated on pages 196-200. Detailed information is given in the "Catalogue and Announcement," which will be sent upon application to the Registrar of the department.

I. FACULTY OF PHILOSOPHY

Advanced students are received whether they are candidates for a degree or not, and they are permitted to attend such lectures and exercises as they may select. On entering the university they are expected to present their diplomas and certificates from the institutions with which they have been connected, and also letters of introduction. They are not examined by the university for admission, but each instructor satisfies himself of the attainments of those who wish to follow his guidance, before admitting them to his classes.

The professors are ready to give personal counsel to those who seek it; books and instruments adapted to investigation and advanced work have been liberally provided; seminaries limited to a few advanced students have been organized in various subjects; societies devoted to philology, to mathematical, physical, and natural science, and to history and political science, afford opportunities for the presentation of memoirs and original communications, and there are also conferences for the reading and discussion of philological, philosophical, biological, physical, geological, and chemical papers; during the year courses of lectures are given by resident and non-resident professors on topics to which they have given special attention; the libraries of the Peabody Institute and Maryland Historical Society, founded for the benefit of scholars, are easily accessible; the issuing, under the auspices of the Trustees, of publications devoted to mathematics, chemistry, philology, biology, the modern languages, and history, brings the university into advantageous connection with other foundations; and the university reading room, which is constantly open, is liberally supplied with new and standard books and with the literary and scientific journals of this and other lands.

Instruction is carried on in the different departments by methods which vary with the nature of the subject and the character and proficiency of the scholars; but in all alike the end is the same,—that, while the students are becoming familiar with the work prosecuted and the results attained elsewhere, and are adding to their general intellectual culture, they may be encouraged to become independent and original investigators in their chosen fields of labor. Within reasonable limits the university will provide such books, apparatus, and material as may be requisite for this purpose.

The principal subjects in which advanced instruction is now provided are these:

Mathematics.
Physics and Astronomy.
Chemistry.
Geology and Mineralogy.
Zoology.
Botany.
Physiology.
Pathology.
Greek.
Latin.
Classical Archæology and Art.
Sanskrit and Comparative Philology.
Semitic Languages.
Anglo-Saxon and English.
Romance Languages.
German.
Germanic Philology.
History.
Political Economy.
Political Science.
Philosophy, Psychology, and Education.

MATHEMATICS

The advanced courses are so arranged that a qualified student gets in three years the more important points of view of the whole subject. The courses are elastic in character, subjects being introduced as they are needed. In general, the plan pursued is to foster independent inquiry on the part of the student. Once embarked on investigation, he uses all the apparatus of lectures and library with intelligent purpose. The seminary, which meets weekly, is primarily intended for the presentation of the results of the student's own thinking. Literature either intrinsically important or opportune is presented and discussed in the reading class, which also meets weekly.

ADVANCED COURSES

1. Mathematical Seminary.
   One hour weekly. Professor MORLEY.
2. Reading Class.
   One hour weekly. Professor MORLEY.
3. Higher Geometry.
   Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor MORLEY.

This is a general course in Geometry, covering in three years such matters as Projective Geometry, the Invariants of algebraic forms, Line Geometry, Conformal Geometry, Geometry on an algebraic curve or surface.

4. Theory of Functions.
   Three hours weekly, second half-year. Professor MORLEY.

Algebraic Functions and their integrals; Elliptic, elliptic modular, and general automorphic functions; Theory of the potential.

5*. Dynamics.
   Two hours weekly, first half-year (every other year). Professor MORLEY.

Special stress is laid on Rigid Dynamics.

*Course thus marked will not be given in 1910-11.

6*. Vector Analysis.

Two hours weekly, first half-year (every other year). Professor MORLEY.

7. Elementary Theory of Functions.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.

An introduction to the theories of functions of a real and a complex variable.

8. Differential Equations.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.

Including, in three years, Ordinary Differential Equations, their integral curves and singular points; Partial Differential Equations; Lie's theory.

9*. Differential Geometry.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.

Including a study of Curves in space; Surfaces and lines upon them; Spherical representation; Applicability of surfaces.

10. Calculus of Variations.

Two hours weekly, one half-year. Dr. COHEN.

11*. Theory of Numbers.

Two hours weekly, one half-year. Dr. COHEN.

12. Theory of Groups.

Two hours weekly. Associate Professor COBLE.

Including Theory of Equations, Finite Geometries, Theory of algebraic forms.

13*. Theory of Correspondence.

Two hours weekly. Associate Professor COBLE.

Including such matters as Cremona Transformations, general birational transformations.

14. Theory of Probability.

Two hours weekly, one half-year. Associate Professor COBLE.

Including the applications to statistics and the Theory of Errors.

*Course thus marked will not be given in 1910-11.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Solid Geometry; Algebra (special topics).

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor HULBURT and Associate Professor COBLE.

Plane Analytic Geometry.

Three hours weekly, second half-year Professor HULBURT and Associate Professor COBLE.

Conference.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

2. Differential and Integral Calculus.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor HULBURT.

Conference.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

3. Differential and Integral Calculus (special topics); Determinants; Solid Analytic Geometry; Projective Geometry.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor HULBURT.

Conference.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

4. Differential Equations.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Dr. COHEN.

Vector Analysis.

Three hours weekly. second half-year. Dr. COHEN.

Conference.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

In connection with the three hours' class-room instruction, the instructor in each course meets his students weekly in a two-hour session, for the purpose of supplementary explanation and application of the principles taught in the class-room. This is the part of each course designated as "Conference." It is not intended thus to increase the amount of work required of the student, but rather to aid him in the understanding and preparation of the work of the class.

Physics and Astronomy

The Physical Laboratory offers facilities in the form of apparatus, libraries, and machine shops to students who wish to pursue experimental investigations in any field of Physics. If the results of these are to be offered as a dissertation for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, the work must be done under the general direction of the Director of the Laboratory, or of one of the other professors. For students carrying on experimental researches the laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m.

Regular courses of instruction in both Physics and Astronomy are given in the form of lectures and laboratory exercises. They may be classified as Advanced and Elementary. The former are designed primarily for graduate students; the latter, for undergraduates.

ADVANCED COURSES

Seminary and Journal Meetings

All advanced students meet with the instructors twice each week,—once in the Physical Seminary, and once for the discussion of the current Physical Journals.

During the year 1910-11 the questions to be considered in the Seminary will refer to the history of the development of Theoretical Mechanics.

Lectures

1. General Physics. Professor Ames.
Four hours weekly, through the year.

This is a course of lectures in Mathematical Physics continuing for three years and including the subjects of Theoretical Mechanics, Elasticity, Hydrodynamics, Sound, Thermodynamics, Heat Conduction, Electricity and Magnetism, and Light. During the year 1910-11 the lectures will be on Mechanics, Electricity, and Hydrodynamics.

2. Selected Problems in Advanced Physical Optics. Professor WOOD.
Three hours weekly, through the year. [Omitted in 1910-11.]

3. Applied Electricity. Associate Professor WHITEHEAD.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

4. Applied Electricity (Advanced Course). Associate Professor WHITEHEAD.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

5. Celestial Mechanics. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

6*. General Astronomy. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.
Three hours weekly, through the year. (See 6 below).

7. Advanced Physical Optics. Dr. A. H. PFUND.
Three hours weekly, through the year.

8. Conduction of Electricity in Gases. Dr. W. W. STRONG.
One hour weekly, through the year.

Laboratory Courses

1. Special Exercises in Physics in preparation for independent research, under the direction of Professors AMES, BLISS, and WHITEHEAD, and Dr. PFUND.

2. Applied Electricity. Associate Professor WHITEHEAD.

3. Use of Astronomical and Astrophysical Instruments. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.

For students following these courses the laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; the observatory is open every favorable night.

*This course may be chosen as an elective by undergraduates.

Elementary Courses

1. Elements of Physics.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor Ames.

This course of lectures is based upon Ames's "Text-book of General Physics," and is intended to include the field of Physics in an elementary manner. It presupposes a knowledge of the elements of plane trigonometry. Course 4 of laboratory work (see below) is arranged to accompany these lectures.

2 and 3. The four following series of lectures are given each year and are combined, together with the corresponding laboratory work (see Physics 5 below), into two courses known as Physics 2 and Physics 3. The mode of combination varies from year to year according to the needs of the students applying.

(a) Elementary Theoretical Mechanics.

Three hours weekly, twelve to fifteen weeks. Professor Bliss.

This course is designed to serve as an introduction to Mathematical Physics, and students following it must have a knowledge of the elements of the Calculus.

(b) Elementary Electricity and Magnetism.

Three hours weekly, fifteen to twenty weeks. Professor Bliss.

This is an introducction to the mathematical theory of the electrostatic and magnetic fields and electric currents. Course "a" or an equivalent preparation is assumed.

(c) Elementary Thermodynamics.

Three hours weekly, twelve to fifteen weeks. Professor Bliss.

The object of this course is to familiarize the student with the fundamental ideas of Thermodynamics, such as Temperature, Entropy, and Reversibility. By way of illustration applications are made to very elementary problems in heat engines, solutions, and electrochemistry, so far as time will permit. Course "a" or an equivalent preparation is assumed.

(d) Physical Optics.

Three hours weekly, fifteen weeks. Dr. Pfund.

This course is a moderately advanced treatment of the subject of optics, special emphasis being laid on interference, diffraction, polarization, and their applications to modern instruments of high efficiency.

4. Laboratory Work for Beginners.

Two afternoons weekly, through the year. Professor Bliss and assistants.

In this elementary work the students are taught methods of exact observation and measurement, and, so far as possible, they study the fundamental phenomena of Physics in a quantitative manner. The exercises given in Ames and Bliss's "Manual of Experiments in Physics" serve as a basis for this work.

5. Laboratory Work, in connection with Physics 2 and 3.

To complete each of these courses the student is required to pursue two of the four following groups, making together two afternoons a week for the year.

(a) Mechanics.

Two afternoons weekly, twelve weeks. Professor BLISS.

In this course the students are taught methods of exact measurement in time, length, and mass, and methods for the determination of the various mechanical and elastic constants.

(b) Electricity and Magnetism.

Two afternoons weekly, twenty weeks. Professor BLISS.

Special attention is given to instruction in modern methods of measurement of various electrical quantities and in the use of improved apparatus. Those qualified and desiring such instruction may substitute work with dynamos, motors, and transformers for part of the course.

(c) Heat.

Two afternoons weekly. one half-year. Professor BLISS.

This includes methods of measuring temperature, including the use of thermocouples, resistance thermometers and pyrometers, together with other exercises illustrating lecture course "c" above.

(d) Optics.

Two afternoons weekly, one half-year. Dr. PFUND.

The students are given a thorough working knowledge of experiments dealing with fundamental principles, as well as of experiments involving the use of modern types of optical instruments, such as the plane and concave grating, Michelson and Fabry and Perot Interferometers, Polarimeters, etc.

6. General Astronomy.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. ANDERSON.

The theory of astronomical instruments and observations will be outlined (based on Young's "General Astronomy"), a general treatment of spherical astronomy and the elements of celestial mechanics will be given, together with as much physical astronomy as time will permit. The students will spend one evening per week throughout the year in the observatory, where instruction in the actual use of instruments will be given.

CHEMISTRY

The Chemical Laboratory is equipped with apparatus for nearly all kinds of scientific chemical investigations, and it is the policy of the department to provide every needed facility for promising investigations of a special or unusual character.

The laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m.

ADVANCED COURSES

I. Journal Meetings

These meetings are held at 9 a. m. on Mondays, throughout the year, and are under the direction of Professor REMSEN. Toward the end of the year, those who have been engaged in research give an account of the progress of their investigations.

II. Lectures

(a) ORGANIC CHEMISTRY

The lectures in Organic Chemistry are given by Professor REMSEN, except those upon certain chapters of the subject, which are given by Associate Professor ACREE. The course consists of two lectures weekly and extends over two years.

(b) INORGANIC CHEMISTRY

The course on this subject is given by Professor MORSE. It consists of two lectures weekly and extends over three years.

(c) PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY

Three lectures weekly are given throughout the year by Professor JONES.

(d) SPECIAL TOPICS IN CHEMISTRY

Short courses of lectures upon special topics are given each year by Professor JONES and Associate Professor ACREE.

III. Laboratory Courses

(a) QUALITATIVE ANALYSIS

This course is under the direction of Professor RENOUF, and is designed to meet the needs of those graduate students whose knowledge of the subject is defective.

(b) QUANTITATIVE CHEMISTRY

This work is under the direction of Professor MORSE.

(c) PHYSICAL-CHEMICAL METHODS

The routine work in this branch usually occupies from four to six weeks and is under the direction of Professor JONES.

(d) ORGANIC PREPARATIONS

This work is done under the direction of Associate Professor ACREE. The required work occupies from eight to twelve weeks.

The student who is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, must give evidence that he has a satisfactory knowledge of elementary chemistry and is familiar with laboratory methods, before he is permitted to undertake the advanced courses. These consist of lectures, and laboratory exercises in (b) quantitative chemistry, (c) physical-chemical methods, and (d) organic preparations. The order in which these are taken is not fixed, but is arranged with reference to the convenience of the student.

Having completed the routine work of the laboratory, the student is assigned by the director of the laboratory to one of the staff who proposes to him a subject for investigation, which may be made the basis of the Doctor's dissertation,* and who thenceforth directs his work in the laboratory. It sometimes happens that the student has sound reasons for preferring some particular line of research, and this course is allowed if the circumstances permit.

For those who do not look forward to the degree, the rules are less rigid. Any person admitted to the University as a special student is permitted to take any of the laboratory or lecture courses for which he is qualified by previous training. The department also provides laboratory facilities for experienced chemists who wish to come to it for the purpose of carrying out researches of their own.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Introduction to General Chemistry.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

No previous knowledge of chemistry is required. The class-room work is based on Remsen's Chemistry (Briefer Course) and covers the field of inorganic chemistry, as far as possible. The last twelve class-room exercises give a brief sketch of organic chemistry, particularly for the benefit of those students whose study of chemistry is confined to the first-year course. In the laboratory the student repeats the experiments performed in the class-room, and, in addition, has some practice in simple quantitative analysis and in making inorganic preparations. Each student is required to keep a notebook of his work.

2. Advanced Inorganic Chemistry and Qualitative Analysis.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. GILPIN.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

The class-room work in the second year is intended to give a more thorough knowledge of chemical and physical-chemical laws, of the properties of chemical compounds, and of the principles of qualitative analysis. The laboratory work is in qualitative analysis and inorganic preparations.

3. Chemistry of the Compounds of Carbon.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. GILPIN.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN and assistants.

The class-room work of the third year is devoted to the study of Organic Chemistry. The laboratory work is the making of organic preparations, but also includes practice in the analytic detection of organic substances and in analytical methods of value to those intending to study medicine. The text-book used is Remsen's Organic Chemistry.

This course is open only to those who have completed Courses 1 and 2.

4. Laboratory Work only.

Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF. Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

The laboratory work comprises advanced qualitative analysis, including technical methods, difficult inorganic preparations, and assaying. Those contemplating graduate work in chemistry will devote half of the year to the study of Volhard and Zimmermann's "Experiments in General Chemistry;" others may substitute quantitative analysis.

Students of the fifth group whose principal subject is chemistry are required to pursue the courses in chemistry during the first, second, and third years. Those who look forward to the study of medicine are advised to follow the courses in the first and second years, and to take the course in the compounds of carbon in their last year of residence.

The fourth-year course is intended for those students only who have satisfactorily absolved the courses of the three preceding years. It will be a help to those who intend to follow graduate work in chemistry, and also to those who desire to make a practical use of their knowledge of chemistry after receiving the bachelor's degree.

GEOLOGY

The Geological Laboratory offers facilities in the form of collections, instruments, and libraries to students wishing to pursue special researches in geology and its allied subjects—paleontology, petrography, mineralogy, etc. Such researches may be carried on independently, or with the co-operation of the members of the geological staff; but, if the student intends to become a candidate for a degree, the work must be conducted under the general direction of the head of the department or of his associates.

The laboratory, collections, and libraries are open to the advanced students daily, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Regular courses of instruction in geology are given in the form of lectures, laboratory exercises, and field work. The advanced courses are adapted to the requirements of students of maturity, the general courses to students desiring an elementary or cultural training in the subject. The former are designed primarily for graduate students in geology; the latter for undergraduates or for students from other departments wishing a more general knowledge of the subject.

ADVANCED COURSES

Seminary and Journal Meetings

The advanced students meet with the instructors once each week for the discussion of current publications dealing with geology. During the latter half of the year papers are presented giving the results of researches conducted in the laboratory, or summarizing the present state of knowledge regarding geological questions of general interest.

Lectures

1. Historical Geology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
2. Sytematic Paleontology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
3. Economic Geology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
4. Geological Physics. Professor REID.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
5. Exploratory Surveying. Professor REID.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
6. Advanced Mineralogy. Professor MATHEWS.
   Three hours weekly, through the year.

7. Petrography. Professor MATHEWS.
Three hours weekly, through the year.

8. Paleobotany. Mr. E. W. BERRY.
Two hours weekly, first half-year.

Laboratory Courses

1. Paleontology. Professor CLARK and Mr. BERRY.
Weekly, through the year.

2. Petrography. Professor MATHEWS.
Weekly, through the year.

3. Advanced Mineralogy. Professor MATHEWS.
Weekly, through the year.

4. Geological Field Methods. Professor MATHEWS.
Weekly, during the fall and spring.

Laboratory studies in advanced courses are carried on daily from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. under the general direction of the professors in charge. who are accessible at all times. An afternoon is devoted especially to each course, when the subject matter is more fully developed by quizzes, demonstrations, etc.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Elements of Geology.

Three lectures or recitations and three hours of laboratory work weekly, through the year. Associate Professor SWARTZ.

This course is open to all students. It is designed to give a general view of the subject of Geology, and may profitably be pursued by those who wish to have some knowledge of the chief events of the earth's history. It includes an account of the origin of the features of the surface of the earth, a discussion of the phenomena of earthquakes, volcanoes, mountain-making, and an outline of the past history of the earth.

Materials illustrative of the lectures are studied in the laboratory. Emphasis is placed upon the observation of geological phenomena in nature, the vicinity of Baltimore and the State of Maryland presenting features of unusual interest for such study. Frequent excursions are made to neighboring points where the principles of the science are studied in the field, while a longer trip is made in the spring to places of special interest for geological study. The longer excursion may be omitted by students who desire to do so, the field trips in the vicinity of Baltimore only being taken. This course is illustrated by maps, lantern views, and the rich collections of the university.

2. Mineralogy and Elementary Petrography.

Three lectures or recitations and six hours of laboratory work weekly, through the year. Associate Professor SWARTZ.

This course includes the study of crystallography, a discussion of the more important minerals, and a brief consideration of the origin and characteristics of the chief types of rocks. Numerous excursions are made to points of interest in the vicinity of Baltimore, which is unusually rich in the variety of its rocks and minerals.

Emphasis is laid upon laboratory work, which includes the study of crystal models, the identification of minerals by means of the blowpipe and by inspection, and the examination of rocks in the laboratory and in the field. A knowledge of chemistry is required for the pursuit of this course.

3. Applied Geology.

Three hours weekly, through the year, with laboratory work. Professor MATHEWS.

This course is devoted to a discussion of the non-metallic minerals and rocks which are worked commercially. The knowledge of geology and mineralogy gained in the preceding courses is applied to the recognition of useful minerals, their mode of occurrence, properties, values, and uses. The main sources of coal, oil, clay, building-stones, abrasives, gems, etc., the way they are won, and their economic importance, are treated with more or less detail. The aim of the course is to supply such information regarding mineral resources as an educated man should possess. The treatment of the technical questions of metallurgy or mining must be sought in technical schools.

State Scientific Bureaus connected with the Department.—Two scientific bureaus, established by the legislature and maintained at the expense of the State, are carried on in connection with the geological department. They are the Maryland Geological and Economic Survey and the Maryland State Weather Service. Professor Clark is the director of both these organizations, which are concerned with a study of the geology and physical features of the State of Maryland. The work is carried on under his direction mainly by the instructors and students of the department. A State Forestry Bureau, of which Professor Clark is Executive Officer, is also located in one of the buildings of the geological department.

Advantages afforded by Proximity to Washington.—Washington is less than an hour distant from Baltimore. This renders it possible to take frequent advantage of the facilities afforded by that city, where the officers of the various scientific bureaus and societies give the students of the university every opportunity to examine the rich collections and libraries under their control.

Field Work.—The area of the State of Maryland includes, notwithstanding its comparatively small size, a remarkable sequence of geological formations. The ancient rocks of the earth's crust, as well as those still in the process of deposition, are found, while between these wide limits there is hardly a geological epoch which is not represented. As a result most excellent facilities are afforded for a study of the various geological horizons. Excursions to points of interest are made during the autumn and spring months.

Zoology and Botany

The Biological Laboratory furnishes adequate rooms, with the usual apparatus, for carrying on research in animal and plant morphology, embryology, and experimental zoology. For special investigations unusual apparatus will be obtained.

It is planned that, before receiving the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, each student shall have the opportunity to study marine and terrestrial life in some tropical region. In the spring and summer of 1910 this work will be carried on in Jamaica, West Indies.

A collection of living plants in the botanical garden and conservatory, a physiological laboratory in the latter, and propagating grounds nearby are available for experimental work. A collection of carefully "fixed" and preserved alcoholic material of several hundred species of plants is available for histological and developmental study. The herbaria of the laboratory include the Schimper collection of European seed plants, the Field Club collection of local plants, the Fitzgerald collection of mosses, and smaller collections of fungi, marine algae, and Jamaican plants.

The library in the laboratory is supplemented by the main library of the university and other libraries in the city, including the excellent botanical library of John Donnell Smith, whose courtesy has always made his library and herbarium available for advanced students.

Prompt publication of abstracts of results is provided for in the University Circular. From time to time the results of extensive investigations in zoology are published by the University Press in a series of illustrated quarto monographs. The Adam T. Bruce Fellowship is awarded to men capable of carrying on research in biology. One of the graduate students in zoology may be appointed each year to occupy the University table at the marine laboratory of the U. S. Fisheries Bureau, at Woods Holl, Mass.

The laboratories are open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and for necessary research in the evenings, but only by special permission.

ADVANCED COURSES

I. Zoology

Laboratory work in general zoology, morphology, and embryology is directed by Professor ANDREWS. The work in experimental zoology is directed by Professor JENNINGS. The student will receive such assistance and training as his individual needs seem to require. Work done in the laboratory is supplemented by work in the field and at the seashore.

Journal Club.—All the graduate students take part with the instructors in a weekly discussion of the current literature.

Seminary.—Professors ANDREWS and JENNINGS will meet the advanced students for discussion of some of the fundamental problems of zoology weekly from the beginning of the session until the Easter vacation.

Experimental Zoology.—Professor JENNINGS. Three hours a week (lectures, laboratory work, and demonstrations), from the beginning of the session till February 1.

During the year 1910-1911 this course will be devoted to the Behavior of Animals. It will deal mainly with behavior in lower animals, and will be carried on in co-operation with the course to be given during the second half-year by Professor WATSON in the department of Psychology, dealing mainly with higher animals. Students should arrange to take both courses.

II. Botany

1. Journal Club and Seminary.

a. The Journal Club meets weekly through the year, in conjunction with the Zoological Journal Club.

b. The Botanical Seminary meets twice weekly, from December 1 to May 1. Professor JOHNSON.

The seminary work of the year 1909-10 was based on Warming's "Oecology of Plants."

2. Lectures and Laboratory Work.

I. The Reproduction and Phylogeny of Plants. Professor JOHNSON.

a. Three lectures weekly through the year.

b. Laboratory work associated with the lectures, twice weekly through the year.

c. Definite problems in field work assigned for study in the autumn and spring.

II. The Histology and Ecological Anatomy of Plants. Professor JOHNSON.

a. Two lectures or conferences weekly from January 1 to April 1.

b. Laboratory work twice weekly from January 1 to April 1.

III. The History of Botany. Professor JOHNSON.

Two lectures weekly from October 1 to December 20.

The following themes will be discussed in alternate years: The Theory of Sex in Plants, The Cell Theory.

IV. Plant Physiology. Professor LIVINGSTON.

Lectures and laboratory work on the chief plant processes. Green's Plant Physiology will be read. A good general knowledge of physics and chemistry is highly desirable.

a. Three lectures or conferences weekly till February 1.

b. Six hours of laboratory work weekly till February 1.

V. Physiology of the Cell. Professor LIVINGSTON.

An advanced course on protoplasmic processes, such as protoplasmic movement, the chemistry of nutrition and respiration, enzymes, etc.

a. Two lectures weekly from February 1 to June 1.

b. Six hours of laboratory work weekly from February 1 to June 1, with reading of original articles.

The laboratory work will aim to give the student illustrative material bearing on the subject as well as to bring him into contact with problems and methods of research, and will require the reading of selected original literature, much of it in French or German. Open to students who have had Course I or its equivalent, or a similar course in animal physiology.

VI. Problems in Plant Physiology. Professor LIVINGSTON.

a. Two lectures weekly throughout the year.

b. Six hours of laboratory work and a one-hour conference weekly throughout the year.

This course plans to give perspective and to prepare the student for profitable research in either pure or applied physiology. Each student will carry on experimentation upon and will work up the literature of restricted phases of plant activity, reporting on both literature and experiments. A considerable knowledge of the principles and methods of physics and chemistry is prerequisite.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

The collegiate courses in zoology and botany are known as Biology 1, Biology 2, Biology 3, and the Natural History Course.

1. General Biology and Embryology.

Six hours laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year. Professor ANDREWS and assistants.

This introductory course is open to all students and may be taken without previous training in chemistry or physics. It may be taken profitably by students interested in political economy, history, psychology, or ethics; it will be found useful to those looking forward to the ministry; and it is required of all who are to enter the medical school.

(a) General Biology. [Till March 15.]

In the laboratory each student studies with the microscope, or dissects, selected animals and plants, from the more simple such as amoeba and yeast, to the more complex such as the fern and frog. In the lectures some of the fundamental facts of Biology are emphasized.

(b) Embryology. [After March 15.]

Each student studies the cleavage of the living frog's egg and the formation and transformation of the tadpole. Subsequently he studies the hen's egg and the formation of organs in the embryo chick, learning to make his own serial sections, etc.

2. Comparative Anatomy and Bacteriology.

Six hours of laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year. Dr. COWLES.

This course continues the training of Biology 1 in limited fields, and is recommended to those who expect to study medicine, or to specialize in any department of Biology.

(a) Comparative Anatomy of Vertebrates. [Till March 15.]

The student dissects the skate, shark, codfish, nectrus, turtle, alligator, pigeon, and dog. The lectures emphasize the principles of animal morphology.

(b) Bacteriology. [After March 15.]

The student learns the methods of handling, cultivating, and studying non-pathogenic bacteria. The practical work gives valuable training in careful laboratory methods. The lectures treat of bacteria from a biological point of view, as very important agents in natural processes.

3. Zoology and Botany.

Six hours of laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year.

(a) Zoology. [First half-year.]

Professor ANDREWS and Dr. COWLES.

A comparative study of the chief groups of non-vertebrate animals. This may be made a whole course when botany is not needed.

(b) Botany. [Second half-year.]

Professors JOHNSON and LIVINGSTON.

The Structure of Root, Stem, Leaf, Flower, and Fruit. [January to May.]

An Introduction to Plant Physiology, with selected laboratory experiments. [After May 1.]

This is a course for beginners, giving a general survey of the nature and activities of plants, the out-door work serving to give students some familiarity with native plants in the field. This may be made a full course by those desiring it for general culture, or as a preparation for graduate work in botany or for work in forestry.

Elementary Zoology and Botany (Natural History.)

Nine hours weekly, second half-year. Professors ANDREWS and GRAVE.

This course is intended for those having no training in these subjects and is chiefly a laboratory course. It is required of students in groups I, II, III.

It may be made a whole course provided a sufficient number apply.

PHYSIOLOGY

Facilities are offered in the Physiological Laboratory for special students, graduates in medicine and others, who are interested in special lines of investigation, and also for those who wish to follow courses leading to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Physiology or allied subjects.

Regular courses of instruction are given as follows:

1. Advanced lectures. Professor HOWELL.
   Irregular intervals. through the year.
2. Journal Club. Professor HOWELL.
   Weekly, through the year.
3. Seminary. Professor HOWELL.
   Weekly, through the year.
4. Physiology of the Animal Body. Professor HOWELL, Dr. HOOKER, and Dr. SNYDER.
   Lectures, three hours weekly, through the year; laboratory, six hours weekly, first half-year.
   [The laboratory course may be repeated in the second half-year.]
5. Advanced Laboratory Work. Professor HOWELL.
   This work is done individually.

GREEK

GREEK SEMINARY

Professor GILDERSLEEVE will conduct the Greek Seminary, the plan of which is based on the continuous study of some leading author or some special department of literature.

The Seminary consists of the director, fellows, and scholars, and such advanced students as shall satisfy the director of their fitness for an active participation in the work by an essay, a critical exercise, or some similar test of attainments and capacity. All graduate students, however, may have the privilege of attending the course.

During the next academic year the study of Aristophanes and the Old Attic Comedy will constitute the chief occupation of the members. There will be two meetings a week during the entire session, chiefly for the criticism and interpretation of the author, but auxiliary studies in the literary and political history of the period will also find place in the plan of the Seminary.

ADVANCED AND GRADUATE COURSES

1. Professor Gildersleeve will conduct a course of Practical Exercises in Greek, consisting chiefly in translation at dictation from Greek into English and English into Greek, two meetings a week from the beginning of the session to the first of January.

2. He will give a series of Readings in Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, once a week after January 1.

3. He will lecture on select chapters of Greek Syntax and Greek Style, once a week after January 1.

Arrangements will be made for the competent guidance of the private reading of advanced students; and a course of lectures on Greek Metres, with practical exercises, will be conducted by Associate Professor Miller.

The schedule given above is subject to additions and modifications.

The student should be provided with a complete text of Aristophanes, Bergk's or Meineke's, or Hall and Geldart's (Bibliotheca Oxoniensis), von Velsen's critical edition so far as issued, and Kock's editions of the Knights, Clouds (translated by Humphreys), Birds, and Frogs, and Starkie's Wasps (Macmillan).

It is also desirable that the students should possess some edition of the Fragmenta Comicorum Graecorum, if possible Kock's, or, if that should be too expensive (48 marks), Meineke's smaller edition of the fragments, and for the study of the period, Thucydides, Xenophon's Hellenica, and Plutarch's Lives of Pericles and Alcibiades.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Xenophon, Memorabilia (selections).
   Plato, Apology.
   Herodotus (selections).
   Three hours weekly, first year. Associate Professor MILLER.
   Prose Composition.
   One hour weekly, first year. Associate Professor MILLER.
   Private Reading: Plato, Crito; Homer, Odyssey (two books).

2. Lysias (select orations); Isocrates (selections).
   Euripides (one play).
   Prose Composition.
   Three hours weekly, second year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.
   Private Reading: Xenophon, Hellenica (book 1); Euripides, Cyclops.

3. Plato, Protagoras.
   Lyric Poets.
   Sophocles (one play).
   Survey of Greek Literature.
   Prose Composition.
   Three hours weekly, third year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.
   Private Reading: Elegiac and Iambic Poets; Aeschylus (one play).

4. Thucydides (book VII).
   Lucian (selections).
   Aristophanes, Frogs.
   Two hours weekly, fourth year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.

Greek Life: lectures and conferences.
One hour weekly, fourth year. Dr. ROBINSON.
Private Reading: Demosthenes (select orations); Aristophanes, Clouds.

5. Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides (one play each).
Three hours weekly, through the year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.

Associate Professor SPIEKER offers, for beginners in Greek, a course of three or four hours weekly throughout the year. This course is intended primarily for the benefit of such graduate students of language as may feel the need of a knowledge of Greek in the prosecution of their work; but undergraduate students who have the ministry in view, and who have not had any previous training in Greek, may also be admitted. The class will be advanced as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness of work.

LATIN

The most important organ of training is the Latin Seminary which meets twice a week throughout the year, under the direction of Professor Smith. It consists of the director, fellows, scholars, and such advanced students as shall give satisfactory proof of their ability and training. Any graduate student is at liberty to attend the Seminary exercises, but each regular member is required to take his turn in the work. Each year some author or group of authors in a given department of literature is made the centre of study. The subjects treated during the last three years are as follows:

1907-1908. The Roman Satire, especially Horace and Juvenal.
1908-1909. The Roman Historians, especially Livy and Tacitus.
1909-1910. The Roman Epic, especially Vergil.

In addition to the regular work of the Seminary, courses of lectures are given every year by the director, and from time to time by other qualified persons.

During the academic year 1910-1911 the attention of the Seminary will be given to the Roman Drama, and the centre of this work will be Plautus and Terence.

Students are requested to provide themselves in advance with complete texts of Plautus (Lindsay, 2 volumes, Oxford Text), Terence (Tyrrell, Oxford Text), Senecae Tragoediae (Peiper-Richter, Teubner, 1902), and Scaenicae Romanorum Poesis Fragmenta (Ribbeck, 2 volumes, 3d ed., Teubner, 1897-8).

ADVANCED AND GRADUATE COURSES

1.* Professor Smith will lecture once a week, through the year, on the Roman Comedy.

2. During the first half-year he will lecture once a week on the Roman Tragedy from Livius Andronicus to Seneca.

3. During the second half-year he will lecture once a week on Metre and on other topics connected with the formal and stylistic development of the Roman Drama.

4.* Professor Wilson will lecture once a week through the year on Latin Epigraphy. The course will be accompanied by a series of practical exercises in the interpretation of inscriptions from original stones and from published texts.

5. The advanced students will meet once a week through the year for the rapid reading of Plautus, Terence, and Seneca.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Livy (selections); Terence (one play); Catullus (selections).

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

Private reading: Cicero, Cato Maior; Plautus (one play). Prose Composition.

Weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

2. Tacitus, Annals (selections); Horace, Odes and Epodes.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

---

*These courses will be given at an afternoon hour for the benefit of those who cannot attend in the morning.

Private reading: Tacitus, Germania; Horace, Satires and Epistles (selections).

Prose Composition: exercises from time to time.

3. Lucretius (selections); Vergil, Georgics.

Two hours weekly. through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

Private reading: Cicero, First Tusculan; Quintilian (book x).

Roman Literature (with reading of selected passages).

Weekly, through the year. Professor SMITH.

4. Juvenal (selections); Petronius (selections); Apuleius (selections).

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

Private reading: Martial (selections); Pliny, Letters (selections); Roman Elegy (selections).

Roman Life: lectures and conferences.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

5. Advanced Latin Composition.

Weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

NOTE.—Courses 2, 3, and 4 may be taken only by those who have pursued the courses preceding them.

Roman Literature (Course 3) and Roman Life (Course 4), each one hour weekly, are open to all students, and taken together are counted as half a course.

CLASSICAL ARCHAEOLOGY AND ART

The work in Classical Archæology and Art is carried on by means of a Seminary, various courses of lectures, conferences with individual students and practical exercises in the museums. The archæological material in the possession of the university includes good collections of Greek and Roman inscriptions, marbles, bronzes, vases and other terracottas, coins, gems, etc., which not only serve the purpose of illustration, but also form the basis of original investigation. These are supplemented by squeezes, photographs, and lantern slides, as well as by the casts belonging to the university and to the Peabody Institute. The new Walters Gallery, which is not far from the university, contains a very valuable collection of Greek and Roman antiquities.

SEMINARY AND ADVANCED COURSES

The subjects treated in the Seminary, or presented in lectures, vary from year to year, so that in three or four years of continuous residence students are brought into contact with the principal fields of archæological research. These subjects include Greek and Roman architecture, epigraphy, topography, sculpture, coins, gems, bronzes, and terracottas, private life, Mycenæan civilization, and Greek vase painting. The following courses are offered for the year 1910-11:

1. Archæological Seminary. Selected topics in the Latin inscriptions. Professor WILSON.

Problems in Pausanias. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

NOTE.—The University collection contains nearly two hundred original inscriptions, extending in date from 500 B. C. to 500 A. D. These, together with casts, squeezes and other reproductions, furnish material for original investigation in this field.

2. The Topography and Monuments of Ancient Rome, with especial reference to the development of the city from the earliest period.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

3.* An introduction to Latin Epigraphy, with practical exercises in the interpretation of inscriptions from original stones and published texts.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

4. Greek Inscriptions. Lectures with readings from Michel's Recueil, from squeezes, and from original stones.

Weekly, through the year. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

5. Greek Vase Painting. A brief account of the various early wares will be given, but most of the time will be devoted to the study of the Attic black-figured and red-figured vases as sources of information on mythology and private life.

*This course will be given at a late hour in the afternoon for the benefit of those who are unable to attend in the morning.

Weekly, through the year. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Outlines of Classical Archæology; lectures and conferences.

Three hours weekly. through the year. Professor WILSON and Associate Professor ROBINSON.

This course is intended to furnish a rapid survey of the principal fields of Greek, Etruscan, and Roman archæology and art. Knowledge of Latin and Greek is not required.

2. The Private Life of the Romans.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

3. The Private Life of the Greeks.

Weekly, through the year. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Courses 2 and 3 are parts of Latin 4 and Greek 4, respectively, but may be pursued by any student of the University. Taken together they count as half a course, and with the course in Roman Literature (Latin 3) as a full course.

SANSKRIT AND COMPARATIVE PHILOLOGY

Courses of instruction, directed by Professor Bloomfield, with the assistance of an Instructor or Fellow in Sanskrit, are provided in the Indo-Iranian languages (Vedic and Classical Sanskrit, Pāli and Prākrit, Avestan and Old Persian), in Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European languages, in historical Ethnology of the Indo-European peoples, and in general Linguistic Science. During recent sessions courses in the Lithuanian language and literature were given; these also will continue to form a regular feature of the work of the university.

These courses aim to meet the wants of those who wish to devote themselves to the study of these branches exclusively and for their own sake, i. e., those who wish to become specialists in Sanskrit Philology or Comparative Philology; and also the needs of students of languages in general, who wish to obtain a broader linguistic basis for special studies in other departments of philology.

The advanced work aims specially to meet the wants of those who wish to make Indian Philology or Comparative Philology their special study. This work centres in the Sanskrit Seminary and not infrequently involves the use of Sanskrit manuscripts.

A prolonged course in Sanskrit, involving two lectures a week during two years and attendance in the Sanskrit Seminary for a half-year (one hour a week), is planned, so as to furnish a good knowledge of Classical Sanskrit, and to include an introduction into the dialect of the Vedas. This amount of work represents material sufficient for the first subsidiary subject for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. A course in the same study for one and a half years, involving two hours a week, is the amount required for a second subsidiary subject leading to the same degree.

A synopsis of the courses offered during past years may be presented under the following heads:

I. Courses in the general principles of comparative philology or linguistic science, and on special chapters thereof; lectures on ethnology and the history of religions.

II. Courses in the general comparative grammar of the Indo-European languages; comparative grammar of Sanskrit and Avestan; comparative study of Indo-European accentuation; comparative study of Greek, Latin, Sanskrit, and Teutonic, including vocalism, consonantism, noun-formation, and inflections.

III. The Vedic, Sanskrit, and Prākrit dialects; Rig-Veda; Atharva-Veda; literature of the Brāhmanas and Upanishads. The law books of Manu and Yājñavalkya; the Drama Çakuntalā and introduction into Prākrit; Hitopadeça, Kathāsaritsāgara, and Nala. Sanskrit grammar and prose composition.

IV. The Pāli language and Buddhist literature.

V. The Avestan language and the sacred books of the Avesta.

VI. The Lithuanian language and literature.

The following courses, in charge of Professor Bloomfield, will be given during the session of 1910-1911:

A. Linguistic Science and Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European Languages.

1. The elements of Linguistic Science, with an account of the Ethnology and Religions of the Indo-European peoples. Weekly, through the year.

2. Comparative grammar of the more familiar Indo-European languages (Greek, Latin, German, and Sanskrit): The history of the vowels and their interrelations (ablaut). Weekly, through the year.

B. Indo-Aryan Philology.

3. Vedic Seminary: The literature of the Rig-Veda. Weekly, through the year.

4. The Elements of Vedic philology: Vedic grammar, metres, and interpretation of selected hymns of the Rig-Veda. Weekly, second half-year.

5. The Pāli language and selections from Buddhist literature. Weekly, through the year.

6. Beginners' course in Sanskrit: grammar (Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar) and interpretation of an easy text (Lanman's Reader). Twice weekly, through the year.

7. Selections from the Hitopadeça and the Law-Book of Manu (second year's course in Classical Sanskrit). Twice weekly, first half-year.

C. Other Indo-European Languages.

8. Introduction to the Lithuanian Language and Literature. Weekly, through the year.

NOTE.—No knowledge of Sanskrit is presupposed for courses 1, 2, 6 and 8. Course 1 sketches briefly the history of the Science of Language; presents a systematic account of the ethnology and religions of the indo-European peoples; deals with the principles that govern the life and growth of language, and finally treats of the origin of language. Course 2 is intended as an elementary introduction into the methods and results of the Comparative Grammar of the more important Indo-European languages.

Oriental Seminary

The various courses are adapted to the requirements of four classes of students, namely: (a) students of theology wishing to obtain a thorough acquaintance with the sacred tongue and its sister idioms as a means of elucidating Scripture and problems of the comparative history of religion; (b) students of linguistics intending to make comparative grammar of the Semitic languages their specialty; (c) students of Oriental history and archæology desirous of drawing directly from the original sources; (d) persons looking for instruction in the living Oriental languages (as modern Arabic, Turkish, Persian, modern Hebrew, Amharic, Malay, Tagalog, etc.) for practical purposes.

A room has been set apart containing a well-equipped working library for all the branches of Oriental research (including the library of the late Professor A. Dillmann, of Berlin, the Leopold Strouse Semitic Library, a special collection of works on Philippine dialects, etc.), and some advanced students are usually present to help in the preparation for the recitations conducted by the Director of the Seminary, and to furnish any other aid that may be desired. Near the Dillmann Library, on the same floor, are some archæological and antiquarian collections, including the Cohen Collection of Egyptian Antiquities, the Sonneborn Collection of Jewish Ceremonial Objects, collections of Hebrew and other Oriental manuscripts, Babylonian seal-cylinders and clay tablets, etc.

The following courses are offered for the academic year, 1910-11:

Oriental History, Literature, and Archaeology

1. History of the Ancient East (Egypt, Babylonia, Assyria, Persia, Israel, and Judah). Professor Johnston. Saturday, 11 a. m.

2. Biblical Archæology. Professor JOHNSTON. Saturday, 12 m.

3. Lectures on the Talmud. Dr. ROSENAU. Friday, 3 p. m.

4. The Literature of the Old Testament (with special reference to date and authorship). Dr. ROSENAU. Thursday, 5 p. m.

5. Interpretation of Selected Chapters of the Old Testament (on the basis of the Authorized Version). Professor HAUPT and Dr. BLAKE. Friday, 5 p. m.

Biblical Philology

6. Elementary Hebrew. Dr. EMBER. Three hours weekly.

7. Hebrew: Second Year's Course. Dr. BLAKE. Two hours weekly.

8. Hebrew Phonology. Dr. BLAKE. Thursday, 3 p. m.

9. Unpointed Hebrew Texts. Dr. ROSENAU. Monday, 11 a. m.

10. Prose Composition (Hebrew, Arabic, Assyrian, and Sumerian). Professor HAUPT. Monday, 4 p. m.

11. Comparative Semitic Grammar. Professor HAUPT. Monday, 3 p. m.

12. Old Testament Seminary (Critical Interpretation of the Books of Joel, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah). Professor HAUPT. Tuesday, 4 to 6 p. m.

13. Cursory Reading of the Hebrew Bible. Dr. EMBER. Monday, 5 p. m.

14. Post-Biblical Hebrew. (Selections from the Mishnah and the Talmud; Rabbinical Commentaries on the Bible). Dr. ROSENAU. Monday, 10 a. m., 12 m., and 2 p. m.

15. Medieval Hebrew Poetry. Dr. EMBER. Friday, 10 a. m.

16. Jewish Philosophers of the Middle Ages. Dr. ROSENAU. Monday, 9 a. m.

17. Modern Hebrew. Dr. EMBER. Tuesday, 11 a. m.

18. Hebrew Conversation. Dr. EMBER. Friday, 9 a. m., Tuesday, 10 a. m.

19. Biblical Aramaic Grammar and Interpretation of the Aramaic Portions of the Book of Daniel. Dr. BLAKE. Friday, 4 p. m.

Syriac

20. Syriac (Roediger's Chrestomathy). Dr. BLAKE. Friday, 3 p. m.

Arabic

21. Elementary Arabic (with special reference to students of Romance Languages). Dr. EMBER. Friday, 12 m.

22. Arabic for Beginners (with special reference to students of Hebrew). Dr. EMBER. Monday and Wednesday, 9 a. m.

23. Extracts from the Arabian Nights. Professor JOHNSTON. Thursday, 10 a. m.

24. Selections from Maimonides. Dr. EMBER. Friday, 9 a. m.

25. Arabic Prose Composition. Professor HAUPT. [See No. 10.]

Ethiopic

26. Ethiopic (Dillmann's Chrestomathy). Dr. BLAKE. Wednesday, 4 p. m.

Assyriology

27. Assyrian for Beginners. Dr. BLAKE. Wednesday, 3 p. m.

28. Selected Assyrian Letters. Professor JOHNSTON. Thursday, 11 a. m.

29. Sumerian (Selected Bilingual Hymns). Professor HAUPT. Monday, 5 p. m.

30. Assyrian and Sumerian Prose Composition. Professor HAUPT. [See No. 10.]

Egyptology

31. Egyptian for Beginners. Professor JOHNSTON. Friday, 11 a. m.

32. Selected Hieroglyphic Texts. Professor JOHNSTON. Friday, 10 a. m.

Malayo-Polynesian Philology

33. Malay. Dr. BLAKE. Monday, 4 p. m.

34. Elementary Tagalog. Dr. BLAKE. Monday, 5 p. m.

Journal Meeting

35. Journal Meeting. Professor HAUPT. Tuesday, 3 p. m.

ENGLISH

GRADUATE COURSES

In the graduate courses the subject of English is studied with reference to the historical and technical aspects of linguistic and literary science. The usual sequence of courses enables a student, in three or four years, to study with precision the important departments of grammar and of literature, and to become trained in the process of original investigation. Instruction is imparted by lectures, by freer conferences, by the methods of the Seminary, and by class-room recitation.

A Journal Club is conducted for the purpose of supplementing the regular courses with reports of the current work of scholars.

1. English Seminary

Graduate students are admitted to the Seminary as soon as they have satisfied initial requirements for independent research.

In the academic year 1910-11, the Seminary will be engaged in the study and investigation of the following subjects:

(a) English Poetry from Wordsworth to Tennyson. First half-year.

The Seminary will be conducted by Professor BRIGHT. Tuesday and Thursday, 3-5 p. m.

2. Lectures on Historical Grammar, Versification, and Literary Criticism. Professor BRIGHT. Monday, 11 a. m.

3. Interpretation of selected texts. Professor BRIGHT. Tuesday and Thursday, 12 m.

4. The Journal Club of the English Seminary. Professor BRIGHT. Alternate Fridays, 3-5 p. m.

5. Additional courses in literature by Professor BROWNE and others will be announced later.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

Introductory courses in (a) Rhetoric and English Composition, (b) Platform Speaking and Forensics, and (c) English Literature, are prescribed for all undergraduate students. For those who may wish to continue their study in any of these departments, elective courses are provided in the various forms of discourse and in the more important periods of English and American literature. Further practice in debating is provided in connection with the elective course in exposition and argument, and in the annual inter-class and inter-collegiate debates.

English Composition

1. Rhetoric and English Composition.

Theory based upon text-books, lectures, and discussions; critical study of prose writers; frequent practice in writing. This course is prescribed during the first year.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. FRENCH and Mr. C. A. MYERS.

1*a*. English Composition.

This course is prescribed during the second year. Students who have attained a mark of "8" on the work of the first year are excused from this course.

One hour a week, through the year. Mr. C. A. MYERS.

2. Description and Narration.

Readings in standard prose. Practice in writing.

One hour a week, through the year. Professor GREENE.

3. Exposition and Argument.

During the first term, the theory of exposition with frequent practice in expository writing. During the second and third terms, the theory of argument; practice in writing; platform speaking and debate.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

Public Speaking

1. Reading and Platform Speaking.

In this course attention is paid to correct habits of breathing and to enunciation and expression. The course is prescribed during the second year.

One hour a week, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

2. Public Speaking.

The principles of argumentation; practice in argumentative writing and in debate; parliamentary procedure. This course is prescribed during the third year.

One hour a week, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

NOTE.—Additional practice in platform speaking and in debate is provided in English Composition 3. A more specific statement respecting these courses is made on page ——

English Literature

1. English Literature: introductory course.

The class will become acquainted with the course of English Literature from the seventh century until about 1600. Much of the poetry of Chaucer, Spenser, and Shakespeare will be read in the class-room and in private reading. This course is prescribed during the second year.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor GREENE.

2. English Literature, 1600-1744.

GERMAN

Under this head are included German Language and Literature and subjects in the wider field of Germanic Philology. Regular instruction, through seminary and lectures, is given in German Literature and in Gothic, Comparative Germanic Grammar, Old High German, and Middle High German; while occasional courses are offered in Old Norse, Old Saxon, and Old Frisian.

ADVANCED COURSES

Seminary

The library of the German Seminary, to which all advanced students have the fullest access, is open Mondays to Fridays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. The Seminary treats, in successive half-years, some theme from the period of German Classicism or Romanticism, and a subject from the literature of Middle High German. During the year 1910-11 the Seminary will meet three times weekly. The subject for the first half-year will be the period of "Storm and Stress" in German Literature (1772-1785). During the second half-year, the German Courtly Lyrics (Minnesong) of the Twelfth and Thirteenth Centuries will be studied. The Seminary will be conducted by Professor Wood.

Students are requested to procure Deutsche Nationallitteratur, hrsg. Jos. Kürschner, Bde. 79-81 (Stürmer und Dränger), and Bd. 107 (Goethes Kleine Jugendschriften in Prosa); Minnesangs Frühling, hrsg. von Lachmann und Haupt, 4. Auflage, Leipzig, 1888.

Germanic Society

The Germanic Society, which includes as members all the instructors and advanced students in German, meets fortnightly. Before it are presented not only reports on articles in current journals, but also successive results of studies by the members. The chief object of the Society is to foster and guide the aptitude for more sustained individual investigation than the collective work of the Seminary offers scope for.

Lectures

1. Gothic and the elements of Comparative Germanic Grammar.

Professor COLLITZ. Two hours weekly, through the year.

Students are requested to procure Braune, Gotische Grammatik, 7. Auflage, Halle, 1909.

2. Introduction to the study of Germanic Philology.

Professor COLLITZ. Weekly, through the year.

A brief survey of the various Germanic languages from an historical and comparative point of view will be given. This will be followed by a discussion of the aims and the method of Germanic Philology.

3. Old High German (Introductory Course).

Professor COLLITZ. Weekly, first half-year.

Students should procure Braune, Abriss der Althochdeutschen Grammatik, 4. Auflage, Halle, 1906, and the same author's Althochdeutsches Lesebuch, 6. Auflage, Halle, 1907.

4. Old High German Texts.

Professor COLLITZ. Weekly, second half-year.

Critical reading of specimens selected from Braune, Althochdeutsches Lesebuch.

5. Middle High German (Introductory Course).

Professor COLLITZ. Twice weekly, first half-year.

Paul, Mittelhochdeutsche Grammatik, 7. Auflage, Halle, 1908; Bachmann, Mittelhochdeutsches Lesebuch, 4. Auflage, Zürich, 1909.

6. The Beginnings of Modern German Classicism.

Professor WOOD. Twice weekly, first half-year.

The period in German Literature from 1750 to Goethe's Italian Journey (1786) will be studied. The authors to receive the chief share of attention will be Wieland, Klopstock, Lessing and Herder.

7. The German Chap-Books of Eulenspiegel and Faust.

Professor WOOD. Twice weekly, first half-year.

The particular subject treated will be the development of the "Schalksnarr," vagabond and "Wunderdoktor" into typical and national figures, in the legends of Tyll Eulenspiegel, Faust and Münchhausen. The literary results of the evolution will then be examined in the Faust-play, in Simplicissimus, Immermann and de Coster.

Students are requested to procure Deutsche Nationallitteratur, hrsg. Jos. Kürschner, Bde. 25, 33, 160 Teile 1 und 2 (Volksbücher des sechzehnten Jahrhunderts, Grimmelshausen I., Immermanns Schriften I.), and Charles de Coster, Tyll Ulenspiegel, Deutsch von Fried. von Oppeln-Bronikowski, Jena, 1909.

8. The Swabian Poets, their allies and opponents.

Professor Wood. Twice weekly, second half-year.

After studying Uhland and Justinus Kerner, that part of Jung Deutschland will be considered, which was particularly opposed to the Swabians (Heine, Börne). Lenau and Platen, as participants in the feud, will also claim a share of attention.

9. The Elegy in German Literature.

Dr. Roulston. Weekly.

*1. Scientific German. Dr. Kurrelmeyer.

Weekly, through the year. Mr. HOFMANN.

Romance Languages

The department of Romance Languages offers facilities for work in manuscript sources and palæography, in literature (old and modern), in language (phonetics, morphology, history, syntax, dialects), and in Popular Latin. For students who desire the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, three years are usually required. The work is confined almost entirely to the three principal Romance languages (French, Spanish, and Italian), in all of which special attention is paid to the origins.

Instruction is given in lectures and regular class exercises, the former being supplemented by subjects for special investigation assigned to the student. For each of the languages noted above, a seminary meeting is held once a week. In French the seminary for the old literature alternates with that for the modern literature. A meeting of the Romance Club is also held weekly, at which original papers are read and reviews of recent journals presented.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. SHAW.

History

Facilities for research are offered in the principal fields of history. Special attention is given to methods of investigation and each advanced student comes under the personal direction of the instructors in his chosen field. This supervision is obtained through seminary meetings and frequent private consultation.

In addition to the library of the university, students make use of the admirable collections of source material in the Peabody Library and the Maryland Historical Society, and are in constant touch with the great resources of the Library of Congress and the departments in Washington. The university library has recently received large and important accessions of historical works and documentary material.

GRADUATE COURSES

European History. The courses in European History direct attention to the social, economic, and constitutional development of European peoples. The subjects follow in consecutive order, the topics for each year forming a complete and independent group. The series requires three years for completion and offers opportunities for close study of selected portions of the mediæval and early modern history of the Continent. A weekly seminary is held for the study of problems in European history and institutions.

Courses in Latin palæography and in French palæography are given in their respective departments.

English History. The constitutional and social history of England is treated in connection with the corresponding periods in European history. A part of the seminary work is devoted to problems in this field and direction is given to further special research. A separate course is provided for the historical development of English common and statute law.

American History. The courses in American History begin with the history of British colonization in America and deal with the constitutional and economic growth of the colonies and the constitutional and political history of the United States after 1783. A weekly seminary is held for research in special subjects in American History.

Ancient History. The courses in Ancient History take into consideration the constitutional, social, artistic, and economic development of the peoples of Greece and Italy. Special attention is given to the historical evidence furnished by epigraphy and archæology. The constitutional history of Greece and Rome is supplemented by lectures on the Roman Law. Certain portions of Oriental History are treated in the departments of Semitics and Sanskrit.

Special Lectures. The Albert Shaw Lectures on Diplomatic History are given annually by investigators in selected fields of American and foreign relations. The scope of the lectures is not confined to the United States, but lectures on European diplomatic history will also find their due place.

The James Schouler Lectures on History and Political Science are given annually by lecturers of prominence, upon topics indicated in the title of the lectureship. These lectures are open to the public as well as to the students and members of the University. The course for 1909 was given by Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University, and that for 1910 by George Walter Prothero, Litt. D., formerly professor of history in the University of Edinburgh, now editor of the Quarterly Review and Honorary Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge. The lecturer for 1911 will be Professor John Bassett Moore, of Columbia University.

Other lectures of interest to the students of this department, either open to the public or designed for class instruction, are given from time to time by distinguished scholars outside the University. These lectures are, in part, provided for from the income of the fund bequeathed by the late Professor Herbert B. Adams.

Historical and Political Science Association. This monthly meeting of the instructors and students of the departments of History, Political Economy, and Political Science affords an opportunity to hear addresses from prominent specialists, to consider important movements and undertakings, and to present critical reviews of recent publications in the fields of history, political economy, and political science.

For the year 1910-11 the courses will be as follows:–

Professor VINCENT.

1. Early Mediæval History of Europe.

The study of the origins of the nations of Western Europe, giving emphasis to their social institutions and economic development.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

2. Theory and practice of Historical Method.

One hour weekly, through the year.

3. Seminary in European and English History.

Two hours, alternate weeks.

Associate Professor BALLAGH.

1. History of the United States, 1830-1860.

Two hours weekly, first half-year.

2. History of American Slavery.

Two hours weekly, second half-year.

3. Seminary in American History.

Two hours, alternate weeks.

Dr. MAGOFFIN.

1. History of Greece to 338 B. C.

One hour weekly, through the year.

2. History of Rome and Italy to 133 B. C.

One hour weekly, through the year.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. History of Greece and Rome.

The political and constitutional history of Greece and Rome, approached through the translated texts of Herodotus, Thucydides, Suetonius, Tacitus, and others, with the aid of modern authorities.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. MAGOFFIN.

2. European History (General History).

From the decline of the Roman Empire to the nineteenth century, dealing with the Romano-Barbarian kingdoms, the empire of Charles the Great, feudalism, the crusades, empire and papacy, renaissance, the Protestant revolution, the religious wars, eighteenth century states and the doctrine of the balance of power, the French Revolution, the Napoleonic period, and the reorganization of Europe in the nineteenth century.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor VINCENT.

3. English History.

Chiefly constitutional and political, dealing with the origins and development of parliamentary institutions, the relations of England with continental Europe, and the modern expansion of the British Empire. Open to students who have had, or are taking, History 2 or Political Economy 1.

Three hours weekly, through the year.

4. American History.

Colonial history and institutions, the formation of the Union, the development of constitutional government and law, the growth of foreign policy, the expansion of the nation. Emphasis will be laid on the national period, and the subject will be brought to the close of the nineteenth century. Open to students who have had History 2 and 3 or Political Economy 1.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Associate Professor BALLAGH.

The History courses begin in the second year of the college work. Students in Group III will at that time begin with course 1, and in the third year will be expected to take both 2 and 3. Course 4 completes the plan of instruction in History, and students of Group III who have had courses 2 and 3 are advised to take this in the fourth year.

Political Economy

GRADUATE COURSES

The graduate instruction in Political Economy is designed primarily to meet the needs of advanced students preparing for a professional career in economic science. The courses afford systematic instruction in general economic principles, intimate acquaintance with special fields of economic activity, and, most important of all, knowledge of and ability to employ sound methods of economic research. The work centres in the Economic Seminary, the membership of which is limited to the most advanced students, and the primary design of which is to develop scientific research in economic study and investigation.

Formal graduate instruction is offered in Economic Theory and in Applied Economics, by parallel courses of lectures throughout the year. The particular topics treated vary from year to year. In 1908-09 Professor Hollander lectured two hours weekly on economic thought before Adam Smith, and two hours weekly on the theory and practice of exchange. During the year 1909-10 attention was given, in the course on economic theory, to the economic system of David Ricardo. In the course on applied economics, careful study was made of the history and theory of taxation. Associate Professor Barnett lectured during the first half-year on the development of factory legislation and during the second half-year on the legal position of trade unions. Special courses of lectures were given during the year by Mr. John M. Glenn, Director of the Russell Sage Foundation, on "Problems of Relief;" by Mr. Logan G. McPherson, of New York, on "Railway Transportation;" by Dr. James Bonar, Deputy

Master of the Canadian Mint, on "Justice and Distribution."

The courses offered for 1910-11 are as follows:

1. The Economic Seminary.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER and Associate Professor BARNETT.

The work of the year will continue to be a systematic study of the history, structure, and activities of labor organizations in the United States.

2. The Principles of Political Economy.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER.

During the first half-year, attention will be paid to the proper method of economic inquiry; during the second half-year the fundamental theories of the science will be subjected to critical examination. Representative texts will be assigned for reading and study.

3. Municipal Finance.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER.

During the first half-year, the historical development of American local finance will be studied; during the second half-year, attention will be paid to the present fiscal problems of the American city.

4. Industrial Corporations.

One hour weekly, through the year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

During the first half-year attention will be given to the history of the industrial corporation and to its position in modern economic organization; during the second half-year a detailed study will be made of the administration and financing of industrial corporations.

Special courses of lectures will be given by non-resident lecturers upon such practical economic problems as charities and correction, railway transportation, industrial organization.

A reading class is organized yearly by the more advanced students of the department for the co-operative study of economic texts and for the critical discussion of current economic literature.

In co-operation with the departments of history and political science, opportunity is offered in the Historical and Political Science Association for the presentation and discussion of original papers in economic science by instructors and invited speakers, and for the review by students of current publications of importance in these fields.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. (a) Economic History.

The economic development of England from the tenth century to the present time and the most important experiences of the United States are studied.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

(b) Elements of Economics.

Particular attention is given to the theory of distribution and its application to leading economic problems.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

2. (a) Finance.

The theory and practice of finance are considered, with particular reference to problems of taxation as presented in the experience of the United States.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor HOLLANDER.

(b) Money and Banking.

The principles of monetary science are taught with reference to practical conditions in modern systems of currency, banking, and credit.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Professor HOLLANDER.

3. (a) Statistical Methods.

After a preliminary study of the value and place of statistics as an instrument of investigation, attention is directed to the chief methods used in statistical inquiry.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

(b) Economic Institutions.

Labor unions, corporations, and trusts are studied primarily as elements in the organization of industry.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

NOTE.—Undergraduate course 2 is open only to such students as have completed course 1; and, save under exceptional circumstances, course 3 only to students who have completed 1 and 2.

Political Science

GRADUATE COURSES

The graduate work in Political Science has for its aim the preparation of advanced students for professional and original work in the fields of Constitutional Law, International Law and Diplomacy, and Political Philosophy. It seeks also to supply the necessary training for those desiring to enter the higher branches of the public service, and to furnish a broad and philosophical equipment to those who expect later to pursue the study and practice of the law.

Seminary

In addition to the Historical and Political Science Association, at which the students of the departments of History, Economics, and Political Science meet jointly for the presentation of papers by the instructors and by invited speakers, a fortnightly Seminary is conducted by Professor Willoughby, at which reports upon special subjects are read by the students and discussed.

Journal Club

A weekly meeting of the advanced students, under the direction of Professor Willoughby, is held for the discussion of current political literature—books and periodicals.

Lectures

The lectures are so arranged as to give three or more years of continuous instruction, covering the following subjects: The Theory of the State (being a general introduction to the study of Constitutional and International Law), Foreign Constitutional Law, United States Constitutional Law, the Legal Aspects of Economic and Industrial Problems, the History of Political Theories and of Political Literature, and Historical Jurisprudence.

During the year 1910-11 the following courses will be given:

1. United States Constitutional Law. Professor WILLOUGHBY.

Two hours weekly, through the year. [Extending over three years.]

2. Political Theories and Political Literature in England since 1688. Professor WILLOUGHBY.

One hour weekly, first half-year.

3. Political Theories and Political Literature in France since 1750. Professor WILLOUGHBY.

One hour weekly, second half-year.

4. Principles of International Law. Dr. J. B. SCOTT.

One hour weekly, through the year.

5. Historical Development of the English Law. Dr. STEINER.

One hour weekly, through the year.

This course is a continuation of the one given in 1909-10, and will deal with the development of the substantive principles of the Common Law.

Undergraduate instruction in Political Science is given in the departments of History and Economics.

Philosophy, Psychology, and Education

Graduate Courses

The graduate work of the department takes different directions according as the chief interest of the student lies in the field of Philosophy, in Experimental and Comparative Psychology, or in Education. The primary aim of the department is to provide special training in the methods of philosophical inquiry and psychological research, and in their application to the problems of educational theory and practice.

In Philosophy, opportunity is offered for specialization in systematic philosophy, history of philosophy, and ethics. In Psychology, the fields of human and animal psychology are represented in courses for training and for research. In Education, the work recognizes the bearing of the historical and theoretical material upon present practical problems.

The program of the individual student during his first and second years, is adapted, so far as possible, to his special needs and future aims as teacher or investigator. In the third year the student concentrates, in the seminary and laboratory courses, upon the topic of his dissertation.

1. Graduate Conference. A conference composed of all the instructors and university students meets fortnightly. Papers are read, and reports on the progress of work, reviews of books, etc., are presented for general information and criticism. Each member of the department is expected to contribute to the work of the Conference.

2. The Conception of Evolution.

Professor Lovejoy. Two hours a week, through the year.

This course will consist of a historical and analytical inquiry into the meaning and the bearings upon epistemology, ethics, and metaphysics of the general notion of temporal Becoming, and of certain modern theories of cosmic and organic evolution.

3. Systematic Ethical Theory.
Professor LOVEJOY. Two hours a week, through the year.

4. Continental Philosophy from Descartes to Kant.
Professor GRIFFIN. One hour a week, through the year.

5. English Ethics of the last half-century.
Professor GRIFFIN. One hour a week, through the year.

6. Modern Pantheism and Pessimism: Schopenhauer's World as Will and Idea.
Professor BUCHNER. One hour a week, through the year.

7. Readings in German Philosophy. Text to be selected.
Professor BUCHNER. One hour a week, through the year.

8. Philosophy of Education (Seminary Course).
Professor BUCHNER. Two hours a week, through the year.

9. Educational Psychology.
Professor BUCHNER. One hour a week, through the year.

10. Introduction to Experimental Psychology.
Dr. DUNLAP. Lectures and laboratory exercises, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 2 to 4 p. m.

11. Experimental Psychology (Research Course).
Professor WATSON and Dr. DUNLAP. Two hours a week, through the year.

12. Introduction to Comparative Psychology. Lectures and laboratory exercises.
Professor WATSON. Two hours a week, through the year.

13. Comparative Psychology (Research Course).
Professor WATSON. Two hours a week, through the year.

14. Advanced General Psychology.
Professor WATSON. Two hours a week, through the year.

15. Attention and Feeling from the Experimental Point of View.
Dr. DUNLAP. Two hours a week, second half-year.

16. Psychological Journal Club.
Two hours a week, through the year.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. a. Deductive and Inductive Logic.

Creighton's Introductory Logic is, at present, used as a text-book, with references to the works of Jevons, Mill, Bain, Keynes, and other writers.

Professor GRIFFIN. Three hours weekly, until Christmas.

b. Psychology.

Text-books liable to change from year to year are made the basis of instruction, but the subject is presented largely through informal lectures and discussions, and by means of passages in various authors assigned for reading. A series of lectures and demonstrations on physiological and experimental psychology is included in the course. One essay on an assigned subject is required from each member of the class.

Professor WATSON. Four hours weekly, January to April.

c. Ethics.

The subject is taught by lectures, recitations from a text-book—Mackenzie's Manual of Ethics being used at present,—and references to the works of the most important writers.

Professor GRIFFIN. Three hours weekly, after April 1.

2. Outlines of the History of Philosophy.

Rogers's Student's History of Philosophy, Weber's History of Philosophy, and other works of reference, are used as the basis of lectures, discussions, and recitations.

Professor GRIFFIN. Two hours weekly, through the year; a third hour, for readings from the works of leading philosophers, may be taken.

All candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts are required to follow course 1 during the last year of residence.

DRAWING

1. Freehand Drawing.

The instruction aims to impart such knowledge of the principles of drawing as shall best serve to educate the eye and train the hand. Students looking forward to teaching or to the study of medicine or biology will find this course of value in the illustration of lectures and laboratory work.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. WHITEMAN.

2. Descriptive Geometry and Mechanical Drawing.

This course is offered to students who intend studying architecture or engineering. The work consists of lectures in the theory, and of the practical application in working problems. The study of linear perspective and the perspective of shadows, together with orthographic and isometric projections, is taken up later in the course.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. WHITEMAN.

PUBLIC SPEAKING AND DEBATE

A course in reading and platform speaking is required of undergraduate students in their second year. For the sake of convenience in instruction, the class is divided into several small sections, to each of which is devoted one hour a week. A course in debating, which involves the study of parliamentary law, the collection and arrangement of material, and frequent practice in debate under the direction of an instructor, is assigned to students in their third year. The work of the two years is counted as a half-course. During the fourth year opportunity for a more detailed study of the art of debate and for practice in argumentative composition is open to those who desire it. Prize contests in public speaking and in debate are held annually, and one intercollegiate debate is, as a rule, undertaken each year.

PHYSICAL TRAINING AND ATHLETICS

The authorities of the university, recognizing the importance of systematic physical exercise under suitable advice, have placed the gymnasium in charge of Dr. Ronald T. Abercrombie, and have put the work of this department on a parity with the work done in the regular courses of study.

A careful physical and medical examination is made of each undergraduate, and such exercises are prescribed as are best suited to his needs. During his first year of residence, he is required to follow the prescribed gymnasium course, which includes also his attendance on a course in hygiene. Regular class instruction is given every afternoon from five to six o'clock. The use of the gymnasium is optional in the case of graduate students; it is offered to all members of the university upon payment of the ordinary locker fee.

The gymnasium—127 feet long by 35 feet wide—is provided with convenient lockers, baths, etc., as well as with the newest forms of apparatus. Adjoining the gymnasium proper is a "cage"—an enclosed and covered space for practice in running and in athletic sports—127 feet long, 66 feet wide, and 30 feet high.

"Hopkins Field," the athletic ground at Homewood, is now in use by the students. In its construction special attention was paid to the problem of drainage, and in this respect the field is well-nigh perfect. It is enclosed by one of the best quarter-mile cinder tracks in the country, with a 220-yard "straightway." A club-house provides dressing rooms, lockers, and shower baths. A stand built of ferro-concrete and accommodating about fifteen hundred spectators has been erected.

In order to prevent ill-advised participation in outdoor sports, and to guard against over-indulgence in training, the athletic teams of the university are under the control of the director of the gymnasium. No student is allowed to become a member of a team unless his physical condition is satisfactory and his "strength test" up to the prescribed standard; and no student is allowed to be a member of, or a candidate for, an athletic team, who is seriously deficient in his studies.

THE DEGREE OF MASTER OF ARTS

The degree of Master of Arts is offered to students who have obtained the baccalaureate degree from a college of good standing, have then followed courses of university study under proper guidance for at least two years, and have satisfied the requirements mentioned below.*

The Board of University Studies reserves the right to decide in each case whether the preliminary training has been satisfactory, and, if any of the years of graduate work have been passed by the candidate away from this University, whether they may be considered as spent in accordance with these regulations.

At least one academic year must be passed in this University, and in every case this must be the one immediately preceding the final examinations, unless special permission to the contrary is granted by the Board of University Studies for some extraordinary reason.

The candidate for the degree must make formal application to the Board of University Studies at least one academic year before he expects to present himself for his final examinations. In this application he must state the subject which it is his intention to pursue as his principal study, and in his choice of additional subjects he must be guided by the advice of the professor in charge of his principal work.

In order to obtain the degree the candidate must satisfy two requirements:

1. He must prepare an essay upon a subject approved by the Board of University Studies. This must be completed and submitted to the Board at least four weeks before the time of the final examinations. Two referees will then be designated who shall present to the Board a written report. This essay shall be prepared for presentation to the Board in the manner prescribed for the dissertations submitted for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

*It is understood that the University work for one of these years may be distributed through two or more years, in cases where the student can devote only a part of his time to study.

2. If the report on the essay is satisfactory, the candidate will then be admitted to the final written examinations.

The candidate is, however, permitted to take at the end of any academic year examinations on the subjects followed during that year, or at the beginning of the next year. In case these are passed in a satisfactory manner, he will not be examined further in them. Reports of these examinations shall be made to the Board of University Studies.

The names of the candidates found worthy of the degree will be submitted to the Board of Trustees, and with their approbation the degree will be publicly conferred.

THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is offered to students who, after obtaining the baccalaureate degree from a college of good standing, have followed courses of university study under proper guidance and without serious distractions for at least three years, and have satisfied the requirements mentioned below.

The Board of University Studies reserves the right to decide in each case whether the preliminary training has been satisfactory, and which, if any, years of graduate work not spent in this University are to be considered as spent in accordance with these regulations.

At least one academic year must be passed in this University, and, except in extraordinary cases, the one preceding the final examinations.

PRINCIPAL AND SUBORDINATE SUBJECTS

To become a candidate for the degree the student must select a subject on which he intends to concentrate his efforts and must place himself under the guidance of the professor of this subject. This is called his "principal" study. With the advice of the professor and subject to the approval of the Board of University Studies, the student must choose two other studies, known as "subordinate" subjects, which he must follow. These are called the "first subordinate" and the "second subordinate," and the two should represent one year's work, two-thirds of this being devoted to the former. Additional information concerning the selection of these subjects is given on pages 164-171.

ACCEPTANCE OF THE CANDIDATE

A student who wishes to be considered a candidate for the degree must make written application to the Board of University Studies, upon a form provided for this purpose, at least one academic year before he expects to present himself for his final examinations.* Before this application can be accepted, he must satisfy the University examiners that he is able to translate at sight French and German journals and monographs relating to his principal subject.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DEGREE

Certain examinations, as outlined below, must be passed by the candidate, in order to obtain the degree; but the distinctive requirement is the presentation of evidence that the candidate has carried to successful completion an original investigation in his principal subject upon a theme approved by his chief professor. The results of this investigation must be embodied in a dissertation, and submitted to the Board of University Studies.

REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE DISSERTATION

a. The dissertation must be prepared for presentation to the Board of University Studies in accordance with instructions to be obtained from the Registrar, and to every such dissertation must be appended a brief biographical sketch of the author. It must be submitted to the Board at least four weeks before the examinations in the principal subject.

b. The Board shall designate two or more referees, who shall make a written report on the dissertation.

REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE EXAMINATIONS†

a. The candidate shall be subjected to written examinations in his principal subject, and, whenever prac-

*A student who has been admitted as a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, will be considered to have satisfied the requirements for admission to courses leading to the degree of Master of Arts.

†If a student who has absolved the examinations required for the degree of Master of Arts in this University, becomes a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, he may, at the discretion of the professors, be excused from any further written examinations in the particular courses in which he has already passed.

ticable, in both his subordinate subjects. The results of the examinations shall be reported in writing to the Board of University Studies; and, if these reports and the report on the dissertation are satisfactory, the candidate shall be admitted to an oral examination in his principal and first subordinate subjects before the Board, or a section of it.

b. The written examinations in the subordinate subjects may be taken at any time during the candidate's residence at the University, subject to the judgment of the examiners.

c. In the written examinations no session shall exceed five hours. In the oral examinations before the Board, the time allotted shall be one hour; and three quarters of this shall be devoted to the principal subject.

OTHER REGULATIONS

Before the candidate is admitted to the oral examination he must signify his intention, in the event of his receiving the degree, to print his dissertation in full or in part, and to satisfy the requirements specified below.

If the dissertation is not printed in full, an abstract must be prepared or a portion selected with the approval of the professor, which shall contain when printed not less than twenty-four octavo pages.

One hundred and fifty printed copies of the dissertation must be presented to the University within one year of the time when the degree is conferred. These must have the prescribed title page and must contain the biographical sketch.

The candidate is advised to have these printed copies ready for presentation before the date for the conferring of the degree; otherwise a deposit of $50.00 with the Treasurer of the University must be made. This deposit is returned when the printed copies are presented to the University. If these have not been received within the year specified, the Board of University Studies may declare the deposit forfeited and may apply the amount in printing the dissertation or a part of it.

CONFERRING OF THE DEGREE

The names of the candidates found worthy of the degree will be submitted to the Board of Trustees, and with their approbation the degree will be publicly conferred.

Choice of Subordinate Subjects

The following suggestions are not to be understood as limiting the attention of the student to the subjects directly connected with the requirements for the degree. In order to secure the full benefit of university training, it is often desirable to broaden the outlook through acquaintance with other subjects—especially those that are conterminous with the chosen field of study. It is also important to learn to appreciate the methods and to come under the influence of other personalities than those that dominate the student's special line of work.

In the choice of subordinate subjects to be associated with a principal one, considerable freedom is permitted by the Board of University Studies. Certain combinations have been recognized officially in previous years, and others are admissible.

In the study of any principal subject the knowledge of a limited number of other subjects is, as a rule, essential. If, on entrance, the student is not sufficiently proficient in these, he must follow courses in this university which will give him the requisite knowledge. These courses need not, however, of necessity be offered as first and second subordinates.

In order to guide the student in his selection of subordinate studies, a number of statements are given below in tabular form, which apply to the various departments of study in this university. These statements furnish—

I. In case the student selects a given subject as his principal one—

a. A list of the other subjects an adequate knowledge of which is considered essential.

b. A list of subjects which, in the past, have been accepted as first or second subordinates in connection with the principal subject.

II. In case the student selects a given subject as his subordinate one—

A list of the courses in that department, which are ordinarily considered sufficient.

Mathematics

I. a. While no other subject can be said to be essential to the study of mathematics, it is very desirable that one taking up graduate work should have adequate knowledge of natural sciences, particularly of physics.

b. Physics, Geological Physics, Electricity, Astronomy, History of Philosophy, Psychology.

II. Two or more of the following: Elementary Differential Equations, Theory of Functions, Vector Analysis, Dynamics.

Physics

I. a. Chemistry and Mathematics.

b. Chemistry, Physical Chemistry, Mathematics, Astronomy, Applied Electricity, Geological Physics.

II. Physics 1, 2, or 3, with corresponding laboratory courses, Advanced General Physics, Applied Electricity.

Astronomy

II. Celestial Mechanics, Cosmical Physics, with observatory work.

Chemistry

I. a. Mathematics (through the Calculus), General Physics, Mineralogy, Physical Chemistry.

b. Mathematics, Physics, Mineralogy, Geology, Physical Chemistry, Biology 1.

II. Chemistry 2 or 3, Physical Chemistry, with corresponding laboratory courses.

Geology

I. a. Students who take Geology as their principal subject, are allowed to select courses suitable as a training for general geology and teaching, or those which lead to specialization in Paleontology, Stratigraphic Geology, Petrography, Mineralogy, or Geological Physics. All students are expected to be familiar with the matter given in the elementary or undergraduate courses.

b. (1) Biology, (2) Chemistry, (3) Physics, (4) Petrography, (5) Mineralogy, (6) Paleontology.

Nos. 1-3 may be taken as second subordinates by all students in Geology.

Nos. 4-5 may be taken as a first subordinate by students specializing in Paleontology or Stratigraphic Geology, who are advised to take Biology or Physics as a second subordinate.

No. 6 may be taken as a first subordinate by students specializing in Petrography or Mineralogy, who are advised to take chemistry or physics as a second subordinate.

II. For students in Physics: Geological Physics, Exploratory Surveying, Crystallography—Optical Mineralogy (Geology 1 in part, Advanced Mineralogy in part).

For students in Chemistry: Geology 3 and Economic Geology, Geology 1, Advanced Mineralogy.

For students in Biology: Geology 1 or 2, Paleontology and Paleobotany, Historical Geology.

Zoology

I. a. Two or more of the following: Chemistry, Physics, Botany, Geology, Physiology, Psychology.

b. Botany, Physiology, Geology, Anatomy, Pathology.

II. Biology 1, Biology 2 (Part 1), Biology 3 (Part 1), a graduate course.

Botany

I. a. Physics, Chemistry, General Biology, Zoology.

b. Zoology, Physical or Organic Chemistry, Geology, Physiology, Pathology.

II. An undergraduate course, with laboratory work; one of the graduate courses.

Physiology

I. a. Physics, Chemistry, and Biology.

b. Zoology, Botany, Physics, Chemistry, Physiological Chemistry.

II. Course 4, as on page 180.

Greek

I. a. Latin and English (language and literature).

b. Latin, Comparative Grammar, Sanskrit, English, Semitic, Classical Archæology, Philosophy.

II. Prescribed courses of reading in the chief ranges of Classical Greek literature of greater or less extent for first or second subordinate. Two courses of practical exercises for the first subordinate, one course for the second. Attendance on the Seminary for two years for the first subordinate, one year for the second.

Latin

I. a. Greek and English (language and literature).

b. Greek, Sanskrit and Comparative Philology, Classical Archæology (Greek and Roman), English, a Romance language, a Semitic language, History.

II. Attendance on the Seminary and lectures during two years for the first subordinate subject, one year for the second, in both cases with prescribed courses of reading in Roman literature.

Those who make Latin their principal subject must take Greek as one of their subordinate subjects. They must also follow the regular courses in Latin Epigraphy and Palæography, as well as in the Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European languages.

Classical Archaeology

I. a. Latin and Greek.

b. Latin, Greek, History, Sanskrit and Comparative Philology, Italian or another Romance language.

II. Five hours weekly for two years for the first subordinate; five hours weekly for one year for the second. Prescribed courses of reading.

Those who make Classical Archæology a principal subject are urged to plan for at least a year of residence in Europe, preferably in the American School of Classical Studies at Athens or in the American School of Classical Studies in Rome. For advanced students of Roman Archæology, a reading knowledge of Italian is indispensable.

Sanskrit and Comparative Philology

I. a. Classical or Modern Philology, History, Philosophy.

b. Greek, Latin, Germanic Philology, English, Semitic Philology, Philosophy.

II. For the first subordinate subject, a course in Sanskrit, two lectures a week during two years, and attendance on the Vedic Seminary for a half-year, one hour a week; for the second subordinate subject, a course in Sanskrit, two hours a week during a year and a half.

In no case has a student whose principal subject was Sanskrit and Comparative Philology restricted himself to two subordinate subjects. As a rule Avestan, Lithuanian, Gothic, English, and other subjects figured among his courses, in addition to the principal and the two subordinate subjects.

Oriental Seminary

I. a. For Hebrew as the principal subject—German, Greek, Latin, Arabic, History of the Ancient East, Bib lical Antiquities, Geography of Western Asia.

b. Assyrian, Arabic, Syriac, or Ethiopic, as the first or second subordinate subject; Egyptology, History of the Ancient East, History of Philosophy, Greek, Sanskrit, Philippine languages, as the second subordinate.

II. For Hebrew as first subordinate—Comparative Hebrew Grammar, Hebrew Prose Composition, Old Testament Seminary.

For Hebrew as second subordinate—the second year's course in Hebrew and private reading of at least fifty chapters of the Hebrew Bible.

English

I. a. Gothic, Old High German, Middle High German, Old Norse, Old French, German and French Literature.

b. German, French, Italian, Spanish, Greek, Latin, Sanskrit, History, Philosophy.

II. Courses in the history of the Language and the Literature, and some special work in selected periods or subjects.

German

I. a. English, French, Latin.

b. English, French, Latin, Sanskrit, Spanish, Greek, History of Philosophy, History.

II. German as second subordinate—Courses 1, 2, 5, Seminary in Middle High German, one year's membership in the Germanic Society (or a similar amount of work in German Literature).

German as first subordinate—a combination of the two alternatives indicated above; two years' membership in the Germanic Society.

Romance Languages

I. a. Latin; a reading knowledge of Spanish, or of Italian, if either of these is chosen as the principal subject; an elementary acquaintance with French, Spanish, or Italian history, according to selection of subject.

b. Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, German, English, History, Philosophy.

II. For the first subordinate, Literature (old and modern), Language (old and modern), Physiological Phonetics, Popular Latin, Private Reading.

For the second subordinate, Literature (modern), Language (modern), Private Reading.

History

I. a. Political Economy, Political Science, Latin, French, German.

b. Political Economy, Political Science, Philosophy, English, French.

II. For the second subordinate, lectures, with collateral research, two hours a week for two years, either in European, English, or American history; for first subordinate, four hours a week for two years, with choice in the same subjects.

Political Economy

I. a. History and Political Science.

b. History, Political Science, Philosophy, English, Mathematics, Biology.

II. For the first subordinate, two graduate courses for two years, with prescribed reading; for the second subordinate, two graduate courses for one year, with prescribed reading.

Political Science

I. a. History, Political Economy, and the Principles of Private Law.

b. History, Political Economy, Philosophy, the Principles of Private Law.

II. Two hours' lecture work, with collateral reading, for two years, for the second subordinate; four hours' work for two years for the first subordinate.

Philosophy

The choice of subordinate subjects is made in consultation with the professors. The different branches of the department—Philosophy, Scientific Psychology, and Education—do not lend themselves to a single scheme of subordinate subjects, since wide variations arise in individual cases.

COLLEGIATE INSTRUCTION

The Johns Hopkins University makes ample provision for collegiate instruction. The courses offered to undergraduates are maintained with no less care and thoroughness than those intended for advanced students; many of the most experienced members of the academic staff cooperate in the conduct of them. No small part of the influence and usefulness of the university is in connection with the collegiate classes, in which, since 1876, nearly twenty-one hundred students have been enrolled.

Certain features of organization and administration have contributed to the effectiveness of the undergraduate work. The scrupulous observance of the distinction between the disciplinary methods appropriate to college teaching and the freer methods of advanced instruction; the "group" arrangement of studies, combining a reasonable liberty of choice with a sufficient exercise of authority; the facilities afforded young men of superior capacity for carrying their studies beyond the requirements of graduation; the influence upon younger pupils of the presence of a large body of graduate scholars conducting investigations in all the great departments of learning,—these conditions have proved favorable to the development of earnestness and scholarly devotion.

ARRANGEMENT OF COURSES

Upon admission to the university, an undergraduate student is assigned to an Adviser (see page 186), and under his guidance is expected to select a scheme of studies composed of courses more or less connected. In order to help the student in this selection, five groups of studies are organized, details concerning which are given below. Having once made a choice, a student may not change his group, except with the consent of his Adviser, and with the approval of the Executive Committee of the Board of Collegiate Studies.

In the formation of the groups it is intended to combine such studies as shall give the student the essential elements of a liberal education, and, at the same time, special training in certain coordinate subjects. By this method the student is not bound to a particular routine of work for which he may feel no especial inclination, nor yet is it possible for him to waste his time and attention by the injudicious selection of wholly unrelated subjects. In each group certain studies are prescribed for all students who are candidates for a degree, and certain other studies are peculiar to the individual group.

By reference to the detailed statement of each group given on pages 176-180, it will be seen that the courses of the first two years are prescribed, but that in each of the last two years there are but one or two prescribed studies. In each of these last two years, therefore, a student may, subject to the provisions already noted, elect four courses. With the approval of his Adviser he may select any courses which he is prepared to enter.

The following is a general statement of the characteristic features of each group:

Group I. Ancient Languages

In Group I the emphasis is laid upon Latin and Greek, each of which is studied for at least two years. In the last two years the courses are so arranged that the student may continue the study of these languages; or, if he desires, he may devote himself to the study of History, Modern Languages, or Science.

Group II. Modern Languages

In Group II the study of Latin is continued for two years, but the literary training of the student is based chiefly on the study of English, French, and German, with Spanish and Italian if desired. In the latter years, the courses are arranged so as to permit the student to continue the study of Modern Languages, or to give his attention to History or Science.

Group III. History and Political Economy

In Group III the study of Latin is continued as in Groups I and II, but the student devotes the greater part of his time to History and Political Economy. He may continue these studies during the last two years, or he may take advanced courses in Latin, Modern Languages, or Science.

Group IV. Mathematics and Physics

In Group IV the training of the student is based upon the study of the exact sciences rather than upon language and history. Mathematics and Physics are studied for at least two years, and the student may also follow courses in Chemistry, Biology, or Geology. In the last two years the student may continue the former studies, or he may take advanced courses in Modern Languages and History.

Group V. Chemistry, Biology, and Geology

In Group V the natural sciences form the basis of instruction, being supplemented by the prescribed courses in Modern Languages, History or Political Economy, and Mathematics. In the later years the student may continue the study of Science, or he may devote his attention to Modern Languages or History.

Students who intend to enter the medical department of this university, should choose Group V, and should arrange to pursue the following courses: English, French, and German, each for two years; Mathematics, for two years; Chemistry, for three years; Biology and Physics, each for one year. Other prescribed courses are History or Economics for one year, and Philosophy for one year. These students are advised by the Medical Faculty to arrange their work so that their last year shall include courses in Chemistry and Biology, and, if possible, a course in the Chemistry of the Carbon Compounds.

These courses may be arranged as follows:—First year: Chemistry 1, French 1 or German 1, English Composition 1, Mathematics 1, Physical Training. Second year: English Literature 1, German 1 or French 1, Mathematics 2, Chemistry 2, Vocal Training, and a half-course to be elected. Third year: Physics 1, with laboratory, General History (History 2) or Political Economy, French 2 or German 2, Biology 1, Forensics. Fourth year: Philosophy, German 2 or French 2, Chemistry 3, Biology 2.

It should be noted that, in order to enter the medical department, the degree of Bachelor of Arts is required, and, further, that the conditions for this degree, as stated on pages 184, 185, prescribe at least three courses in one definite subject.

ELECTIVE COURSES

A student may take as an elective any course that he is prepared to enter. In addition to the courses already described under the separate groups, any of which may be chosen, electives are regularly offered in the following subjects:

Latin.
Greek.
Greek and Roman Life.
Classical Archæology.
Sanskrit.
Comparative Philology.
Hebrew.
English and Anglo-Saxon.
French.
German.
Spanish.
Italian.
Mathematics.
Chemistry.
Physical Chemistry.
Physics.
Astronomy.
Zoology.
Botany.
Geology.
History.
Political Economy.
Philosophy.
Psychology.
Drawing.

Before the summer vacation each student is expected to consult his adviser with regard to the electives to be taken in the following academic year.

REQUISITES FOR THE DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF ARTS

As evidence that the collegiate course has been successfully completed, the degree of Bachelor of Arts is conferred at its close. The degree signifies in the case of every recipient, such instruction in ancient and modern languages, in mathematics, in the physical and natural sciences, in literature, philosophy, and history, as is believed to be essential to a liberal education.

Twenty courses are required for graduation, and no combination of studies is accepted which does not include three courses in one subject and two courses in another subject.

All candidates for a degree take the following prescribed courses, which are for one year unless otherwise noted:

Rhetoric.

English Literature.

French.

German.

History or (in Groups IV and V) Political Economy.

Physics.

Mathematics—

In Groups I, II, and III, a half-year.

In Groups IV and V, one year.

Philosophy.

Vocal Training.

Forensics.

Physical Exercises.

A Laboratory Course—

In Groups I, II, and III, Natural History (a half-year).

In Groups IV and V, Chemistry and Physics.

The remaining courses necessary to complete the number required are chosen, subject to the approval of the Adviser, in accordance with the schemes outlined under the several groups.

A student may be admitted to advanced standing, in accordance with the regulations given on page 193, but in all cases the candidate must pursue the last year of his undergraduate course in this institution.

In general, four years of residence are necessary for the completion of the courses required for a degree. A capable student may, however, complete this work in three years. Such a student may (1) anticipate certain of the courses by special examination at entrance;* (2) present himself, at the beginning of an academic year, for examination in a single course, provided the Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing, being satisfied that the student can obtain competent instruction, has authorized him, in advance, to prepare this course during the summer vacation;* (3) take, under certain conditions, in any year of residence except the first, a greater number of courses than is called for in the program; (4) offer nineteen courses for graduation instead of twenty, in accordance with the following provision:

In case a student has an average of not less than 9 for the work of his third year, and has not received a mark as low as 7 for any of his courses since admission to the university, he need offer only nineteen courses for graduation.

A student whose average in his studies for each of his last two years has not been less than 9, and who has not received a mark less than 7.5 in any of his courses during his last three years, shall receive his degree WITH HONOR.

Special students who have been in residence at least two years, and who have completed their work in a satisfactory manner, shall receive a certificate stating the facts and signed by the President of the University.

*Forms of application for these privileges are provided and must be obtained from the Registrar.

COMMITTEES AND ADVISERS

Standing Committees. The Board of Collegiate Studies appoints four standing committees:

1. The Executive Committee, which has charge of such matters pertaining to discipline and general administration as may be delegated to it by the Board of Collegiate Studies.

2. The Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing.

3. The Committee on Scholarships and Honors.

4. The Committee on Assignment of Advisers.

The Dean of the College Faculty is ex officio a member of each of these.

Advisers. When an undergraduate student is admitted to the university, he is assigned to an Adviser by the standing committee charged with this duty, and he will, under ordinary circumstances, remain under the direction of the same Adviser during his whole course. The approval of the Adviser is necessary before the student can enter upon any course of study; no instructor will receive into a class a student who does not bring with him (in a book provided for that purpose) assurance that his Adviser approves his pursuing the study at that time, and no student is allowed, without the consent of his Adviser, to discontinue any work. Each Adviser endeavors to establish relations of friendliness and confidence with the students assigned to his care; he not only gives counsel in regard to the selection of studies, but promotes the welfare of his students in every practicable way.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Those who wish to pursue undergraduate courses in this University, should apply to the Registrar for a blank form of "Application for Admission," which must be filled up and returned to the Registrar one week at least before the time set for the entrance examinations. These examinations are held at the university in June and September of each year.

To accommodate those who wish to take their examinations elsewhere, the university will accept certificates from the College Entrance Examination Board for subjects passed in accordance with its regulations. (See page 195.)

APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION

Those who wish to become candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must present evidence of a satisfactory knowledge of the following subjects:

History.	Greek, or French and German.
English.	Physical Geography, or a Science such as Botany, Chemistry, or Physics.
Latin.
Mathematics.	Free-hand Drawing.

Details of the requirements will be found in the following pages.

To show that he has a satisfactory knowledge of these subjects the applicant must present evidence of two kinds:

1. He must present certified statements of the successful completion of courses in the subjects required. These statements should specify the number of weeks and the number of hours per week that the applicant has given to the study of each subject, and the amount of ground covered in each. The authors read in each language should be specified, and the statement as to science should show that the student did laboratory work.

Blank spaces for these certified statements will be found in the form of "Application for Admission" referred to above, and these should be filled and signed by the teacher under whom the applicant has prepared for college, or by the head of the school.

2. If these statements are satisfactory, the applicant will be admitted to the matriculation examination in Mathematics, History, and the several languages, but will not be required to take an examination in Physical Geography or Science, or in Drawing.

If the statements are unsatisfactory, the Committee on Admission will prescribe such conditions as may be necessary. An applicant who has not had a satisfactory course in Drawing will, if admitted, be required to take the course offered by the university.

Applicants are received without examination from certain schools which have been approved by the Board of Collegiate Studies, provided their "Applications" fully and satisfactorily cover the requirements for admission.

In the case of other schools, and in the case of candidates from approved schools whose certificates are not fully satisfactory, examinations are required, either upon all the subjects necessary for matriculation, or upon selected portions of these subjects, at the discretion of the Committee on Admission.

DIVISION OF THE MATRICULATION EXAMINATIONS

The applicant may pass a part of the examinations one year before his admission to the university and receive credit, under the following conditions:

In his application he must distinctly declare his intention to divide the examinations. The subjects passed will not count towards matriculation unless the applicant offers the remaining subjects within the ensuing year. The first part of the divided examination will be confined to the following subjects, of which the applicant will be expected to pass in the first three at least:

English (a).	French or
Algebra (a).	German.
Latin (a).	History of the United States or
Plane Geometry.	of Greece.
Greek (a).	History of England or of Rome.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MATRICULATION

1. MATHEMATICS.—Algebra; Plane Geometry; Plane Trigonometry.

The requirements in Algebra are as follows:

(a). To Quadratics, including the four fundamental rules, the use of parentheses, factoring, highest common factor, lowest common multiple, complex fractions, equations of the first degree in one or more unknown quantities, and problems leading to such equations, inequalities, radicals, and the use of fractional and negative exponents.

(b). Quadratics and beyond, including quadratic equations in one and two unknown quantities, and problems leading to such equations, the theory of quadratic equations in one unknown quantity, ratio and proportion, the progressions, the elementary treatment of permutations and combinations, the binomial theorem for positive integral exponents, and the use of logarithms.

The subjects required in Plane Geometry and in Trigonometry are those treated in the ordinary text-books.

2. ENGLISH.—The examination consists of two parts:

a. Reading. The candidate will be required to write a paragraph or two on each of several topics chosen by him from a considerable number—perhaps ten or fifteen—set before him in the examination paper. These topics are selected with reference to certain books, a list of which is given below. This part of the examination is designed, primarily, to test the candidate's power of clear and accurate expression, and will call for only a general knowledge of the substance of the books. As additional evidence of preparation, the candidate may present an exercise book, properly certified by his instructor, containing compositions or other written work.

The books prescribed for this part of the examinations are:

In 1910, 1911, and 1912: Group I (two to be selected).

Shakespeare's As You Like It, Henry V, Julius Caesar, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night.

Group II (one to be selected).

Bacon's Essays; Bunyan's The Pilgrim's Progress, Part I; The Sir Roger de Coverley Papers in The Spectator; Franklin's Autobiography.

Group III (one to be selected).

Chaucer's Prologue; Spenser's Faerie Queene (Book I); Pope's The Rape of the Lock; Goldsmith's The Deserted Village; Pal-grave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Books II and III, with especial attention to Dryden, Collins, Gray, Cowper, and Burns.

Group IV (two to be selected).

Goldsmith's The Vicar of Wakefield; Scott's Ivanhoe; Scott's Quentin Durward; Hawthorne's The House of the Seven Gables; Thackeray's Henry Esmond; Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford; Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities; George Eliot's Silas Marner; Blackmore's Lorna Doone.

Group V (one to be selected).

Irving's Sketch Book; Lamb's Essays of Elia; De Quincey's Joan of Arc and The English Mail Coach; Carlyle's The Hero as Poet, The Hero as Man of Letters, and The Hero as King; Emerson's Essays (selected); Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies.

Group VI (two to be selected).

Coleridge's The Ancient Mariner; Scott's The Lady of the Lake; Byron's Mazeppa and The Prisoner of Chillon; Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Book IV, with special attention to Wordsworth, Keats, and Shelley; Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome; Poe's Poems; Lowell's The Vision of Sir Launfal; Arnold's Sohrab and Rustum; Longfellow's The Courtship of Miles Standish; Tennyson's Gareth and Lynette, Lancelot and Elaine, and The Passing of Arthur; Browning's Cavalier Tunes, The Lost Leader, How They Brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix, Evelyn Hope, Home Thoughts from Abroad, Home Thoughts from the Sea, Incident of the French Camp, The Boy and the Angel, One Word More, Hervé Riel, Pheidippides.

In 1912, Tennyson's The Princess will be substituted for the three Idylls of the King.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

b. Study and Practice. This part of the examination presupposes the careful study of each of the works named below. The examination will be upon subject-matter, form, and structure, and will also test the candidate's ability to express his knowledge with clearness and accuracy.

The books set for this part of the examination are:

In 1910, 1911, and 1912: Shakespeare's Macbeth; Milton's L'Allegro, Il Penseroso, and Comus; Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America, or Washington's Farewell Address and Webster's First Bunker Hill Oration; Macaulay's Life of Johnson, or Carlyle's Essay on Burns.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

In connection with the reading and study of the required books, parallel or subsidiary reading should be encouraged, and a considerable amount of English poetry should be memorized. The essentials of English grammar should not be neglected in preparatory study.

No candidate will be accepted in English whose work is notably defective in spelling, punctuation, idiom, or division into paragraphs.

Although candidates will be permitted to take the entire examination at the time of entrance, it is strongly recommended that Part a be taken as a preliminary examination and Part b as a final examination. Candidates will thus have an opportunity to make up deficiencies which may be discovered at the preliminary examination, and to enter the University without a condition in English.

3. HISTORY.—The outlines of the History of England and the United States, or of the History of Greece and Rome, and the outlines of the geography of these countries.

4. LATIN.—A systematic course of instruction extending over four school years at least is presupposed. The applicants should have read the following texts:*

Cæsar, at least four books.
Cicero, at least six orations.
Vergil, at least six books.
Ovid, at least one thousand lines.

The examination includes three elements:

(a) Latin Grammar (both forms and syntax), based on Cæsar, Gallic War, Book I, and Cicero, Orations against Catiline, I, II, and III.

(b) Translation into English of Latin prose and verse, together with questions suggested by the text, including questions on prosody. A part of the translation will be at sight, and, in all translations, simple, idiomatic English will be required.

(c) Translation into Latin of a passage of easy, connected English prose.

In case the examination is divided, as provided for on page 188, (a) should be offered at the preliminary examination.

The following requirements in Latin will go into effect in 1911:

I. Amount and Range of the Reading Required—

1. The Latin reading required of candidates for admission to college, without regard to the prescription of particular authors and works, shall be not less in amount than Cæsar, Gallic War, LIV; Cicero, the orations against Catiline, for the Manilian Law, and for Archias; Vergil, Aeneid, I-VI.

2. The amount of reading specified above shall be selected by the schools from the following authors and works: Cæsar (Gallic War and Civil War) and Nepos (Lives); Cicero (orations, letters, and De Senectute) and Sallust (Catiline and Jugurthine War); Vergil (Bucolics, Georgics, and Aeneid) and Ovid (Metamorphoses, Fasti, and Tristia).

II. Subjects and Scope of the Examinations—

1. Translation at Sight. Candidates will be examined in translation at sight of both prose and verse. The vocabulary, constructions, and range of ideas of the passages set will be suited to the preparation secured by the reading indicated above.

*These requirements are for June and September, 1910.

2. Prescribed Reading. Candidates will be examined also upon the following prescribed reading: Cicero, orations for the Manilian Law and for Archias, and Vergil, Aeneid, I, II, and either IV or VI at the option of the candidate, with questions on subject-matter, literary and historical allusions, and prosody. Every paper in which passages from the prescribed reading are set for translation will contain also one or more passages for translation at sight; and candidates must deal satisfactorily with both these parts of the paper, or they will not be given credit for either part.

3. Grammar and Composition. The examinations in grammar and composition will demand thorough knowledge of all regular inflections, all common irregular forms, and the ordinary syntax and vocabulary of the prose authors read in school, with ability to use this knowledge in writing simple Latin prose. The words, constructions, and range of ideas called for in the examination in composition will be such as are common in the reading of the year, or years, covered by the particular examination.

5. GREEK.—A systematic course of instruction extending over three school years at least is presupposed. The applicant should have read the following texts:

Xenophon, Anabasis, at least four books.

Homer, Iliad, at least four books, or Odyssey, at least six books.

The examination includes three elements:

(a) Greek Grammar (both forms and syntax), based largely on Xenophon's Anabasis. Books I and II.

(b) Translation into English of Attic prose and of Homer, together with questions suggested by the text, including questions on Homeric life and the prosody of the Homeric poems. A part of the translation will be at sight, and in all translations simple, idiomatic English will be required.

(c) Translation into Greek (with accents) of a passage of easy, connected English prose.

In case the examination is divided, as provided for on page 188, (a) should be offered at the preliminary examination.

Applicants not offering Greek must meet the following requirements in French and German:

6. FRENCH.—The requirements in French presuppose a systematic course extending over at least two school years, at the end of which time the student should be able to pronounce French accurately, to read at sight easy French prose, to put into French simple English sentences taken from the language of every-day life or based upon a portion of the French text read, and to answer questions on the rudiments of French grammar. The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Questions on the elements of French grammar, including the inflection of adjectives, participles, and pronouns; the conjugation of verbs; the use of personal pronouns, common adverbs, prepositions, and conjugations; the order of words in the sentence; and the elementary rules of syntax.

(b) The translation into French of short sentences illustrative of the rules of grammar, and of a short paragraph based on a French text given. In place of the translation of this paragraph, the candidate may substitute an original exercise in French on a subject set by the examiner.

(c) The translation, at sight, of easy French prose.

(d) An oral exercise in pronunciation.

The candidate should have read from 400 to 500 pages of French prose taken from the texts edited for elementary use, as listed by the leading publishers; especially those of the works of About, Bruno, Dumas, Erckmann-Chatrian, Halévy, Laboulaye, Labiche and Martin, Malot, Sand, and Verne. Grammars recommended are Frazer and Squair's, Part I, Longman's, Chardenal's Complete French Course, and Perry and Reum's French Book.

7. GERMAN.—The requirements in German presuppose at least two years of school work under approved methods, with four recitations weekly, and the reading of a minimum of 300 pages of easy dialogue and narrative prose.

Candidates are expected to give particular attention to pronunciation, to the acquisition of an elementary German vocabulary, and to an accurate knowledge of the rudiments of German grammar, in quantity corresponding to Vos's Essentials of German.

The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Translation at sight of passages of simple dialogue and narrative prose. Help will be given on unusual words and constructions.

(b) Questions on grammatical forms and syntax. These will, as a rule, be based upon the passages assigned for translation.

(c) Translation into German of easy English from the language of every-day life. In addition, a brief rendering of English into German, based on the passages described under (a), may be required.

Selections may be made from such texts as the following:

Baumbach, Sommermärchen, Der Schwiegersohn. Benedix, Eigensinn, Der Prozess. Gerstäcker, Germelshausen. Hauff, Das kalte Herz. Heyse, L'Arrabbiata. Riehl, Burg Neideck. Saar, Die Steinklopfer. Seidel, Leberecht Hühnchen. Stifter, Das Haidedorf. Storm, Immensee, In St. Jürgen. Sudermann, Teja. Wildenbruch, Das edle Blut, Der Letzte.

APPLICANTS FOR ADVANCED STANDING

A student may be admitted to advanced standing at entrance by passing the necessary examinations. Forms of application for this privilege and all necessary information may be obtained from the Registrar. Under ordinary circumstances a student is not allowed to an- ticipate at entrance more than two courses, which may be first-year courses in languages (except English) and in mathematics.

A student entering from another college of good standing may be credited with work done there, provided he submits certificates satisfactory to the Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing.

SPECIAL STUDENTS

The university is ready to receive as special students those who are qualified by age, character, attainments, and habits of study, to attend its classes and lectures with profit to themselves and the institution. Such persons may be admitted, without matriculation, to a limited number of undergraduate courses; but the privilege once accorded will be forfeited if the student is found unworthy of it.

The requirements for admission as a special student are that the applicant shall pass such examinations, and shall present such other evidence of fitness to pursue the desired courses as may in each case be required by the Committee on Admission. Unless excused for some definite reason, the applicant will be required to satisfy the matriculation requirements in English, in French or German, and in either Latin or Mathematics. In the past, many excellent students have been thus enrolled, among whom not a few have subsequently changed their plans, passed the matriculation examinations, and at length received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Admission on these terms will not be granted unless the applicant be of some maturity, of serious intent, and of proved ability, and can satisfy the Committee on Admission that there are valid grounds for admitting him without full matriculation. A student cannot be admitted as a special student merely on the ground that he is unable to meet the full matriculation requirements.

College Entrance Examination Board

The College Entrance Examination Board holds examinations at numerous places in the country about the third week of June in each year, information in regard to which may be obtained by addressing The College Entrance Examination Board, Post Office Sub-Station 84, New York.

These examinations, if passed with a mark of not less than 60%, will be accepted for admission, in accordance with the following scheme of equivalents:

II. FACULTY OF MEDICINE

Terms of Admission

The courses in medicine given in this university are planned for the professional education of those students who have been especially fitted to receive instruction by a course of preliminary training in the liberal arts, and especially in those branches of science, like physics, chemistry, and biology, which underlie the medical sciences. Men and women are admitted upon the same terms.

The following classes of students are received as candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine:

1. Those who have completed the chemical-biological course in this university (Group V) leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

2. Graduates of approved colleges or scientific schools who can furnish evidence: (a) That they have acquaintance with Latin and a reading knowledge of French and German; (b) That they have such knowledge of physics, chemistry, and biology as may be obtained by a year's course in these subjects when accompanied by laboratory work.

In biology the candidate, in addition to lectures and recitations, should have followed for at least a year a laboratory course of six or more hours a week in the structure, life-history, and vital activities of selected types of animal and vegetable life. Courses in botany or zoology will be accepted, provided the laboratory work has been adequate. It is desirable also that candidates should have taken a laboratory course in embryology.

The candidate should have followed a course in general chemistry for at least a year. This course should include laboratory work, about five hours a week through the year, and lectures and class-room work covering the outlines of inorganic chemistry and the elements of organic chemistry. A good knowledge of the subject as presented in Remsen's "Introduction to the Study of Chemistry" may be regarded as the minimum requirement. A fuller knowledge of chemistry is desirable.

In physics, the candidate should have followed a collegiate course for at least one year. This should include four hours a week of class-room work and at least one afternoon a week of quantitative work in the laboratory. Special attention should be given to theoretical mechanics and to the mechanical and electrical experiments.

In Latin the candidate should have studied Latin grammar and should possess at least such knowledge of the language as may be acquired by reading four books of Cæsar or their equivalent.

3. Those who give evidence by examination that they possess the general education implied by a degree in arts or in science from an approved college or scientific school, and the knowledge of French, German, Latin, physics, chemistry, and biology above indicated.

Applicants for admission will receive blanks to be filled out relating to their previous courses of study. They are required to furnish certificates from officers of the colleges or scientific schools in which they have studied, as to the courses pursued in physics, chemistry, and biology. If the certificates are satisfactory, no examination in these subjects will be required from those who possess a degree in arts or in science from an approved college or scientific school.

Hearers and special workers, not candidates for a degree, will be received at the discretion of the Faculty.

ADMISSION TO ADVANCED STANDING

Applicants for admission to advanced standing must furnish evidence (1) that the foregoing terms of admission as regards preliminary training have been fulfilled, (2) that courses equivalent in kind and amount to those given here preceding that year of the course for admission to which application is made, have been satisfactorily completed, and (3) must pass examinations, at the beginning of the session in October, in all the subjects that have been already pursued by the class to which admission is sought. Certificates of standing elsewhere cannot be accepted in place of these examinations.

General Plan of Instruction

The course of instruction is planned for those who have received a liberal education and the training in physics, chemistry, and general biology which has been specified. The required period of study for the degree of Doctor of Medicine is four years. The academic year begins on the first of October and ends about the middle of June. There are short recesses at Christmas and Easter.

The first two years of the course are devoted mainly to the fundamental medical sciences, a large part of the time being spent in practical work in the laboratories. In the last two years, medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and the various specialties are studied in the clinical laboratories, the dispensary, and the wards of the hospital.

Throughout the four years' course an opportunity is given to elect special courses. In each year a certain number of courses are required, but, in addition, the student must select from a group of electives enough work to make up from twenty-five to thirty hours of work a week.

The principal required studies of the first year are anatomy (including normal histology), physiology, and physiological chemistry. The study of anatomy and physiology is continued in the second year. During the second year general pathology, pathological anatomy, and pharmacology are studied. A practical course in bacteriology, with the chief emphasis upon its hygienic and pathological bearings, is given during three months of this year.

Upon the basis of thorough training in the medical sciences, pursued during the first two years of the course, the student should be well fitted to undertake the study of practical medicine and surgery.

During the third year the general principles of medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and gynecology are studied, and clinical instruction is given in these subjects and in nervous diseases. The study of certain special branches of medicine is also begun. Leading features of the work of this year are the courses in the clinical laboratories and practical work in the dispensary.

During the fourth year the practical study of medicine and surgery is continued, and instruction is given in the various special branches of medicine and surgery, viz.: dermatology, genito-urinary diseases, orthopedic surgery, laryngology and rhinology, ophthalmology and otology, pediatrics, and psychiatry. In this year the students serve as clinical clerks and surgical dressers in the wards of the hospital and are in daily attendance at special classes in the dispensary. They also have an opportunity to take various elective courses which are described specifically in the catalogue of the medical department. For the ward and dispensary work the class is divided into small groups.

Instruction in hygiene, medical zoology, forensic medicine, and medical history is provided during the course.

Work in the dissecting room, in the laboratory, and at the bedside, demonstrations, clinics, lectures, and recitations are the main features of the methods of instruction. Simple didactic lectures occupy a subsidiary position, as compared with instruction by recitations and demonstrations and especially by practical work in the various laboratories, in the hospital wards, and in the dispensary. In consequence of the high standard of admission, the classes are not likely to be excessively large, and abundant opportunity is therefore afforded for practical work for each student and for personal contact between teacher and student.

Courses for Graduates in Medicine

Courses of instruction for graduates in medicine are given throughout the year. These courses are in Anatomy, Histology and Organology, Pathology, Bacteriology, Pharmacology and Toxicology, Physiology, Neurology, Neurological Technique, Embryology, Physiological Chemistry, Clinical Microscopy, Medicine, Pediatrics, Obstetrics, Gynecological Pathology, Surgical Pathology, Operative Surgery, Orthopedic Surgery, Genito-Urinary Surgery, X-Ray Diagnosis and Therapeutics, Cystoscopy, and Ophthalmology and Otology. The instruction is intended to meet the requirements of practitioners of medicine, and is almost wholly of a practical character. It includes laboratory courses, demonstrations, bedside teaching, and clinics in the wards, dispensary, amphitheatre, and operating rooms of the hospital.

Detailed statements as to the courses of instruction and other information are given in the annual Catalogue and Announcement, which will be sent upon application to the Registrar of the school.

ENDOWED PROFESSORSHIPS AND LECTURESHIPS

The Baxley Professorship

By the will of Dr. Henry Willis Baxley, of Baltimore, who died March 13, 1876, a sum of money, amounting to $23,836.52, was received by the Trustees of the University to endow any medical professorship that they might think proper. This fund was kept intact and allowed to accumulate until it had reached the sum of $50,000. In 1901, the Trustees directed that the fund be set apart as a partial endowment of the Professorship of Pathology in the University, to be known as the Baxley Professorship of Pathology. The first incumbent is Dr. William H. Welch.

The Caroline Donovan Professorship

Mrs. Caroline Donovan, of Baltimore, gave to the University in November, 1889, shortly before her death, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars to establish a professorship of English literature. The first incumbent is Dr. James W. Bright, who was designated Caroline Donovan Professor of English Literature in 1905. During the intervening years courses of lectures were given by resident and non-resident scholars devoted to study in this field.

The Percy Turnbull Memorial Lectureship

On May 6, 1889, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Turnbull, of Baltimore, founded a lectureship in memory of their son, Percy Graeme Turnbull, their purpose being to enable the University to offer an annual course of lectures on poetry by a lecturer to be chosen by the President of the University from among "properly qualified authors, writers, or professors of America or Europe." At present the sum of $1,000 is provided annually. Sixteen courses have been given on this foundation, the first in 1891. The list of lecturers includes Edmund C. Stedman, Richard C. Jebb, Charles Eliot Norton, George Adam Smith, Ferdinand Brunetière, and other foreign and American scholars of distinction.

The Herter Lectureship

Dr. and Mrs. Christian A. Herter, of New York, gave to the University in November, 1902, the sum of $25,000 "for the formation of a memorial lectureship designed to promote a more intimate knowledge of the researches of foreign investigators in the realm of medical science." The income of the lectureship is $1,000. According to the terms of the gift, some eminent worker in physiology or pathology is to be asked each year to lecture at the University upon a subject with which he has been identified. The selection of the lecturer is to be left to a committee representing the departments of pathology, physiological chemistry and clinical medicine, and if "in the judgment of the committee it should ultimately appear desirable to open the proposed lectureship to leaders in medical research in this country there should be no bar to so doing." Four courses have been given on this foundation, beginning in 1904. The lecturers were Paul Ehrlich, of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Hans H. Meyer, of Vienna, Almroth E. Wright, of London, and Edward A. Schäfer, of Edinburgh.

The James Schouler Lectureship

In March, 1908, Dr. James Schouler, of Boston, who had lectured in this University annually since 1891, announced his purpose to found a permanent lectureship in the University, to be known as "The James Schouler Lectureship of History and Political Science." It is expected that the endowment of the lectureship will eventually be $25,000. The donor expressed the wish that "such lectures be given annually if possible, * * * and that persons of promise or prominence be selected to lecture, who are capable of interesting as well as instructing an audience." The lectureship was inaugurated in April, 1909, by Abbott Lawrence Lowell, President (elect) of Harvard University; the second lecturer (in 1910) was George Walter Prothero, of London.

The Albert Shaw Lectureship

Dr. Albert Shaw, of New York, a graduate of this University, gives annually the sum of $250 as the honorarium of a lecturer on Diplomatic History. The lectures are given before the advanced students of history and political science, and ten courses have been delivered, beginning in 1898. The lecturers, with two exceptions, have been alumni of the University.

In January, 1904, the Trustees decreed that certain chairs should bear the names of leading contributors to the Endowment Fund of 1902, as memorials of their liberality. In pursuance of this action four professorships have been thus designated: The B. N. Baker Professorship of Chemistry; the Francis White Professorship of Greek; the W. W. Spence Professorship of Semitic Languages; the Henry Walters Professorship of Zoology.

THE JOHNSTON SCHOLARSHIPS

These scholarships, of which there are three, known as the Henry E. Johnston Scholarship, the James Buchanan Johnston Scholarship, and the Henry E. Johnston, Jr. Scholarship, were founded by Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston, of Washington, formerly of Baltimore, in memory of her husband and her two sons. They are awarded annually by the Trustees on the recommendation of the Academic Council. The stipend of each scholarship is the income of thirty thousand dollars. They are offered primarily to young men who have given evidence of the power of independent research. The holders of the scholarships will be expected to devote themselves to study and research in their chosen subjects, though they may be required to do some teaching. Each one will be designated as the "Holder of the ..... Johnston Scholarship."

Regulations

Candidates for the Johnston Scholarships must make application, in writing, to the President of the University before the first of April. The applications must be accompanied by such evidence of the candidates' fitness as they may be able to present. The President will refer the papers to the Academic Council, by whom the nominations will be made to the Board of Trustees at their meeting in May.

Holders of the scholarships may not engage in teaching elsewhere.

The scholars will be appointed for one year; but, if their work should prove satisfactory, they will generally be reappointed.

FELLOWSHIPS

Fellowships by Courtesy

The Academic Council may, at their descretion, by special vote, enroll as Fellows by Courtesy—

(a) Gentlemen who are, or who have been, teachers in colleges and other like institutions, and who wish, for brief periods, to avail themselves of the opportunities here afforded for study and for the use of books and laboratories.

(b) Holders of fellowships in other colleges, during their residence here.

(c) Those who have been fellows of this university and desire to continue in residence.

Fellows by Courtesy will not be exempt from the payment of fees, except by a special vote.

University Fellowships

Twenty fellowships, each yielding five hundred dollars but not exempting the holder from the charges for tuition, are annually awarded.

The system of fellowships was instituted for the purpose of affording to young men of talent from any place an opportunity of continuing their studies in the Johns Hopkins University, while looking forward to positions as professors, teachers, and investigators, or to other literary and scientific vocations. The fellowships are given to young men who wish to follow systematically through the year the instructions of the teachers here engaged, and those who are appointed are expected to proceed to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. The appointments are made not merely in recognition of good work already done, but as aids and incentives to good work in the future; in other words, the fellowships are not so much honors and prizes bestowed for past achievements, as helps to further progress and stepping-stones to honorable intellectual careers. They are not offered to those who are definitely looking forward to the practice of any one of the three learned professions (though such persons are not formally excluded from the competition), but are bestowed almost exclusively on young men desirous of becoming teachers of science and literature, or of devoting their lives to special branches of learning which lie outside of the ordinary studies of the lawyer, the physician, and the minister.

Each candidate is expected to submit his college diploma or other certificate of proficiency from the institution where he has been taught, with recommendations from those who are qualified to speak of his character and attainments. But this is only introductory. He must also submit orally or in writing, such evidence of his past success in study and of his plans for the future, together with such examples of his literary or scientific work, as will enable the professors to judge of his fitness for the post. The examination is, indeed, in a certain sense competitive, but not with uniform tests, nor by formal questions submitted to the candidates. First, the head of a given department considers, with such counsel as he may command, the applicant's record. The professors then collectively deliberate on the nominations made by individual members of their body. The list upon which they agree, with the reasons for it, is finally submitted by the President of the University to the Executive Committee, and by them to the Trustees for final registration and appointment. By all these precautions the highest results which were anticipated have been secured. A company of most promising students has been brought together, and their ability as teachers and scholars has been recognized by calls they have received to permanent and desirable posts in various parts of the country.

The number of applications for fellowships has hitherto been very large, and it may have happened that some candidates have failed of appointment who were really superior to those selected. But if so, this has resulted from the fact that a considerable number of applicants have each year forwarded to the university merely testimonials from their instructors, without examples of their own work, and, in consequence, the professors, from want of adequate knowledge, have possibly passed over candidates who may have been in the highest degree meritorious.

The applicants are notified of the result by means of a printed list of the successful candidates.

The absence of candidates from Baltimore has been no bar to their appointment, in cases where adequate evidence of their claims has been presented; but it is obvious, from the nature of the case, that graduate students residing in Baltimore must have better opportunities than others of making their powers known to the appointing board, and during the last few years the number of persons appointed, who had not previously been resident here, is very small.

REGULATIONS

1. The application must be made prior to May 1, in writing, addressed to the President of the University, and he will refer the papers to the Academic Council, by whom the nominations will be made to the Board of Trustees, at their meeting in June. There is no prescribed form of application.

2. The candidate must give evidence of a liberal education, such as the diploma of a college of good repute; of decided proclivity towards a special line of study, such as an example of some scientific or literary work already performed; and of upright character, such as a testimonial from some instructor.

3. The value of each fellowship is five hundred dollars. The holder is not exempt from the charges for tuition. In case of resignation, promotion, or removal from the fellowship, payments will be made for the time during which the office shall have been actually held.

4. Every holder of a fellowship will be expected to perform such duties as may be allotted to him in connection with his course of study, to act when called upon as an examiner or as moderator in the examination room, to give all his influence for the promotion of scholarship and good order, and in general to co-operate in upholding the efficiency of the university, as circumstances may suggest. He must reside in Baltimore during the academic year.

5. He will be expected to devote his time to the prosecution of special studies (not professional), under the direction of the head of the department to which he belongs, and before the close of the year to give evidence of progress by the preparation of a thesis, the completion of a research, the delivery of a lecture, or by some other method.

6. He may give instruction, with the approval of the President, by lectures or otherwise, to persons connected with the university, but he may not engage in teaching elsewhere.

7. He may be reappointed at the end of the year, but only for exceptional reasons.

8. Usually not more than two fellows will be appointed in any department of study.

9. As these fellowships are awarded as honors, those who are disposed, for the benefit of others, or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list.

Adam T. Bruce Fellowship

This fellowship was founded in 1887 by the mother of Adam T. Bruce, Ph. D., late fellow and instructor in this university, as a memorial of her son, and is awarded annually. It is bestowed by the appointing board upon the candidate whom they consider most likely to promote biological science, and especially animal morphology, by original research. The stipend is the income of the Adam T. Bruce Fellowship endowment of ten thousand dollars. Preference is given to those who have already held fellowships in the Johns Hopkins University.

The electors consist of the President of the University, the chief instructor in animal morphology, the chief instructor in animal physiology, and a non-resident member annually chosen by the resident electors.

REGULATIONS

Candidates for the Bruce Fellowship must make application, in writing, to the President of the Johns Hopkins University before the first of April. They must forward to the President, at the same time, such evidence of their qualifications for appointment as they desire to be considered by the electors, who may require any candidate to appear before them in person.

The Bruce Fellow shall devote his time to study and research in biology at a place approved of by the President of the university, and he shall, during the month of February in the year of his tenture of the fellowship, send to the President a written statement of the scientific work accomplished by him since his appointment.

The tenure of the fellowship shall commence on the first of September.

Two hundred and fifty dollars shall be paid to the Fellow on October 1, and the remainder at convenient intervals during the tenure of the fellowship.

The holder shall not be more than thirty years of age at the date of his election.

The Bruce Fellow may be re-elected, but not oftener than twice, and he shall be exempt from charges for tuition.

The electors shall have the power to declare the fellowship vacant, if its holder prove, in their opinion, unworthy; and no further stipend shall be paid to such person.

WILLIAM S. RAYNER FELLOWSHIP

The Rayner Fellowship was founded by Mrs. Bertha Rayner Frank and Mr. Albert W. Rayner, of Baltimore, to perpetuate in this university the name of their father, Mr. William S. Rayner, who had made unusual attainments in the Hebrew language and was interested in the promotion of Semitic studies. The gift amounted to ten thousand dollars, and the income is available for a fellowship, which is bestowed annually by the Academic Council upon an advanced student in the department of Semitic Languages.

SCHOLARSHIPS

University Scholarships

For the encouragement of scholarships among those who have taken the baccalaureate degree and wish to continue their studies here, a number of University Scholarships are annually bestowed, as stated below:

1. Fifteen scholarships are open about the first of January to graduates of this or of other institutions, who have been studying here during the previous part of the session. Those who wish to be candidates must make formal application to the President, stating where they have been previously trained and what studies they have pursued in this university. He will appoint a committee of five to consider the applications, and, with the aid of such evidence as may be obtained, to make nominations to the Board of University Studies.

2. These scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition and are tenable for one year. They do not carry exemption from laboratory fees.

3. They are awarded as honors, and those who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, or who are desirous of studying elsewhere, may do so and still have their names retained on the honor list. Those who receive the emolument will be expected to pursue their studies exclusively in this university.

4. The Board will reserve appointments, if worthy candidates do not offer.

Hopkins Scholarships

In the will of the founder of this university, his Trustees are requested to "establish, from time to time, such number of free scholarships in said university as may be judicious, and to distribute the said scholarships among such candidates from the States of Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina, as may be most deserving of choice, because of their character and intellectual promise, and to educate the young men so chosen free of charge."

Forty-six such scholarships, entitling the holders to free tuition, are now offered to students from the three States named.

Students can be recognized as candidates only when actual residents of the State from which they desire to be appointed, during at least the year next preceding their enrolment in the university. If the appointing board is not sure as to the legal residence of any candidate, the point in question shall be determined by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

These scholarships are all bestowed for merit, and are tenable for the year subsequent to the appointment, the holders being re-eligible.

Successful candidates who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list. The scholarships may be forfeited, because of frequent or prolonged absence, defective scholarship, or unworthy conduct.

Scholarships made vacant by resignation, by forfeiture, or by the non-appearance of worthy candidates at the regular times of selection, may be bestowed by the appointing board, at their discretion, upon other candidates who are found worthy, provided that the principles of this foundation are not departed from.

Holders of scholarships are not exempt from laboratory fees.

Hopkins Scholars from Maryland

These scholars are appointed by the Board of Collegiate Studies, in accordance with the following regulations:

1. Four scholarships are open, at the beginning of the session, to those who have just completed their matriculation examination, and who stand best in a subsequent special examination in Mathematics, Latin, and Greek (or French and German), as required for matriculation.

2. Four are awarded in June to matriculated students whose records in the studies of the first year are most creditable. By "studies of the first year" is meant either the studies laid down for the first year in one of the regular groups, or such other studies, equivalent in amount, as may be approved of by the Committee on Scholarships and Honors.

3. Four are awarded for excellence in the studies of the second year, upon the same terms as in the case of the first year, provided that the candidate shall have absolved the "studies of the first year" as above defined.

4. Four are awarded for excellence in the studies of the third year upon the same terms as in the case of the second year, provided that the candidate shall have absolved the studies of the first and second years.

Hopkins Scholars from North Carolina and Virginia

Fifteen Hopkins Scholarships are awarded by the Academic Council to students from Virginia, and fifteen to students from North Carolina, who have already received a creditable baccalaureate degree or its equivalent. In case the entire number of scholarships is not required for graduate students, those that remain may be awarded to undergraduates, in the order of their merit. Applications, in writing, must be filed at the President's office prior to June 1.

WASHINGTON SCHOLARSHIPS

The Trustees offer to residents of the District of Columbia two scholarships, yielding free tuition. These, like the Hopkins Scholarships, are awarded to undergraduate students for merit, do not carry exemption from laboratory fees, and are tenable for one year, the holders being eligible for re-appointment.

Woodyear Scholarships

Mrs. William E. Woodyear, of Baltimore, gave to the Trustees in 1893, as a memorial of her husband, the sum of ten thousand dollars, in order to provide for the annual bestowal of five scholarships, of one hundred dollars each, under such conditions as the Trustees may from time to time prescribe. At present they are awarded to young men who are known to the President of the University to be in need of pecuniary assistance, and who, at the same time, have given evidence of character and ability.

Maryland Scholarships

Twenty "Maryland Scholarships" are annually offered to residents of this State. They entitle the holders to free tuition, but do not carry exemption from laboratory fees. The scholarships are for the benefit of all parts of the State, and, accordingly, not more than one-half the number are awarded to residents of the city of Baltimore, and not more than one-half to those who are already members of the university. The appointing board consists of the President of the Board of Trustees, the President of the University, and the Dean of the College Faculty. The usual entrance examinations must be passed by the candidate, who must make application in accordance with a prescribed form; this must be accompanied by testimonials certifying to the applicant's character and pecuniary need. Students already in residence must apply before June 1; newly-entering students about October 1.

PRIZES

The John Marshall Prize

This prize was established in 1891 by a lady living in New England. It consists of a bronze replica of a likeness of Chief Justice Marshall, and is awarded annually by the Academic Council to that graduate of the Johns Hopkins University who has made within the year the most valuable contribution to historical or political science.

The Henrico Medallion

This prize is the gift (made in 1902) of the Colonial Dames of America, Chapter I, and consists of a copper medallion bas-relief commemorating the foundation of a university at Henrico, in Virginia, in the year 1619. It is bestowed in alternate years upon a graduate or student of the Johns Hopkins University, not more than ten years after his receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts, as a recognition of special excellence in early American History.

The Tocqueville Medal

The Tocqueville medal is annually given to the Johns Hopkins University by the Baron Pierre de Coubertin, of Paris, and is offered by the university to that student who shall have written the best essay on some subject illustrating any phase of French History, political or social, from 1815 to 1890, or a review of some imporant historical work published in France since 1890. The medal is given in honor of the illustrious Frenchman, Alexis de Tocqueville (1805-1859), author of the well-known historical and political studies, "Ancien Régime" and Démocratie en Amérique." The conditions of the award may be learned at the office of the University.

The Sylvester Prize

The Sylvester Prize is the gift of several Baltimore gentlemen, and is offered to advanced students of mathematics as a reward for original research. It consists of a medallion likeness of Professor J. J. Sylvester, the first professor of mathematics in this university.

The Severn Teackle Wallis Memorial Prize

The Severn Teackle Wallis Memorial Prize was established in 1905 by the Wallis Memorial Association of Baltimore. It consists of about fifty dollars in money, and is offered to an undergraduate or a graduate student of the University for an essay on some subject connected with Spanish Literature or History, or for some original work done in either of said subjects.

The Adams Prizes and Medal

The Trustees set aside annually the sum of fifty dollars for the purchase of books to be awarded as prizes to the undergraduates who are successful in the annual public debate between members of the two higher classes. These prizes, which were originally offered by the late Professor Herbert B. Adams, are known as the Adams Prizes.

A gold medal known as the Adams Medal is also awarded annually to the best speaker in the public contest participated in by members of the second-year undergraduate class.

TUITION FEES AND EXPENSES

A. In the Philosophical Department

Tuition Fees

The charge for tuition is one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, payable at the Treasurer's office in semi-annual instalments, October 1 and February 1. There is no extra charge for instruction in any department of study, or for the use of the library and reading-room.

Gymnasium Fee

A gymnasium fee of five dollars per annum is charged to every undergraduate during his residence in the university, and the money thus acquired is devoted to defraying the expenses of the University Athletic Association. Graduate students who use the gymnasium are also required to pay this fee.

Fees are charged, as below stated, for registration, for material consumed in the laboratories, and for diplomas.

No deduction is made at the Treasurer's office because of absence for a period of less than half a year, or because a student gives only a part of his time to study, or because he belongs to but one class. Prompt payment of fees is required.

Registration Fee and Caution Money

Every student is required at entrance to pay a registration fee of five dollars and deposit ten dollars as caution money, the latter being repaid to him when he leaves the university, if there are no charges against him.

Fees for Limited Attendance

Persons engaged in other pursuits—such as clergymen, lawyers, physicians, teachers,*—who are able to give only a portion of their time to study, and who are prepared to follow graduate courses, are permitted to attend certain courses of lectures, not exceeding five weekly, or to work in a scientific laboratory (without attendance on lectures) at such times as may be arranged with the Director thereof, on the payment, at entrance, of fifty dollars for the year, besides the registration fee and caution money. For a course of lectures not exceeding five weekly, with accompanying laboratory work, the fee is seventy-five dollars per annum.

Laboratory Charges

In Chemistry: For undergraduates and for graduates who take Chemistry as a subordinate subject, twenty-four dollars a year; for graduates and special students following Chemistry as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

In Physics: For students who work two afternoons a week, twenty-four dollars a year; for those who take Physics as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

In Biology: For undergraduates and for graduates who take Zoology or Physiology as a subordinate subject, twenty-four dollars a year for graduates and special students following a biological science as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

*Teachers in the public and private schools of Maryland—who are candidates for a degree and who are prepared to follow courses corresponding, in general, to those offered to undergraduate students,—may be received on the payment of ten dollars for a course of one hour a week, twenty dollars for a course of two hours a week, etc., as explained in a special circular to be obtained from the Registrar of the University. Such persons will not be regarded as members of the University.

In Geology: Ten dollars a year; for a half-year, one-half of this amount.

Students taking courses in Geology are expected to take part in a series of excursions, and to pay their personal expenses, which will, however, in no case amount to more than $14.00.

In all the laboratories, a charge is made for breakage and for apparatus not returned in good condition.

Fellows by Courtesy and others who have the privileges of guests in the various laboratories, are expected to pay the usual laboratory charges.

Doctors of Philosophy of this university who desire to remain for a time in the university after having received their diplomas, may do so without charge for tuition, but they are required to pay the usual laboratory charges.

Exception to the foregoing charges can be made only at the written request of the Director of a laboratory, approved by the President of the university.

Graduation Fees

The graduation fees are as follows, payable before the delivery of diplomas:

Doctor of Philosophy, ...	$10.00
Master of Arts,*	10.00

B. In the Medical Department

The charge for tuition is two hundred dollars per annum, payable in semi-annual instalments, October 1 and February 1. There are no extra charges for matriculation, for graduation, for instruction in any department, or for laboratory courses, except in special cases for materials consumed. To a student who does not possess a microscope, there is an annual charge of five dollars for the use of one, with an additional charge of two dollars for the use of an oil-immersion lens. One dollar is charged for the rental of a dissecting microscope for one year. The student is responsible for damage to the microscope thus rented. A deposit of ten dollars as caution money is required from each student at the time of his enrolment. The caution money is repaid to the student when he leaves, if there are no charges against him. Special charges are made for breakage and for damage to apparatus.

*If a Master of Arts proceeds to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, he will be charged but $5.00 additional for that degree.

Payment of bills may be made at the office of the Registrar in the Physiological Building, which is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., or at the office of the Treasurer of the University, on North Howard Street, which is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4.15 p. m.

The fees required of graduates of medical colleges who desire to follow special courses in medicine, are stated in detail in the annual catalogue of the medical department.

Living Expenses

The university has no dormitories or other living accommodations. Students may find comfortable homes in the vicinity,—in boarding houses or with families. The price of board ranges from three dollars and a half a week upward, and rooms from one dollar and a half a week.

Lists of desirable places are kept by the Secretary of the university branch of the Young Men's Christian Association and by the Registrar of the medical department.

HISTORICAL STATEMENT

The Johns Hopkins University was founded by a merchant of Baltimore, Johns Hopkins, who bequeathed the greater part of his estate for the establishment of a university and a hospital. The University was incorporated August 24, 1867, the certificate of incorporation reading as follows:

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

Know all men by these presents, that we, Thomas M. Smith, William Hopkins, Lewis N. Hopkins, John W. Garrett, Alan P. Smith, John Fonerden, George W. Dobbin, George M. Gill, Andrew Sterett Ridgely, Thomas Donaldson, James A. L. McClure and Charles J. M. Gwinn, being citizens of the United States of America, and of the State of Maryland, and being desirous to form a corporation for the purpose of organizing a "University" for the promotion of education in the State of Maryland, do hereby declare and certify that we do, by this instrument of writing, and by virtue of and under the provisions of an Act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at the January session thereof in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, and being the Act of eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, chapter three hundred and seventy-nine, form a corporation, under the name of "The Johns Hopkins University," for the promotion of education in the State of Maryland, which shall be governed and controlled by twelve Trustees, who shall manage the concerns thereof, and which said twelve Trustees shall be Francis T. King, Lewis N. Hopkins, Thomas M. Smith, William Hopkins, John Fonerden*, John W. Garrett, Francis White, Charles J. M. Gwinn,

* On the death of John Fonerden, James Carey Thomas was elected to fill the vacancy.

Galloway Cheston, George W. Dobbin, Reverdy Johnson, junior, and George William Brown, and which said University shall be located in Baltimore County, in the State of Maryland.

Witness our hands and seals, set hereto on this twenty-fourth day of August, in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

The following amendments to the charter have been enacted by the State Legislature:

I

AN ACT to grant certain additional powers to "The Johns Hopkins University," a corporation incorporated under the General Laws of Maryland.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That "The Johns Hopkins University," a corporation duly incorporated by certificate, recorded in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Baltimore County, shall have power to establish branches of the said University in the City of Baltimore, to hold, or to purchase and hold, all property in said City needed for the successful conducting of the branches of the said University in said City, and to keep and maintain a principal office in said City for the conduct of the business of the said University.

Section 2. And be it enacted, That the said "The Johns Hopkins University" shall have power to admit students of the said University, who shall merit the distinction, to the office and profession of Surgeon, or to the degree of Doctor of Medicine, or of Doctor of Laws, or of Bachelor or Master of Arts; to grant to students in said University such certificates of proficiency and attainments in any special study as the said University may see proper to confer; and to grant the honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Medicine, and Master of Arts, or such other degrees as may be proper, to any person who may merit such distinction, whether such person be a student of said University or not.

Section 3. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved March 22, 1876.

II

AN ACT to authorize the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, a corporation incorporated under the General Laws of Maryland, to make and constitute the President for the time being of its University and each of his successors in said office, during their respective terms thereof, a member ex-officio of the Board of Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, in addition to the number of twelve Trustees of said University now authorized by law.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University, a corporation duly incorporated by certificate under the General Laws of Maryland, be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to make and constitute the President for the time being of the Johns Hopkins University and each of his successors in said office, during their respective terms thereof, a member ex-officio of said Board of Trustees in addition to the number of twelve Trustees of said University now authorized by law.

Section 2. And be it enacted that this Act shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 4, 1892.

As stated in the foregoing certificate, the corporate name of the institution is "The Johns Hopkins University."

The Board of Trustees organized June 13, 1870, and held their first business meeting February 6, 1874. The founder had died December 24, 1873, in the seventy-ninth year of his age,—having been born May 19, 1795. The election of a President of the University took place December 30, 1874, the choice falling upon Daniel Coit Gilman, at that time President of the University of California. President Gilman was inaugurated February 22, 1876, and instruction began October 3, following. The Johns Hopkins Hospital was dedicated May 7, 1889, and this paved the way for the opening of the medical school of the University four years later (October 1, 1893).

President Gilman resigned his office February 22, 1901, after a service of twenty-five years, and he was succeeded by Ira Remsen, Professor of Chemistry in the University, whose election took place June 3, 1901. On the twenty-first and twenty-second of February, 1902, the University celebrated the completion of twenty-five years of work, and President Remsen was inaugurated.

The work of the University began in two houses at the corner of Howard and Little Ross Streets, in Hopkins Hall and a chemical laboratory on Little Ross Street,—the last two buildings having been erected by the Trustees. As the need arose, other buildings were constructed,—including a considerable addition to the chemical laboratory, a biological laboratory, a physical laboratory, a gymnasium, a home for the Young Men's Christian Association (the gift of Mr. Eugene Levering), and finally McCoy Hall, a large central building containing offices of administration, assembly room, the general library, and numerous smaller rooms for seminaries, department libraries, classes in languages, history, etc. The medical school is housed in several buildings in another section of the city, adjoining the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The Hospital forms a part of the medical school of the University, in accordance with the expressed wish of the founder. It occupies a commanding site facing North Broadway. The buildings include a central structure chiefly devoted to administration, two large private wards, a considerable number of separate buildings containing the public wards, a large dispensary building, a surgical building and amphitheatre, a pathological institute, and a nurses' home. The Harriet Lane Home for Invalid Children, the Phipps Psychiatric Clinic, and the Phipps Dispensary for the Treatment of Tuberculosis are important adjuncts to the Hospital and are situated within its grounds.

At the time of President Remsen's inauguration, it was announced that a suburban site had been given to the University by Messrs. William Wyman, William Keyser, Francis M. Jencks, Julian LeRoy White, and William H. Buckler, of Baltimore, and Samuel Keyser, of New York. This site comprised originally one hundred and seventy-six acres of land within the city limits, about two miles directly north of the Washington Monument. Fifty-six acres have been deeded to the city for a public park. The hope was expressed by the donors that the sum of one million dollars would be contributed by the friends of the University within a certain time, to be added to the permanent endowment funds of the University. This hope was realized July 1, 1902. The development of the new site is in progress. A botanical laboratory and a greenhouse have been erected, and a fine athletic field is now in use by the students. A general scheme of arrangement of the future buildings has been adopted by the trustees, as the result of a competition by selected architects, and the plans of several of the most important structures have been completed. The funds required for these buildings have not yet been supplied, and, until that need is met, a removal is not possible.

The original endowment of the University amounted to somewhat over $3,000,000. This has been supplemented by several gifts, including the Endowment Fund of 1902 ($1,000,000), the John W. McCoy Fund ($500,000), the Women's Medical School Fund ($100,000), the Mary Elizabeth Garrett Fund ($307,000), the Adoniram J. Robinson Fund ($42,000), the Herbert B. Adams Fund ($42,000), the Johnston Scholarship Fund ($90,000), the Donovan Fund ($100,000), and several others. The income-bearing funds have a "book value" of $4,580,000; the real estate and buildings, books, scientific apparatus, and general equipment are valued at $1,900,000. The assets of the University have thus a total value of about $6,500,000.

In June, 1909, the General Education Board offered to contribute to the University the sum of $250,000 towards the endowment, provided the institution should secure, on or before December 31, 1910, a supplemental sum of $750,000, in cash or pledges. Under the terms of this offer one-half of the million dollars thus acquired may be used in the construction of buildings; the remainder is to be added to the permanent endowment. A General Committee was organized in the Summer of 1910, and, aided by an Alumni Committee, a Citizens' Committee, and a Ladies' Committee, secured by the end of the year $943,177, more than sufficient to meet the condition imposed by the General Education Board.

The Legislature of Maryland at its last session made an appropriation of $25,000 a year for 1911 and for 1912.

GOVERNMENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

The Trustees are the ultimate source of authority in all matters pertaining to the University. They act collectively, through the standing committees named on page 2, and through the President of the University.

PRESIDENT

Ira Remsen

The duties of this office were thus defined by the Trustees. September 14, 1876:

The President of the University is the authorized means of communication between the Board and various officers of instruction and administration employed in the University; it shall be his duty to consult with the Professors in respect to the development of their various departments and the general interests of the University; to determine the appropriate duties of the Associates and Fellows; and to exercise such superintendence over the buildings, apparatus, books and other property as will insure their protection and appropriate use. In respect to these matters and all others which concern the welfare of the University, he shall consult frequently with the Executive Committee, and he shall attend the meetings of the Board of Trustees. Purchases, alterations, repairs, and other incidental expenses must not be ordered by any of the officers of the University without his previous assent or the expressed authority of the Board.

By resolution of the Trustees, May 2, 1892, the President of the University was constituted a member ex officio of the Board, and also ex officio a member of the Executive Committee.

ACADEMIC COUNCIL

Ira Remsen (Pres.)	E. H. Griffin (Sec'y.)	J. S. Ames
B. L. Gildersleeve	Henry Wood	Maurice Bloomfield
Paul Haupt	W. B. Clark	J. W. Bright
W. H. Welch

By authority of the Trustees, the Academic Council (now consisting of the President and nine Professors) has met since the organization of the University to guide the various departments of study, to select the Fellows, and to act upon such other matters as may be brought before them.

BOARD OF UNIVERSITY STUDIES

REGULATIONS OF THE TREASURER'S OFFICE

I. The Treasurer's Office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

II. All bills should be presented at that place, endorsed as correct by the person under whose authority the expense has been incurred.

III. No member of the academic staff is allowed to incur a bill in the name of the University, unless authority is given for the same by the Trustees, in advance, either as an item in the annual budget, or as a special appropriation. Blank forms of application are provided for special requisitions.

IV. Orders for books and apparatus to be imported from Europe will not be considered authorized, unless countersigned by the President or the Treasurer of the University.

All goods must be consigned to and addressed "The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md." Goods for other parties (societies or individuals) must not be included in the university cases. Invoices, sworn to before the U. S. Consul, must be sent by mail, and a duplicate invoice by the following mail, both addressed to The Johns Hopkins University.

Unless otherwise ordered, goods from Europe should be sent as follows:

From Germany by the North German Lloyd steamers sailing for Baltimore from Bremen; from England by steamship lines from Liverpool to Baltimore; from France and Italy, via Havre and Liverpool.

Printed copies of instructions to shippers, which can be obtained at the Treasurer's Office, should in all cases be enclosed with the orders.

V. The Treasurer's Office will make purchases, at wholesale rates, of supplies which are required for the current needs of the University.

VI. Such pass books as are authorized by the Treasurer should be presented for balance and settlement every month.

LIBRARIES

1. THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY numbers 155,624 bound volumes, selected with special reference to the instruction here given. It is arranged in several collections, of which these are the chief:

General Reference	Semitic
History	Sanskrit
Economics	Modern Languages
Political Science	McCoy Art Library
Mathematics and Physics	Medicine
Chemistry	Physiology and Anatomy
Biology	Philosophy, Psychology, and Geology	Education.
Classics

The reference library and reading room is open daily from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.; the other rooms in accordance with special regulations.

The library receives the publications of the leading scientific societies of the world and the chief literary and scientific periodicals. The whole number of serials received exceeds twenty-three hundred. The list is supplemented by those of the Peabody Institute and other institutions, so that the whole number of journals accessible (exclusive of ephemeral publications) approaches three thousand. Important books are received by the library as soon as published, by purchase or by the courtesy of dealers.

2. THE PEABODY LIBRARY is a choice collection of books purchased since 1861. It is particularly full in academic transactions, long historical series, and costly illustrated books. It numbers 181,000 volumes, well bound, catalogued, and arranged. It is open daily, without charge, from 9 a. m. to 10.30 p. m.

3. THE ENOCH PRATT FREE LIBRARY numbers 280,297 volumes and is open daily without charge.

4. THE MARYLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY contains 43,669 volumes of historical works and is open daily.

5. Other libraries of Baltimore are the New Mercantile Library (83,000 volumes), the Bar Library (31,000 volumes), the Medical and Chirurgical Library (25,000 volumes), the Maryland Diocesan Library (30,000 volumes).

6. Washington is so near that its museums and libraries may be easily visited. Among the chief institutions of interest to students are these:

The Library of Congress,
The Smithsonian Institution and National Museum,
The Army Medical and Surgical Museum and Library,
The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey,
The U. S. Geological Survey,
The U. S. Naval Observatory,
The Libraries of the Departments and Bureaus,
The Corcoran Art Gallery.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AT THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

I. American Journal of Mathematics

This journal was commenced in 1878, under the editorial direction of Professor Sylvester. Professor Frank Morley is now the editor. Thirty-two volumes of about 400 pages each have been issued, and the thirty-third is in progress. It appears quarterly. Subscription $5 per year (foreign postage 50 cents). Single numbers $1.50. A few complete sets remain, which will be sold for $125 per set.

II. American Chemical Journal.

This journal was commenced in 1879, with Professor Remsen as editor. Forty-four volumes have been issued, and the forty-fifth is in progress. This journal appears monthly. Two volumes of six numbers and of about 500 pages each are issued yearly. Subscription $5 per year (foreign postage 50 cents). Single numbers 50 cents.

III. American Journal of Philology.

The publication of this journal commenced in 1880 under the editorial direction of Professor Gildersleeve. Thirty-one volumes of about 500 pages each have been issued, and the thirty-second is in progress. It appears four times yearly. Subscription $3 per volume (foreign postage 50 cents). Single numbers $1. A few complete sets remain. These sets have for the present been reduced to $63 for the thirty-one volumes.

IV. Studies in Historical and Political Science.

The publication of these papers was begun in 1882, under the editorial direction of Professor H. B. Adams. The series is now under the direction of the departments of History, Political Economy, and Political Science. Twenty-eight series are now completed, and the twenty-ninth series is in progress. A number of extra volumes have also been issued. Subscription $3 per volume (foreign postage 50 cents). The set of twenty-eight regular series will be sold for $100.

V. Memoirs from the Biological Laboratory.

These monographs were issued under the editorial direction of Professor W. K. Brooks. Five volumes have appeared.

VI. Johns Hopkins University Circular, including the Annual Register, President's Report, and Medical Department Catalogue.

The publication of the Circular began in December, 1879, and 234 numbers have since been issued. It appears monthly, from October to July. Subscription $1 per year.

VII. Contributions to Assyriology and Semitic Philology.

The publication of this journal was begun in 1889. Professor Paul Haupt, of the Johns Hopkins University, and Professor Friedrich Delitzsch, of the University of Berlin, are the editors. Volume VIII is in progress.

VIII. Reprint of Economic Tracts.

Professor J. H. Hollander, editor. Third series in progress. Subscription $2.

IX. The Johns Hopkins Hospital Reports.

These reports are edited by the Medical Faculty of the University, and published for the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Their publication was begun in 1890. Volume XVII is in progress. Subscription $5 per volume (foreign postage 50 cents). The set of sixteen volumes will be sold for ninety dollars.

X. The Johns Hopkins Hospital Bulletin.

The publication of this bulletin began in 1889. It is published monthly. Volume XXII is in progress. Subscription $2 per year (foreign postage 50 cents). The set of twenty-one volumes will be sold for $90.

XI. Modern Language Notes.

This journal is edited by E. C. Armstrong, J. W. Bright, H. Collitz, and C. C. Marden (managing editor). It appears eight times yearly. The twenty-sixth volume is in progress. Price $1.50 per year (foreign postage 25 cents).

XII. American Journal of Insanity.

This journal is under the direction of a Board of Editors. It appears quarterly. The sixty-seventh volume is in progress. Subscription $5 per year (foreign postage 50 cents).

XIII. Terrestrial Magnetism and Atmospheric Electricity.

This journal is edited by Dr. L. A. Bauer. It appears quarterly. Volume XVI is in progress. Subscription $2.50 per year (foreign postage 25 cents). The set of fifteen volumes will be sold for $40.

XIV. Reports of the Maryland Geological Survey.

These reports are under the editorial direction of Professor William B. Clark, Director of the Survey.

XV. Reports of the Maryland Weather Service.

These reports are under the direction of Professor William B. Clark, Director of the Service.

REGULATIONS OF THE TREASURER'S OFFICE

I. The Treasurer's Office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

II. All bills should be presented at that place, endorsed as correct by the person under whose authority the expense has been incurred.

III. No member of the academic staff is allowed to incur a bill in the name of the University, unless authority is given for the same by the Trustees, in advance, either as an item in the annual budget, or as a special appropriation. Blank forms of application are provided for special requisitions.

IV. Orders for books and apparatus to be imported from Europe will not be considered authorized, unless countersigned by the President or the Treasurer of the University.

All goods must be consigned to and addressed "The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md." Goods for other parties (societies or individuals) must not be included in the university cases. Invoices, sworn to before the U. S. Consul, must be sent by mail, and a duplicate invoice by the following mail, both addressed to The Johns Hopkins University.

Unless otherwise ordered, goods from Europe should be sent as follows:

From Germany by the North German Lloyd steamers sailing for Baltimore from Bremen; from England by steamship lines from Liverpool to Baltimore; from France and Italy, via Havre and Liverpool.

Printed copies of instructions to shippers, which can be obtained at the Treasurer's Office, should in all cases be enclosed with the orders.

V. The Treasurer's Office will make purchases, at wholesale rates, of supplies which are required for the current needs of the University.

VI. Such pass books as are authorized by the Treasurer should be presented for balance and settlement every month.

VII. The wages of all persons employed by the University will be paid at the Treasurer's Office.

VIII. When C. O. D. packages are expected, previous arrangements should be made for their reception.

IX. Outlays made for individuals (express parcels, postage, telegraph messages, etc.) should be settled at once.

X. An annual allowance is made by the Trustees, in the budget, for such expenses as they approve, and in deciding on the items they are governed by a consideration of the general interests of the University, as well as by the needs of special branches of instruction. Balances to the debit or credit of any account are carried forward to the new account at the opening of each financial year (September 1). A statement of the amount of the balance and of any additional appropriation will be communicated to the parties severally interested, if requested, after the Trustees' meeting in October.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

1. The Scientific Association, meeting monthly, under the presidency of Professor H. C. Jones.

2. The Philological Association, meeting monthly, under the presidency of Professor Gildersleeve.

3. The Historical and Political Science Association, meeting fortnightly.

4. Naturalists' Field Club, which makes weekly excursions during the spring and autumn and holds monthly meetings for the presentation and discussion of papers.

There are also companies which meet weekly in the laboratories for the reading of the scientific journals, and seminaries in several departments of study.

GENERAL STATEMENTS IN RESPECT TO THE COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The Johns Hopkins University has had in view, from the beginning, two main objects,—the advancement of learning through investigations conducted by its teachers and its properly qualified students, and the communication of learning through carefully-planned courses of instruction. The facilities which it provides and its methods of administration are intended both for the encouragement of research, in the case of those competent to undertake it, and for the discipline and guidance of those whose chief concern is the acquisition of knowledge. The work of the University is carried forward—

I. Under the Faculty of Philosophy.

II. Under the Faculty of Medicine.

The students enrolled under the Faculty of Philosophy are:

(1) Those who have obtained baccalaureate degrees from colleges of good standing, and desire to follow advanced courses in scientific, literary, or historical subjects; and also persons who wish to take advantage of the opportunities for individual investigations here afforded. Women who have received baccalaureate degrees are admitted to graduate courses with the consent of the professors under whom they wish to work.

(2) Undergraduate students, who are, in most cases, looking forward to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, but some of whom are engaged in special studies without reference to graduation. Women are not admitted to the regular undergraduate courses.

The requirements for admission to the undergraduate courses, the arrangement of these courses in the several "Groups," etc., are stated on pages 183-207. More detailed information is given in "The Collegiate Instruction of the Johns Hopkins University," which may be obtained on application, personally or by letter, to the Registrar of the University.

(3) Teachers in public and private schools wishing to pursue courses similar in character to the corresponding courses given in the collegiate department of this University. Work accomplished in these courses will be credited, under suitable regulations, toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Under a plan of co-operation with Goucher College, of Baltimore, women are admitted to these courses.

Detailed information is given in the special announcement of "College Courses for Teachers."

(4) Persons seeking opportunities for instruction during the summer session, with or without reference to an academic degree. Men and women are admitted to such courses as they are found by the respective instructors qualified to pursue with advantage.

Detailed information is given in the special announcement of the Summer Session.

The students enrolled under the Faculty of Medicine are:

(1) Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine. These must be college graduates, or must give evidence by examination that they possess the attainments indicated by a baccalaureate degree in arts or sciences. Women are admitted on the same terms as men.

(2) Doctors of Medicine desiring to pursue certain special courses, which are annually announced.

The terms of admission to the medical department and the general plan of instruction are briefly stated on pages 209-216. Detailed information is given in the "Catalogue and Announcement," which will be sent upon application to the Registrar of the department.

I. FACULTY OF PHILOSOPHY

Advanced students are received whether they are candidates for a degree or not, and they are permitted to attend such lectures and exercises as they may select. On entering the university they are expected to present their diplomas and certificates from the institutions with which they have been connected, and also letters of introduction. They are not examined by the university for admission, but each instructor satisfies himself of the attainments of those who wish to follow his guidance, before admitting them to his classes.

The professors are ready to give personal counsel to those who seek it; books and instruments adapted to investigation and advanced work have been liberally provided; seminaries limited to a few advanced students have been organized in various subjects; societies devoted to philology, to mathematical, physical, and natural science, and to history and political science, afford opportunities for the presentation of memoirs and original communications, and there are also conferences for the reading and discussion of philological, philosophical, biological, physical, geological, and chemical papers; during the year courses of lectures are given by resident and non-resident professors on topics to which they have given special attention; the libraries of the Peabody Institute and Maryland Historical Society, founded for the benefit of scholars, are easily accessible; the issuing, under the auspices of the Trustees, of publications devoted to mathematics, chemistry, philology, biology, the modern languages, and history, brings the university into advantageous connection with other foundations; and the university reading room, which is constantly open, is liberally supplied with new and standard books and with the literary and scientific journals of this and other lands.

Instruction is carried on in the different departments by methods which vary with the nature of the subject and the character and proficiency of the scholars; but in all alike the end is the same,—that, while the students are becoming familiar with the work prosecuted and the results attained elsewhere, and are adding to their general intellectual culture, they may be encouraged to become independent and original investigators in their chosen fields of labor. Within reasonable limits the university will provide such books, apparatus, and material as may be requisite for this purpose.

The principal subjects in which advanced instruction is now provided are these:

Mathematics.
Physics and Astronomy.
Chemistry.
Geology and Mineralogy.
Zoology.
Botany.
Physiology.
Pathology.
Greek.
Latin.
Classical Archæology and Art.
Sanskrit and Comparative Philology.
Semitic Languages.
Anglo-Saxon and English.
Romance Languages.
German.
Germanic Philology.
History.
Political Economy.
Political Science.
Philosophy, Psychology, and Education.

MATHEMATICS

The advanced courses are so arranged that a qualified student gets in three years the more important points of view of the whole subject. The courses are elastic in character, subjects being introduced as they are needed. In general, the plan pursued is to foster independent inquiry on the part of the student. Once embarked on investigation, he uses all the apparatus of lectures and library with intelligent purpose. The seminary, which meets weekly, is primarily intended for the presentation of the results of the student's own thinking. Literature either intrinsically important or opportune is presented and discussed in the reading class, which also meets weekly.

ADVANCED COURSES

1. Mathematical Seminary.
One hour weekly. Professor MORLEY.

2. Reading Class.
One hour weekly. Professor MORLEY.

3. Higher Geometry.
Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor MORLEY.
This is a general course in Geometry, covering in three years such matters as Projective Geometry, the Invariants of algebraic forms, Line Geometry, Conformal Geometry, Geometry on an algebraic curve or surface.

4. Theory of Functions.
Three hours weekly, second half-year. Professor MORLEY.
Algebraic Functions and their integrals; Elliptic, elliptic modular, and general automorphic functions; Theory of the potential.

5*. Dynamics.
Two hours weekly, first half-year (every other year). Professor MORLEY.
Special stress is laid on Rigid Dynamics.

*Courses thus marked will not be given in 1911-12.

6. Vector Analysis.
Two hours weekly, first half-year (every other year). Professor MORLEY.

7. Elementary Theory of Functions.
Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.
An introduction to the theories of functions of a real and a complex variable.

8. Differential Equations.
Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.
Including, in three years, Ordinary Differential Equations, their integral curves and singular points; Partial Differential Equations; Lie's theory.

9. Differential Geometry.
Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.
Including a study of Curves in space; Surfaces and lines upon them; Spherical representation; Applicability of surfaces.

10*. Calculus of Variations.
Two hours weekly, one half-year. Dr. COHEN.

11*. Theory of Numbers.
Two hours weekly, one half-year. Dr. COHEN.

12. Theory of Groups.
Two hours weekly. Associate Professor COBLE.
Including Theory of Equations, Finite Geometries, Theory of algebraic forms.

13. Theory of Correspondence.
Two hours weekly. Associate Professor COBLE.
Including such matters as Cremona Transformations, general birational transformations.

14*. Theory of Probability.
Two hours weekly, one half-year. Associate Professor COBLE.
Including the applications to statistics and the Theory of Errors.

*Courses thus marked will not be given in 1911-12.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Solid Geometry; Algebra (special topics).
Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor HULBURT.
Plane Analytic Geometry.
Three hours weekly, second half-year. Professor HULBURT.
Conference.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

2. Differential and Integral Calculus.
Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor HULBURT.
Conference.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

3. Differential Equations; Calculus (special topics).
Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. COHEN.
Conference.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

4. Projective Geometry.
Three hours weekly, first half-year. Associate Professor COBLE.
Descriptive Geometry.
Three hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor COBLE.
Conference.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

In connection with the three hours' class-room instruction, the instructor in each course meets his students weekly in a two-hour session, for the purpose of supplementary explanation and application of the principles taught in the class-room. This is the part of each course designated as "Conference." It is not intended thus to increase the amount of work required of the student, but rather to aid him in the understanding and preparation of the work of the class.

Physics and Astronomy

The Physical Laboratory offers facilities in the form of apparatus, libraries, and machine shops to students who wish to pursue experimental investigations in any field of Physics. If the results of these are to be offered as a dissertation for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, the work must be done under the general direction of the Director of the Laboratory, or of one of the other professors. For students carrying on experimental researches the laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m.

Regular courses of instruction in both Physics and Astronomy are given in the form of lectures and laboratory exercises. They may be classified as Advanced and Elementary. The former are designed primarily for graduate students; the latter, for undergraduates.

Advanced Courses

Seminary and Journal Meetings

All advanced students meet with the instructors twice each week,—once in the Physical Seminary, and once for the discussion of the current Physical Journals.

During the year 1911-12 the questions to be considered in the Seminary will refer to the history of the development of Electrical Theories.

Lectures

1. General Physics. Professor Ames.
Four hours weekly, through the year.

This is a course of lectures in Mathematical Physics continuing for three years and including the subjects of Theoretical Mechanics, Elasticity, Hydrodynamics, Sound, Thermodynamics, Heat Conduction, Electricity and Magnetism, and Light. During the year 1911-12 the lectures will be on Electricity.

2. Selected Problems in Advanced Physical Optics. Professor WOOD.
Three hours weekly, through the year.

3. Applied Electricity. Professor WHITEHEAD.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

4. Applied Electricity (Advanced Course). Professor WHITEHEAD.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

5. Celestial Mechanics. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.
Two hours weekly, through the year.

6*. General Astronomy. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.
Three hours weekly, through the year. (See 6 below.)

7. Theory of Optical Instruments and Spectroscopy. Dr. A. H. PFUND.
Two hours weekly, first half-year.

Laboratory Courses

1. Special Exercises in Physics in preparation for independent research, under the direction of Professors AMES, WOOD, BLISS, and WHITEHEAD, and Dr. PFUND.

2. Applied Electricity. Professor WHITEHEAD.

3. Use of Astronomical and Astrophysical Instruments. Dr. J. A. ANDERSON.

For students following these courses the laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; the observatory is open every favorable night.

*This course may be chosen as an elective by undergraduates.

ELEMENTARY COURSES

1. Elements of Physics.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor AMES and Dr. PFUND.

This course of lectures is based upon Ames's "Text-book of General Physics," and is intended to include the field of Physics in an elementary manner. It presupposes a knowledge of the elements of plane trigonometry. Course 4 of laboratory work (see below) is arranged to accompany these lectures.

2 and 3. The four following series of lectures are given each year and are combined, together with the corresponding laboratory work (see Physics 5 below), into two courses known as Physics 2 and Physics 3. The mode of combination varies from year to year according to the needs of the students applying.

(a) Elementary Theoretical Mechanics.

Three hours weekly, twelve to fifteen weeks. Professor BLISS.

This course is designed to serve as an introduction to Mathematical Physics, and students following it must have a knowledge of the elements of the Calculus.

(b) Elementary Electricity and Magnetism.

Three hours weekly, fifteen to twenty weeks. Professor BLISS.

This is an introduction to the mathematical theory of the electrostatic and magnetic fields and electric currents. Course "a" or an equivalent preparation is assumed.

(c) Elementary Thermodynamics.

Three hours weekly, twelve to fifteen weeks. Professor BLISS.

The object of this course is to familiarize the student with the fundamental ideas of Thermodynamics, such as Temperature, Entropy, and Reversibility. By way of illustration applications are made to very elementary problems in heat engines, solutions, and electrochemistry, so far as time will permit. Course "a" or an equivalent preparation is assumed.

(d) Physical Optics.

Three hours weekly, fifteen weeks. Dr. PFUND.

This course is a moderately advanced treatment of the subject of optics, special emphasis being laid on interference, diffraction, polarization, and their application to modern instruments of high efficiency.

4. Laboratory Work for Beginners.

Two afternoons weekly, through the year. Professor BLISS and Assistants.

In this elementary work the students are taught methods of exact observation and measurement, and, so far as possible, they study the fundamental phenomena of Physics in a quantitative manner. The exercises given in Ames and Bliss's "Manual of Experiments in Physics" serve as a basis for this work.

5. Laboratory Work, in connection with Physics 2 and 3.

To complete each of these courses the student is required to pursue two of the four following groups, making together two afternoons a week for the year.

(a) Mechanics.

Two afternoons weekly, twelve weeks. Professor BLISS.

In this course the students are taught methods of exact measurement of time, length, and mass, and methods for the determination of the various mechanical and elastic constants.

(b) Electricity and Magnetism.

Two afternoons weekly, twenty weeks. Professor BLISS.

Special attention is given to instruction in modern methods of measurement of various electrical quantities and in the use of improved apparatus. Those qualified and desiring such instruction may substitute work with dynamos, motors, and transformers for part of the course.

(c) Heat.

Two afternoons weekly, one half-year. Professor BLISS.

This includes methods of measuring temperature, including the use of thermocouples, resistance thermometers and pyrometers, together with other exercises illustrating lecture course "c" above.

(d) Optics.

Two afternoons weekly, one half-year. Dr. PFUND.

The students are given a thorough working knowledge of experiments dealing with fundamental principles, as well as of experiments involving the use of modern types of optical instruments, such as the plane and concave grating, Michelson and Fabry and Perot interferometers, polarimeters, etc.

6. General Astronomy.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. ANDERSON.

The theory of astronomical instruments and observations will be outlined (based on Young's "General Astronomy"), a general treatment of spherical astronomy and the elements of celestial mechanics will be given, together with as much physical astronomy as time will permit. The students will spend one evening per week throughout the year in the observatory, where instruction in the actual use of instruments will be given.

7. Elements of Applied Electricity.

Two hours of lectures and five hours in laboratory weekly, through the year. Professor WHITEHEAD and Assistant.

This course is designed to meet the needs of graduate students in other departments than Physics, who wish to become familiar with the simple principles of Applied Electricity. It is not open to undergraduate students.

CHEMISTRY

The Chemical Laboratory is equipped with apparatus for nearly all kinds of scientific chemical investigations, and it is the policy of the department to provide every needed facility for promising investigations of a special or unusual character.

The laboratory is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m.

ADVANCED COURSES

I. Journal Meetings

These meetings are held at 9 a. m. on Mondays, throughout the year, and are under the direction of Professor REMSEN. Toward the end of the year, those who have been engaged in research give an account of the progress of their investigations.

II. Lectures

(a) ORGANIC CHEMISTRY

The lectures in Organic Chemistry are given by Professor REMSEN and Associate Professor ACREE. The course consists of two lectures weekly and extends over two years.

(b) INORGANIC CHEMISTRY

The course on this subject is given by Professor RENOUF. It consists of one lecture weekly and extends over three years.

(c) PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY

Three lectures weekly are given throughout the year by Professor JONES.

(d) SPECIAL TOPICS IN CHEMISTRY

A short course of lectures upon Radioactivity and the electrical nature of matter is given each year by Professor JONES.

III. Laboratory Courses

(a) QUALITATIVE ANALYSIS

This course is under the direction of Professor RENOUF, and is designed to meet the needs of those graduate students whose knowledge of the subject is defective.

(b) QUANTITATIVE CHEMISTRY

This work is under the direction of Professor MORSE.

(c) PHYSICAL-CHEMICAL METHODS

The routine work in this branch usually occupies about six weeks and is under the direction of Professor JONES.

(d) ORGANIC PREPARATIONS

This work is done under the direction of Associate Professor ACREE. The required work occupies from eight to twelve weeks.

The student who is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, must give evidence by means of a series of written examinations that he has a satisfactory knowledge of elementary chemistry and is familiar with laboratory methods, before he is permitted to undertake the advanced courses. These consist of lectures, and laboratory exercises in (b) quantitative chemistry, (c) physical-chemical methods, and (d) organic preparations.

The order in which these are taken is not fixed, but is arranged with reference to the convenience of the student.

Having completed the routine work of the laboratory, and having given the required proofs of sufficient knowledge of his subject, the student is assigned by the director of the laboratory to one of the staff who proposes to him a problem for investigation, which may be made the basis of the Doctor's dissertation,* and who thenceforth directs his work in the laboratory. It sometimes happens that the student has sound reasons for preferring some particular line of research, and this course is allowed if the circumstances permit.

For those who do not look forward to the degree, the rules are less rigid. Any person admitted to the University as a special student is permitted to take any of the laboratory or lecture courses for which he is qualified by previous training. The department also provides laboratory facilities for experienced chemists who wish to come to it for the purpose of carrying out researches of their own.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Introduction to General Chemistry.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

No previous knowledge of chemistry is required. The class-room work is based on Remsen's Chemistry (Briefer Course) and covers the field of inorganic chemistry, as far as possible. The last twelve class-room exercises give a brief sketch of organic chemistry, particularly for the benefit of those students whose study of chemistry is confined to the first-year course. In the laboratory the student repeats the experiments performed in the class-room, and, in addition, has some practice in simple quantitative analysis and in making inorganic preparations. Each student is required to keep a notebook of his work.

*The length of time required for the completion of the dissertation work cannot be definitely stated, but, as a rule, from one year to one and one-half years should be allowed for it in the plans of the candidate.

2. Advanced Inorganic Chemistry and Qualitative Analysis.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. GILPIN.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

The class-room work in the second year is intended to give a more thorough knowledge of chemical and physical-chemical laws, of the properties of chemical compounds, and of the principles of qualitative analysis. The laboratory work is in qualitative analysis and inorganic preparations.

3. Chemistry of the Compounds of Carbon.

(a) Lectures and recitations, three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. GILPIN.

(b) Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN and assistants.

The class-room work of the third year is devoted to the study of Organic Chemistry. The laboratory work is the making of organic preparations, but also includes practice in the analytic detection of organic substances and in analytical methods of value to those intending to study medicine. The text-book used is Remsen's Organic Chemistry.

This course is open only to those who have completed Courses 1 and 2.

4. Laboratory Work only.

Laboratory work, six hours weekly, through the year. Professor RENOUF, Dr. GILPIN, and assistants.

The laboratory work comprises advanced qualitative analysis, including technical methods, difficult inorganic preparations, and assaying. Those contemplating graduate work in chemistry will devote half of the year to the study of Volhard and Zimmermann's "Experiments in General Chemistry;" others may substitute quantitative analysis.

Students of the fifth group whose principal subject is chemistry are required to pursue the courses in chemistry during the first, second, and third years. Those who look forward to the study of medicine are advised to follow the courses in the first and second years, and to take the course in the compounds of carbon in their last year of residence.

The fourth-year course is intended for those students only who have satisfactorily absolved the courses of the three preceding years. It will be a help to those who intend to follow graduate work in chemistry, and also to those who desire to make a practical use of their knowledge of chemistry after receiving the bachelor's degree.

Geology

The Geological Laboratory offers facilities in the form of collections, instruments, and libraries to students wishing to pursue special researches in geology and its allied subjects—paleontology, petrography, mineralogy, etc. Such researches may be carried on independently, or with the co-operation of the members of the geological staff; but, if the student intends to become a candidate for a degree, the work must be conducted under the general direction of the head of the department or of his associates.

The laboratory, collections, and libraries are open to the advanced students daily, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Regular courses of instruction in geology are given in the form of lectures, laboratory exercises, and field work. The advanced courses are adapted to the requirements of students of maturity, the general courses to students desiring an elementary or cultural training in the subject. The former are designed primarily for graduate students in geology; the latter for undergraduates or for students from other departments wishing a more general knowledge of the subject.

ADVANCED COURSES

Seminary and Journal Meetings

The advanced students meet with the instructors once each week for the discussion of current publications dealing with geology. During the latter half of the year papers are presented giving the results of researches conducted in the laboratory, or summarizing the present state of knowledge regarding geological questions of general interest.

Lectures

1. Historical Geology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
2. Sytematic Paleontology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
3. Economic Geology. Professor CLARK.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
4. Geological Physics. Professor REID.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
5. Exploratory Surveying. Professor REID.
   Two hours weekly, through the year.
6. Advanced Mineralogy. Professor MATHEWS.
   Three hours weekly, through the year.
7. Petrography. Professor MATHEWS.
   Three hours weekly, through the year.
8. Paleobotany. Mr. E. W. BERRY.
   Two hours weekly, first half-year.

Laboratory Courses

1. Paleontology. Professor CLARK and Mr. BERRY.
   Weekly, through the year.
2. Petrography. Professor MATHEWS.
   Weekly, through the year.
3. Advanced Mineralogy. Professor MATHEWS.
   Weekly, through the year.
4. Geological Field Methods. Professor MATHEWS.
   Weekly, during the fall and spring.

Laboratory studies in advanced courses are carried on daily from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. under the general direction of the professors in charge, who are accessible at all times. An afternoon is devoted especially to each course, when the subject-matter is more fully developed by quizzes, demonstrations, etc.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Elements of Geology.

Three lectures or recitations and three hours of laboratory work weekly, through the year. Associate Professor SWARTZ.

This course is open to all students. It is designed to give a general view of the subject of Geology, and may profitably be pursued by those who wish to have some knowledge of the chief events of the earth's history. It includes an account of the origin of the features of the surface of the earth, a discussion of the phenomena of earthquakes, volcanoes, mountain-making, and an outline of the past history of the earth.

Materials illustrative of the lectures are studied in the laboratory. Emphasis is placed upon the observation of geological phenomena in nature, the vicinity of Baltimore and the State of Maryland presenting features of unusual interest for such study. Frequent excursions are made to neighboring points where the principles of the science are studied in the field, while a longer trip is made in the spring to places of special interest for geological study. The longer excursion may be omitted by students who desire to do so, the field trips in the vicinity of Baltimore only being taken. This course is illustrated by maps, lantern views, and the rich collections of the University.

2. Mineralogy and Elementary Petrography.

PART I.—Two lectures and four hours of laboratory work weekly, through the year. Professor SWARTZ.

This course includes the study of crystallography, a discussion of the more important minerals, and a brief consideration of the origin and characteristics of the chief types of rocks. Numerous excursions are made to points of interest in the vicinity of Baltimore, which is unusually rich in the variety of its rocks and minerals.

Emphasis is laid upon laboratory work, which includes the study of crystal models, the identification of minerals by means of the blowpipe and by inspection, and the examination of rocks in the laboratory and in the field. A knowledge of chemistry is required for the pursuit of this course.

PART II.—One lecture and two hours of laboratory work weekly, through the year. Professor SWARTZ.

Part II is open to students who are pursuing Part I and who wish a more thorough knowledge of crystallography and mineralogy than is afforded by that course. It offers a more advanced discussion of those subjects, while a larger number of the more important minerals are studied in the laboratory.

3. Applied Geology.

Three hours weekly, through the year, with laboratory work. Professor MATHEWS.

This course is devoted to a discussion of the non-metallic minerals and rocks which are worked commercially. The knowledge of geology and mineralogy gained in the preceding courses is applied to the recognition of useful minerals, their mode of occurrence, properties, values, and uses. The main sources of coal, oil, clay, building-stones, abrasives, gems, etc., the way they are won, and their economic importance, are treated with more or less detail. The aim of the course is to supply such information regarding mineral resources as an educated man should possess. The treatment of the technical questions of metallurgy or mining must be sought in technical schools.

State Scientific Bureaus connected with the Department.—Two scientific bureaus, established by the legislature and maintained at the expense of the State, are carried on in connection with the geological department. They are the Maryland Geological and Economic Survey and the Maryland State Weather Service. Professor Clark is the director of both these organizations, which are concerned with a study of the geology and physical features of the State of Maryland. The work is carried on under his direction mainly by the instructors and students of the department. A State Forestry Bureau, of which Professor Clark is Executive Officer, is also located in one of the buildings of the geological department.

Advantages afforded by Proximity to Washington.—Washington is less than an hour distant from Baltimore. This renders it possible to take frequent advantage of the facilities afforded by that city, where the officers of the various scientific bureaus and societies give the students of the university every opportunity to examine the rich collections and libraries under their control.

Field Work.—The area of the State of Maryland includes, notwithstanding its comparatively small size, a remarkable sequence of geological formations. The ancient rocks of the earth's crust, as well as those still in the process of deposition, are found, while between these wide limits there is hardly a geological epoch which is not represented. As a result most excellent facilities are afforded for a study of the various geological horizons. Excursions to points of interest are made during the autumn and spring months.

Zoology and Botany

The Biological Laboratory furnishes adequate rooms, with the usual apparatus, for carrying on research in animal and plant morphology, embryology, and experimental zoology. For special investigations unusual apparatus will be obtained.

It is planned that, before receiving the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, each student shall have the opportunity to study marine and terrestrial life in some tropical region. In the spring and summer of 1910 this work was carried on in Jamaica, West Indies.

A collection of living plants in the botanical garden and conservatory, a physiological laboratory in the latter, and propagating grounds nearby are available for morphological and experimental study. A collection of carefully "fixed" and preserved alcoholic material of several hundred species of plants is available for histological and developmental study. The herbaria of the laboratory include the Schimper collection of European seed plants, the Field Club collection of local plants, the Fitzgerald collection of mosses, and smaller collections of fungi, marine algae, and Jamaican plants.

The library in the laboratory is supplemented by the main library of the university and other libraries in the city, including the excellent botanical library of John Donnell Smith, whose courtesy has always made his library and herbarium available for advanced students.

Prompt publication of abstracts of results is provided for in the University Circular. From time to time the results of extensive investigations in zoology are published by the University Press in a series of illustrated quarto monographs. The Adam T. Bruce Fellowship is awarded to men capable of carrying on research in biology. One of the graduate students in zoology may be appointed each year to occupy the University table at the marine laboratory of the U. S. Fisheries Bureau, at Woods Holl, Mass.

The laboratories are open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and for necessary research in the evenings, but only by special permission.

ADVANCED COURSES

I. Zoology

The advanced work in zoology is directed toward the development of investigators, and the student will receive such assistance and training toward that end as his individual needs seem to require. The set courses of the department are perhaps the less important part of that work. The courses in Zoology include: (1) Introductory and General Courses; (2) The study of the structure, morphology, classification and distribution of animals; (3) Study of the activities and functions of the developed organisms; (4) Study of the production of the structures and functions of the organism, in the history of the individual, and in the history of the race. The first two lines of work are provided in the Undergraduate Courses, and in many cases graduate students will find it well to follow certain of these. The third and fourth lines are provided for in the Advanced Courses. Any of the lines of work may lead directly to research, and such research will be carried on under the immediate oversight of the member of the staff in whose special field the problem falls. The later year or years of the candidate for the doctorate should be devoted to investigation, with little distraction by attendance on set courses. As a rule the student presents before the members of the department at some time during his work a discussion of the subject with which his investigations deal, in the form of a number of lectures.

The Advanced Courses are elastic, subjects being dealt with that appear especially useful to the students taking part; different students may devote themselves primarily to diverse parts of the subject. In the latter part of each course as a rule some special subject or problem will be taken up by each student, leading directly to research.

Journal Club.—All graduate students take part with the instructors in a weekly discussion of the current literature.

Seminary.—Professors JENNINGS and ANDREWS. The instructors and advanced students meet once a week in the evening for the discussion of some of the fundamental problems of biology. Usually some book of philosophical trend is read and discussed. In recent years the seminary has taken up thus Driesch's Science and Philosophy of the Organism; Lloyd Morgan's The Interpretation of Nature; v. Uexkuell's Umwelt und Innenwelt der Tiere. In 1911-1912 it is proposed to take up Bergson's Creative Evolution.

Production of the Structures and Functions of Organisms.—Professor JENNINGS. Three lectures or conferences and two laboratory periods weekly from the beginning of the session till February 1.

This subject will be dealt with in two courses, to be given in alternate years, as follows:

(a) Genetics. The production of structures and functions in the history of the race. The changes in organisms as they pass from generation to generation; the experimental study of reproduction, heredity, variation and evolution. This course will be given in 1911-1912.

(b) Development of the Individual. The experimental and analytical study of the production of structures and functions in the development of the individual; "experimental embryology," regeneration and regulation. This course will not be given in 1911-1912.

General Physiology of Animals; Functions and Activities of Developed Organisms.—Associate Professor MAST. Three lectures or conferences and two laboratory periods weekly through the year.

This course deals with the chemical and physical properties of organisms, the relation between animals and their environment, and fundamental processes which occur in organisms: metabolism, growth, movement, response to stimuli, behavior.

The work will be confined largely to a general and comparative study of the life processes in the Invertebrates. Plants and the Vertebrates will be considered only in a general way, since they are fully dealt with in the department of Botany or in the department of Physiology of the Medical School. The second half-year will probably be devoted mainly to Animal Behavior. Problems for investigation may be taken up in this or in other lines.

The attention of students of zoology should be called to the courses on the behavior of higher animals, given in the psychological department by Professor WATSON.

II. Botany

1. Journal Club and Seminary.

a. The Journal Club meets weekly through the year, in conjunction with the Zoological Journal Club.

b. The Botanical Seminary meets twice weekly, from December 1 to May 1. Professor JOHNSON.

2. Lectures and Laboratory Work.

I. Reproduction and Phylogeny in Plants. Professor JOHNSON.

a. Three lectures weekly through the year.

b. Laboratory work associated with the lectures, twice weekly through the year.

c. Definite problems in field work assigned for study in the autumn and spring.

II. The Histology and Ecological Anatomy of Plants. Professor JOHNSON.

a. Two lectures or conferences weekly from January 1 to April 1.

b. Laboratory work twice weekly from January 1 to April 1.

III. The History of Botany. Professor JOHNSON.

Two lectures weekly from October 1 to December 20.

The following themes will be discussed in alternate years: The Theory of Sex in Plants; The Cell Theory.

IV. Plant Physiology. Professor LIVINGSTON.

Lectures and laboratory work on the chief plant processes. Green's Plant Physiology will be read. A good general knowledge of physics and chemistry is highly desirable.

a. Three lectures or conferences weekly till February 1.

b. Six hours of laboratory work weekly till February 1.

V. Physiology of the Cell. Professor LIVINGSTON.

An advanced course on protoplasmic processes, such as protoplasmic movement, the chemistry of nutrition and respiration, enzymes, etc.

a. Two lectures weekly from February 1 to June 1.

b. Six hours of laboratory work weekly from February 1 to June 1, with reading of original articles.

The laboratory work will aim to give the student illustrative material bearing on the subject as well as to bring him into contact with problems and methods of research, and will require the reading of selected original literature, much of it in French or German. Open to students who have had Course IV or its equivalent, or a similar course in animal physiology.

VI. Problems in Plant Physiology. Professor LIVINGSTON.

a. Two lectures weekly through the year.

b. Six hours of laboratory work and a one-hour conference weekly throughout the year.

This course plans to give perspective and to prepare the student for profitable research in either pure or applied physiology. Each student will carry on experimentation upon and will work up the literature of restricted phases of plant activity, reporting on both literature and experiments. A considerable knowledge of the principles and methods of physics and chemistry is prerequisite.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

The collegiate courses in zoology and botany are known as Biology 1, Biology 2, Biology 3, and the Natural History Course.

1. General Biology and Embryology.

Six hours laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year. Professor ANDREWS and assistants.

This introductory course is open to all students and may be taken without previous training in chemistry or physics. It may be taken profitably by students interested in political economy, history, psychology, or ethics; it will be found useful to those looking forward to the ministry; and it is required of all who are to enter the medical school.

(a) General Biology. [Till March 15.]

In the laboratory each student studies with the microscope, or dissects, selected animals and plants, from the more simple such as amoeba and yeast, to the more complex such as the fern and frog. In the lectures some of the fundamental facts of Biology are emphasized.

(b) Embryology. [After March 15.]

Each student studies the cleavage of the living frog's egg and the formation and transformation of the tadpole. Subsequently he studies the hen's egg and the formation of organs in the embryo chick, learning to make his own serial sections, etc.

2. Comparative Anatomy and Bacteriology.

Six hours of laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year. Dr. COWLES.

This course continues the training of Biology 1 in limited fields, and is recommended to those who expect to study medicine, or to specialize in any department of Biology.

(a) Comparative Anatomy of Vertebrates. [Till March 15.]

The student dissects the skate, shark, codfish, necturus, turtle, alligator, pigeon, and dog. The lectures emphasize the principles of animal morphology.

(b) Bacteriology. [After March 15.]

The student learns the methods of handling, cultivating, and studying non-pathogenic bacteria. The practical work gives valuable training in careful laboratory methods. The lectures treat of bacteria from a biological point of view, as very important agents in natural processes.

3. Zoology and Botany.

Six hours of laboratory work and three lectures or other exercises weekly, through the year.

(a) Zoology. [First half-year.]

Professor ANDREWS and Dr. COWLES.

A comparative study of the chief groups of non-vertebrate animals. This may be made a whole course when botany is not needed.

(b) Botany. [Second half-year.]

Professors JOHNSON and LIVINGSTON.

The Structure of Root, Stem, Leaf, Flower, and Fruit. [January to May.]

An Introduction to Plant Physiology, with selected laboratory experiments. [After May 1.]

This is a course for beginners, giving a general survey of the nature and activities of plants, the out-door work serving to give students some familiarity with native plants in the field. This may be made a full course by those desiring it for general culture, or as a preparation for graduate work in botany or for work in forestry.

Elementary Zoology (Natural History.)

Nine hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor GRAVE.

This course is intended for those having no training in these subjects and is chiefly a laboratory course. It is required of students in Groups I, II, III.

PHYSIOLOGY

Facilities are offered in the Physiological Laboratory for special students, graduates in medicine and others, who are interested in special lines of investigation, and also for those who wish to follow courses leading to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Physiology or allied subjects.

Regular courses of instruction are given as follows:

1. Journal Club. Professor HOWELL.

Weekly, through the year.

2. Physiology of the Animal Body. Professor HOWELL, Dr. HOOKER and Dr. SNYDER.

Lectures, three hours weekly, through the year; laboratory, twelve hours weekly, first trimester.

[The laboratory course may be repeated in the third trimester.]

3. Advanced Laboratory Work. Professor HOWELL.

This work is done individually.

GREEK

GREEK SEMINARY

Professor GILDERSLEEVE will conduct the Greek Seminary, the plan of which is based on the continuous study of some leading author or some special department of literature.

The Seminary consists of the Director, Fellows, and Scholars, and such advanced students as shall satisfy the Director of their fitness for an active participation in the work by an essay, a critical exercise, or some similar test of attainments and capacity. All graduate students, however, may have the privilege of attending the course.

During the next academic year the study of the Greek Historians will constitute the chief occupation of the members and Thukydides will be the centre of the work. There will be two meetings a week during the entire session. Especial attention will be paid to the development of historical style and method.

In connection with the Seminary there will be held a series of conferences on Greek Historiography.

The students should possess Herodotos, Thukydides, Xenophon, Polybios, Dionysios of Halikarnassos (rhetorical works), and Schäfer's Quellenkunde der griechishen Geschichte.

ADVANCED AND GRADUATE COURSES

1. Professor GILDERSLEEVE will also conduct a course of Practical Exercises in Greek, consisting chiefly in extemporaneous translation from Greek into English and English into Greek, two meetings a week from the beginning of the session to the first of January.

2. Notice of other courses is reserved.

Associate Professor MILLER will conduct the following courses:

1. Readings twice a week in Thukydides during the first half of the year.

2. Lectures and Practical Exercises in Greek Palæography, twice weekly during the latter half of the year.

3. Exercises in advanced Greek composition for the benefit of candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

Dr. A. M. SOHO will conduct a course throughout the year in Modern Greek.

The object is to impart a practical knowledge of the language by reading standard authors and by conversation, upon which especial emphasis will be laid. During the second half-year a portion of the time will be devoted to the consideration of the phonetic and morphological laws which the modern language followed through its development from the classical Greek.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Xenophon, Memorabilia (selections).
   Plato, Apology.
   Herodotus (selections).

   Three hours weekly, first year. Associate Professor MILLER.

   Prose Composition.

   One hour weekly, first year. Associate Professor MILLER.

   Private Reading: Plato, Crito; Homer, Odyssey (two books).

2. Andocides I; Lysias (selections).
   Euripides (one play).
   Prose Composition.

   Three hours weekly, second year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.

   Private Reading: Xenophon, Hellenica (book 1); Euripides (one play).

3. Plato, Protagoras.
   Lyric Poets.
   Sophocles (one play).
   Survey of Greek Literature.
   Prose Composition.

   Three hours weekly, third year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.

   Private Reading: Elegiac and Iambic Poets; Aeschylus (one play).

4. Thucydides (book VII).
   Aristophanes, Frogs.

   Two hours weekly, fourth year. Associate Professor SPIEKER.

   Greek Life: lectures and conferences.

   One hour weekly, fourth year. Dr. ROBINSON.

   Private Reading: Demosthenes (select orations); Aristophanes, Clouds.

Associate Professor SPIEKER offers, for beginners in Greek, a course of three hours weekly throughout the year. This course is intended primarily for the benefit of such graduate students of language as may feel the need of a knowledge of Greek in the prosecution of their work; but undergraduate students who have the ministry in view, and who have not had any previous training in Greek, may also be admitted. The class will be advanced as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness of work.

Latin

The most important organ of training is the Latin Seminary which meets twice a week throughout the year, under the direction of Professor Smith. It consists of the director, fellows, scholars, and such advanced students as shall give satisfactory proof of their ability and training. Any graduate student is at liberty to attend the Seminary exercises, but each regular member is required to take his turn in the work. Each year some author or group of authors in a given department of literature is made the centre of study. The subjects treated during the last three years are as follows:

1908-1909. The Roman Historians, especially Livy and Tacitus.
1909-1910. The Roman Epic, especially Vergil.
1910-1911. The Roman Drama, especially Plautus and Terence.

In addition to the regular work of the Seminary, courses of lectures are given every year by the director, and from time to time by other qualified persons.

During the academic year 1911-1912 the Seminary will be given to the Roman Satire, and the centre of this work will be Horace and Juvenal.

Students are requested to provide themselves with texts of Horace (ed. Wickham, Oxford Classical Text), Juvenal and Persius (ed. Owen, Oxford Classical Text), Petronius (ed. Buecheler, Berlin, Weidmann), and Apuleius. Metamorphoses (ed. Helm, Teubner Text).

ADVANCED AND GRADUATE COURSES

1.* Professor Smith will lecture on the Roman Satire once a week throughout the year.

2. During the first half-year he will hold a series of weekly conferences on the Cena Trimalchionis of Petronius.

3. During the second half-year he will lecture once a week on the Metamorphoses of Apuleius and will comment on selected portions of the text, more especially, the Story of Cupid and Psyche.

4.* Professor Wilson will lecture once a week throughout the year on Latin Epigraphy. The course will be accompanied by a series of practical exercises in the interpretation of inscriptions from original stones and from published texts.

5. The advanced students will meet once a week during the year for the rapid reading of Horace, Persius and Juvenal.

For Dr. Magoffin's courses in Greek and Roman History see the programme in History.

Notice of other courses is reserved.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Livy (selections); Terence (one play): Vergil, Bucolics; Catullus (selections).

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

Private Reading: Cicero, Cato Maior; Vergil, Aeneid (book VIII).

Prose Composition.

Weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

2. Tacitus, Annals (selections); Pliny's Letters (selections); Horace, Odes and Epodes.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

*This course will be given at an afternoon hour for the benefit of those who cannot attend in the forenoon.

Private Reading: Tacitus, Germania; Horace, Satires and Epistles (selections).

3. Lucretius (selections); Vergil, Georgics; Horace, Ars Poetica.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

Private Reading: Cicero, First Tusculan; Quintilian (book x).

Roman Literature (with reading of selected passages).

Weekly, through the year. Professor SMITH.

4. Juvenal (selections); Petronius (selections); Apuleius (selections).

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

Private Reading: Martial (selections); Seneca's Letters (selections); Roman Elegy (selections).

Roman Life: lectures and conferences.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

5. Advanced Latin Composition.

Weekly, through the year. Professor MUSTARD.

NOTE.—Courses 2, 3, and 4 may be taken only by those who have pursued the courses preceding them.

Roman Literature (Course 3) and Roman Life (Course 4), each one hour weekly, are open to all students, and taken together are counted as half a course.

CLASSICAL ARCHAEOLOGY AND ART

The work in Classical Archæology and Art is carried on by means of a Seminary, various courses of lectures, conferences with individual students and practical exercises in the museums. The archæological material in the possession of the university includes good collections of Greek and Roman inscriptions, marbles, bronzes, vases and other terracottas, coins, gems, etc., which not only serve the purpose of illustration, but also form the basis of original investigation. These are supplemented by squeezes, photographs, and lantern slides, as well as by the casts belonging to the university and to the Peabody Institute. The new Walters Gallery, which is not far from the university, contains a very valuable collection of Greek and Roman antiquities.

SEMINARY AND ADVANCED COURSES

The subjects treated in the Seminary, or presented in lectures, vary from year to year, so that in three or four years of continuous residence students are brought into contact with the most important of the ancient authors and with the principal fields of archæological research. These subjects include Greek and Roman architecture, epigraphy, private life, topography, sculpture, painting, ceramics, coinage, gems, bronzes, and the Etruscan and Mycenæan civilizations. The following courses are offered for the year 1911-12:

1. Archæological Seminary. Selected topics in the Latin Inscriptions. Professor WILSON.
Two hours weekly, first half-year.

2. Archæological Seminary. Selected topics in the Greek Inscriptions. Associate Professor ROBINSON.
Two hours weekly, second half-year.

NOTE.—The University collection contains nearly two hundred original inscriptions, extending in date from 500 B. C. to 500 A. D. These, together with casts, squeezes and other reproductions, furnish material for original investigation in this field.

3. The history of Ancient Roman Painting, with especial reference to interior decoration. Professor WILSON.
Weekly, second half-year.

4. The Topography and Monuments of Ancient Rome, with particular reference to the Roman Forum. Professor WILSON.
Weekly, through the year.

5.* An introduction to Latin Epigraphy, with practical exercises in the interpretation of inscriptions from original stones and published texts. Professor WILSON.
Weekly, through the year.

6. Life and Art in the Mycenæan Age and their relation to Homer. Associate Professor ROBINSON.
Weekly, first half-year.

7. Outlines of Greek Architecture. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Weekly, second half-year.

8. Greek Epigraphy, with practical exercises in reading from squeezes and original stones. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Weekly, first half-year.

9.* The history of Greek Sculpture. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Weekly, through the year.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. Outlines of Classical Archæology; lectures and conferences.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON and Associate Professor ROBINSON.

This course is intended to furnish a rapid survey of the principal fields of Greek, Etruscan, and Roman archæology and art. Knowledge of Latin and Greek is not required.

2. The Private Life of the Romans.

Weekly, through the year. Professor WILSON.

3. The Private Life of the Greeks.

Weekly, through the year. Associate Professor ROBINSON.

Courses 2 and 3 are parts of Latin 4 and Greek 4, respectively, but may be pursued by any student of the University. Taken together they count as half a course, and with the course in Roman Literature (Latin 3) as a full course.

SANSKRIT AND COMPARATIVE PHILOLOGY

SLAVIC PHILOLOGY

Courses of instruction, directed by Professor Bloomfield, with the assistance of an Instructor or Fellow in Sanskrit, are provided in the Indo-Iranian languages

*This course will be given at a late hour in the afternoon for the benefit of those who are unable to attend in the morning.

(Vedic and Classical Sanskrit, Pāli and Prākrit, Avestan and Old Persian), in Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European languages, in historical Ethnology of the Indo-European peoples, and in general Linguistic Science. During recent sessions several courses in Lithuanian, one of the Balto-Slavic languages, were given, and last session Dr. Edgerton conducted a course in Russian. During the coming session courses in Old Bulgarian and Russian are offered by Dr. Edgerton; see the statement of these courses at the end of this rubric.

These courses aim to meet the wants of those who wish to devote themselves to the study of these branches exclusively and for their own sake, i. e., those who wish to become specialists in Sanskrit Philology or Comparative Philology; and also the needs of students of languages in general, who wish to obtain a broader linguistic basis for special studies in other departments of philology.

The advanced work aims specially to meet the wants of those who wish to make Indian Philology or Comparative Philology their special study. This work centres in the Sanskrit Seminary and not infrequently involves the use of Sanskrit manuscripts.

A prolonged course in Sanskrit, involving two lectures a week during two years and attendance in the Sanskrit Seminary for a half-year (one hour a week), is planned, so as to furnish a good knowledge of Classical Sanskrit, and to include an introduction into the dialect of the Vedas. This amount of work represents material sufficient for the first subsidiary subject for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. A course in the same study for one and a half years, involving two hours a week, is the amount required for a second subsidiary subject leading to the same degree.

A synopsis of the courses offered during past years may be presented under the following heads:

I. Courses in the general principles of comparative philology or linguistic science, and on special chapters thereof; lectures on ethnology and the history of religions.

II. Courses in the general comparative grammar of the Indo-European languages; comparative grammar of Sanskrit and Avestan; comparative study of Indo-European accentuation; comparative study of Greek, Latin, Sanskrit, and Teutonic, including vocalism, consonantism, noun-formation, and inflections.

III. The Vedic, Sanskrit, and Prākrit dialects; Rig-Veda; Atharva-Veda; literature of the Brāhmanas and Upanishads. The law books of Manu and Yājñavalkya; the Drama Çakuntalā and introduction into Prākrit; Pañcatantra, Hitopadeça, Kathāsaritsāgara, and Nala. Sanskrit grammar and prose composition.

IV. The Pāli language and Buddhist literature.

V. The Avestan language and the sacred books of the Avesta.

VI. The Lithuanian language and literature; Russian language and literature.

The following courses, in charge of Professor Bloomfield, will be given during the session of 1911-1912:

A. Linguistic Science and Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European Languages.

1. The elements of Linguistic Science, with an account of the Ethnology and Religions of the Indo-European peoples. Weekly, through the year.

2. Comparative grammar of the more familiar Indo-European languages (Greek, Latin, German, and Sanskrit): The phonetics and history of the Indo-European consonants. Weekly, through the year.

B. Indo-Aryan Philology.

3. Sanskrit Seminary: The Hindu Beast Fables of the cycle of the Pañcatantra. Weekly, through the year.

4. Advanced course in the Veda: Selected Vedic prose (Brāhmanas and Upanishads). Weekly, through the year.

5. The Elements of Vedic philology: Vedic grammar, metres, and interpretation of selected hymns of the Rig-Veda. Weekly, second half-year.

6. The Pāli language and selections from Buddhist literature. Weekly, through the year.

7. Beginners' course in Sanskrit: grammar (Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar) and interpretation of an easy text (Lanman's Reader). Twice weekly, through the year.

8. Selections from the Hitopadeça and the Law-Book of Manu (second year's course in Classical Sanskrit). Twice weekly, first half-year.

NOTE.—No knowledge of Sanskrit is presupposed for courses 1, 2, and 7. Course 1 sketches briefly the history of the Science of Language; presents a systematic account of the ethnology and religions of the Indo-European peoples; deals with the principles that govern the life and growth of language, and finally treats of the origin of language. Course 2 is intended as an elementary introduction into the methods and results of the Comparative Grammar of the more important Indo-European languages.

The following courses in Slavic Philology, offered by Dr. Edgerton, are intended to meet the needs, first, of students who desire some acquaintance with Historical and Comparative Slavic Philology. For this purpose, course 9 is basic, dealing with the most ancient and fundamental of the Slavic languages. Course 10 is also conducted with due regard to Historical Grammar, and those who desire will be able to obtain from it a general idea of the relation of the Slavic group to the rest of the Indo-European family, even without previous knowledge of Old Bulgarian. Secondly, courses 10 and 11 are intended for those who desire a practical reading knowledge of Russian, and some first-hand acquaintance with the great authors of Russian literature. Course 10 is for those who know no Russian: Course 11 for more advanced students who desire practice in rapid reading, combined with some literary comment and criticism.

9. Old Bulgarian. Historical study of the forms and inflections of the language, with practice in reading and analysis of representative texts (Leskien's Handbuch der Altbulgarischen Sprache). Weekly, through the year.

10. Elements of the Russian language. Brief survey of grammar, followed by selected readings from modern writers (Berneker's Russische Grammatik and Boehme's Russische Literatur (2 vols.) both published in the Samm lung Göschen). Twice weekly, through the year.

11. Modern Russian Fiction. First half-year: Selected short stories of Gogol, Turgeniev, Tolstoi, Gorky, Chekhov and Andreev. Second half-year: One longer novel each by Turgeniev and Dostoievsky. Weekly, through the year.

Oriental Seminary

The various courses are adapted to the requirements of four classes of students, namely: (a) students of theology wishing to obtain a thorough acquaintance with the sacred tongue and its sister idioms as a means of eluci dating Scripture and problems of the comparative history of religion; (b) students of linguistics intending to make comparative grammar of the Semitic languages their specialty; (c) students of Oriental history and archæology desirous of drawing directly from the original sources; (d) persons looking for instruction in the living Oriental languages (as modern Arabic, Turkish, Persian, modern Hebrew, Amharic, Malay, Tagalog, etc.) for practical purposes.

A room has been set apart containing a well-equipped working library for all the branches of Oriental research (including the library of the late Professor A. Dillmann, of Berlin, the Leopold Strouse Semitic Library, a special collection of works on Philippine dialects, etc.), and some advanced students are usually present to help in the preparation for the recitations conducted by the Director of the Seminary, and to furnish any other aid that may be desired. Near the Dillmann Library, on the same floor, are some archæological and antiquarian collections, including the Cohen Collection of Egyptian Antiquities, the Sonneborn Collection of Jewish Ceremonial Objects, collections of Hebrew and other Oriental manuscripts, Babylonian seal-cylinders and clay tablets, etc.

The following courses are offered for the academic year, 1911-12:

ENGLISH

GRADUATE COURSES

In the graduate courses the subject of English is studied with reference to the historical and technical aspects of linguistic and literary science. The usual sequence of courses enables a student, in three or four years, to study with precision the important departments of grammar and of literature, and to become trained in the process of original investigation. Instruction is imparted by lectures, by freer conferences, by the methods of the Seminary, and by class-room recitation. A Journal Club is conducted for the purpose of supplementing the regular courses with reports of the current work of scholars.

1. English Seminary

Graduate students are admitted to the Seminary as soon as they have satisfied initial requirements for independent research.

In the academic year 1911-12, the Seminary will be engaged in the study and investigation of the following subjects:

(a) English Literature of the Nineteenth Century. First half-year.

(b) English Literature of the Fourteenth Century. Second half-year.

The Seminary will be conducted by Professor BRIGHT. Tuesday and Thursday, 3-5 p. m.

2. Lectures on Historical Grammar, Versification, and Literary Criticism. Professor BRIGHT. Tuesday and Thursday, 12 m.

3. Interpretation of selected texts. Professor BRIGHT. Monday, 12 m.

4. The Journal Club of the English Seminary. Professor BRIGHT. Alternate Fridays, 3-5 p. m.

5. Professor John William Cunliffe, of the University of Wisconsin, will give a course of lectures on the comparative study of the drama, especially on Renascence Tragedy in Italy, France, and England. Beginning of the second half-year.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

Introductory courses in (a) Rhetoric and English Composition, (b) Platform Speaking and Forensics, and (c)

English Literature, are prescribed for all undergraduate students. For those who may wish to continue their study in any of these departments, elective courses are provided in the various forms of discourse and in the more important periods of English and American literature. Further practice in debating is provided in connection with the elective course in exposition and argument, and in the annual inter-class and inter-collegiate debates.

English Composition

1. Rhetoric and English Composition.

Theory based upon text-books, lectures, and discussions; critical study of prose writers; frequent practice in writing. This course is prescribed during the first year.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. FRENCH and Mr. C. A. MYERS.

1*a*. English Composition.

This course is prescribed during the second year. Students who have attained a mark of "8" on the work of the first year are excused from this course.

2. Description and Narration.

Readings in standard prose. Practice in writing.

One hour a week, through the year. Professor GREENE.

3. Exposition and Argument.

During the first term the theory of exposition with frequent practice in expository writing. During the second and third terms, the theory of argument; practice in writing; platform speaking and debate.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

Public Speaking

1. Reading and Platform Speaking.

In this course attention is paid to correct habits of breathing and to enunciation and expression. Practice in the preparation and delivery of speeches adapted to various special occasions is obtained in the second half-year. The course is prescribed during the second year.

One hour a week, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

2. Public Speaking.

The principles of argumentation; practice in argumentative writing and in debate; parliamentary procedure. This course is prescribed during the third year.

One hour a week, through the year. Dr. FRENCH.

NOTE.—Additional practice in platform speaking and in debate is provided in English Composition 3. A more specific statement respecting these courses is made on page 167.

English Literature

1. English Literature: introductory course.

The class will become acquainted with the course of English Literature from the seventh century until about 1600. Much of the poetry of Chaucer, Spenser, and Shakespeare will be read in the class-room and in private reading. This course is prescribed during the second year.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor GREENE.

2. English Literature, 1600-1774.

First half-year: English Literature from 1600 to 1674; special attention will be given to the English Bible and to the works of Bacon and Milton.

Second half-year: From the Restoration to the death of Goldsmith (1660-1774); special attention will be given to the writings of Dryden, Addison, Steele, Swift, Pope, Gray, Goldsmith, and Johnson.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor GREENE.

3. English Literature, 1765-1892.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. MYERS.

6. English.

First half-year: Anglo-Saxon,—Language and Literature.

Second half-year: Middle English,—Language and Literature.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. MYERS.

GERMAN

Under this head are included German Language and Literature and subjects in the wider field of Germanic Philology. Regular instruction, through seminary and lectures, is given in German Literature of the older and newer periods, and in Gothic, Comparative Germanic Grammar, Old High German, and Middle High German; while occasional courses are offered in Old Norse, Old Saxon, and Old Frisian.

Seminary

The library of the German Seminary, to which all advanced students have the fullest access, is open Mondays to Fridays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. The Seminary treats, in successive half-years, some theme from the period of German Classicism or Romanticism, and a subject from the literature of Middle High German. During the year 1911-12 the Seminary will meet three times weekly. The subject for the first half-year will be Goethe's Faust. In the study of the First Part, beginning with the Urfaust, the questions of conception and composition of the drama will be considered, in chronological order, from the point of view of Goethe's mind and art. The Second Part will be interpreted in selected portions, and Goethe's draft of particular scenes and of the uncompleted plot will be examined, together with the Paralipomena. The Seminary for the first half-year will be conducted by Professor Wood. During the second half-year two of the representative Middle High German courtly epics will be studied, viz.: Hartmann von Aue's Iwein and Gottfried von Strassburg's Tristan. The Seminary will be in charge of Professor Collitz during the second half-year.

Students are requested to procure Goethe's Faust, the First Part, edited by Calvin Thomas, second edition, Boston, 1898; Goethe's Sämmtliche Werke, Jubiläums-Ausgabe, 13 Bd. Faust, hrsg. Erich Schmidt. Stuttgart (Cotta); Fr. Strehlke, Paralipomena zu Goethe's Faust, Stuttgart, 1891; Iwein, hrsg. Benecke und Lachmann, 4 Ausgabe, Berlin, 1877; Tristan, hrsg. K. Marold, 1 Band, Text, Leipzig, 1906 (Teutonia, 6. Heft).

Germanic Society

The Germanic Society, which includes as members all the instructors and advanced students in German, meets fortnightly. Before it are presented not only reports on articles in current journals, but also successive results of studies by the members. The chief object of the Society is to foster and guide the aptitude for more sustained individual investigation than the collective work of the Seminary offers scope for.

ADVANCED COURSES

1. The German Romantic School.

Professor Wood. Two hours weekly, first half-year.

The beginnings of Romanticism in German Literature will be studied in works of Tieck, Friedrich and August Wilhelm Schlegel, and Novalis. The relation of the German classicists (Goethe) to the new literary movement will then be considered, and this will be followed by the reading of representative works of the later German romanticists.

2. History of German Literature in the later Seventeenth and the earlier Eighteenth Century.

Professor Wood. Two hours weekly, first half-year.

After a review of the Second Silesian literary movement, the critical reforms at the close of the seventeenth century will be considered in detail, after which a series of representative eighteenth century works will be read, extending to the beginnings of German Classicism. The movements will be considered from the point of view of literary form, and the attempt will be made to characterize the various representative forms as nationally German, or as adaptations from foreign sources, or, finally, as an evolution from both.

3. Gothic and the elements of Comparative Germanic Grammar.

Professor COLLITZ. Two hours weekly, through the year.

Students are requested to procure Braune, Gotische Grammatik, 7. Auflage, Halle, 1909.

4. Old High German (Introductory Course).

Professor COLLITZ. Weekly, through the year.

Braune's Abriss der Althochdeutschen Grammatik, 4. Auflage, Halle, 1906, will be used; also the same author's Althochdeutsches Lesebuch, 6. Auflage, Halle, 1907.

5. Reynard the Fox in Middle Low German.

Professor COLLITZ. Weekly, first half-year.

Students are requested to procure the edition of Reinke de Vos by A. Lübben, Oldenburg, 1867.

6. Middle High German (Introductory Course).

Dr. KURRELMEYER. Twice weekly, first half-year.

Paul, Mittelhochdeutsche Grammatik, 7. Auflage, Halle, 1908; Bachmann, Mittelhochdeutsches Lesebuch, 4. Auflage, Zürich, 1909.

7. Goethe's Clavigo and Die Mitschuldigen.

Dr. KURRELMEYER. Weekly, second half-year.

From the point of view of recent text criticism, the attempt will be made to reconstruct the authentic form of the two dramas, as compared with the text in the Ausgabe letzter Hand.

Special Courses

*1. Scientific German. Dr. KURRELMEYER.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

*2. Historical German. Dr. ROULSTON.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

3. German Conversation. Mr. HOFMANN.

Weekly, through the year.

This course is open to students who have completed Course 1.

German 7.

German Conversation.

Weekly, through the year. Mr. HOFMANN.

ROMANCE LANGUAGES

Instruction is provided in the three leading Romance languages and literatures, and the advanced work is so arranged that the student may elect any one of the three as his principal subject of study.

In addition to lectures and regular class exercises, there is a French, a Spanish, and an Italian Seminary, each one of which provides practical training in methods of independent research and may be participated in by such students as show sufficient preparation. The Romance Journal Club, composed of the staff and graduate students of the department, furnishes an opportunity, at its weekly meetings, for discussion of some of the more important current literature bearing on the Romance Languages and for the presentation of such original papers by its members as do not fall within the scope of the Seminaries.

The library facilities of the University, recently enlarged by the addition of the A. Marshall Elliott Library, are further supplemented by the numerous Romance works in the Peabody and Enoch Pratt Libraries, and by the readily accessible material in the Library of Congress.

Certain of the courses are conducted entirely in French; preliminary instruction is provided in the undergraduate department for students who are not equipped to follow these courses as regular members.

Courses marked (*) will be given at an afternoon hour, or in the forenoon of Saturday.

HISTORY

Facilities for research are offered in the principal fields of history. Special attention is given to methods of investigation and each advanced student comes under the personal direction of the instructors in his chosen field. This supervision is obtained through seminary meetings and frequent private consultation.

In addition to the library of the university, students make use of the admirable collections of source material in the Peabody Library and the Maryland Historical Society, and are in constant touch with the great resources of the Library of Congress and the departments in Washington. The university library has recently received large and important accessions of historical works and documentary material.

GRADUATE COURSES

European History. The courses in European History direct attention to the social, economic, and constitutional development of European peoples. The subjects follow in consecutive order, the topics for each year forming a complete and independent group. The series requires three years for completion and offers opportunities for close study of selected portions of the mediæval and early modern history of the Continent. A weekly seminary is held for the study of problems in European history and institutions.

Courses in Latin palæography and in French palæography are given in their respective departments.

English History. The constitutional and social history of England is treated in connection with the corresponding periods in European history. A part of the seminary work is devoted to problems in this field and direction is given to further special research.

American History. The courses in American History are arranged in a cycle of three years. They begin with the history of British colonization in America and deal with the constitutional and economic growth of the colonies and the constitutional and political history of the United States after 1783. A weekly seminary is held for research in special subjects in American History.

Ancient History. The courses in Ancient History take into consideration the constitutional, social, artistic, and economic development of the peoples of Greece and Italy. Special attention is given to the historical evidence furnished by epigraphy and archæology. The constitutional history of Greece and Rome is supplemented by lectures on the Roman Law. Certain portions of Oriental History are treated in the departments of Semitics and Sanskrit.

Special Lectures. The Albert Shaw Lectures on Diplomatic History are given annually by investigators in selected fields of American and foreign relations. The scope of the lectures is not confined to the United States, but lectures on European diplomatic history will also find their due place. The course for 1910-11 was given by Dr. C. O. Paullin, of Washington, D. C., on "The Diplomatic Activity of the American Navy in the Far East." In 1911-12 the lecturer will be Professor Isaac J. Cox, of the University of Cincinnati, on the diplomatic negotiations connected with the annexation of West Florida.

The James Schouler Lectures in History and Political Science are given annually by lecturers of prominence, upon topics indicated in the title of the lectureship. These lectures are open to the public as well as to the students and members of the University. The course for 1909 was given by Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University, and that for 1910 by George Walter Prothero, Litt. D., formerly professor of history in the University of Edinburgh, now editor of the Quarterly Review and Honorary Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge. The lecturer for 1911 was Professor John Bassett Moore, of Columbia University.

Other lectures of interest to the students of this department, either open to the public or designed for class instruction, are given from time to time by distinguished scholars outside the university. These lectures are, in part, provided for from the income of the fund bequeathed by the late Professor Herbert B. Adams.

Historical and Political Science Association. This monthly meeting of the instructors and students of the departments of history, political economy, and political science affords an opportunity to hear addresses from prominent specialists, to consider important movements and undertakings, and to present critical reviews of recent publications in the fields of history, political economy, and political science.

For the year 1911-12 the courses will be given as follows:

Professor VINCENT.

1. Constitutional History of England.

After a rapid review of the beginnings of parliamentary government, the course will devote special attention to the period from the seventeenth to the nineteenth century.

Two hours weekly, through the year.

2. The Reformation.

With the study of the religious questions will be included the economic and social conditions which accompanied the movement in western Europe.

One hour weekly, through the year.

3. Seminary of European and English History.

Two hours, alternate weeks, through the year.

Associate Professor BALLAGH.

1. The Development of the American Revolution.

One hour weekly, first half year.

2. The Sources and Formation of the United States Constitution.

One hour weekly, second half year.

3. History of the United States Public Land System.

One hour weekly, through the year.

4. Seminary in American History.

Two hours, alternate weeks.

Dr. MAGOFFIN.

1. History of Greece during the Hellenistic Period.

One hour weekly, through the year.

2. History of Rome and Italy from 133 to 44 B. C.

One hour weekly, through the year.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES.

1. History of Greece and Rome.

The political and constitutional history of Greece and Rome, approached through the translated texts of Herodotus, Thucydides, Suetonius, Tacitus, and others, with the aid of modern authorities.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Dr. MAGOFFIN.

[To be given in 1912-13.]

2. European History.

From the decline of the Roman Empire to the nineteenth century, dealing with the Romano-Barbarian kingdoms, the empire of Charles the Great, feudalism, the crusades, empire and papacy, renaissance, the Protestant revolution, the religious wars, eighteenth century states and the doctrine of the balance of power, the French Revolution, the Napoleonic period, and the reorganization of Europe in the nineteenth century.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Professor VINCENT.

3. English History.

Chiefly constitutional and political, dealing with the origins and development of parliamentary institutions, the relations of England with Continental Europe, and the modern expansion of the British Empire.

Three hours weekly, through the year. [Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, 9 a. m.] Professor VINCENT.

4. American History.

Colonial history and institutions, the formation of the Union, the development of constitutional government and law, the growth of foreign policy, the expansion of the nation. Emphasis will be laid on the national period, and the subject will be brought to the close of the nineteenth century. Open to students who have had History 2 or 3 or Political Economy 1.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Associate Professor BALLAGH.

GRADUATE COURSES

The graduate instruction in Political Economy is designed primarily to meet the needs of advanced students preparing for a professional career in economic science. The courses afford systematic instruction in general economic principles, intimate acquaintance with special fields of economic activity, and, most important of all, knowledge of and ability to employ sound methods of economic research. The work centers in the Economic Seminary, the membership of which is limited to the most advanced students, and the primary design of which is to develop scientific research in economic study and investigation.

Formal graduate instruction is offered in Economic Theory and in Applied Economics, by parallel courses of lectures throughout the year. The particular topics treated vary from year to year. In 1909-10 Professor Hollander lectured two hours weekly on the economic system of David Ricardo, and two hours weekly on the history and theory of taxation. During the year 1910-11 attention was given in the course on economic theory to the principles of political economy. In the course on applied economics, careful study was made of the history and theory of municipal finance. Associate Professor Barnett lectured during the first half-year on the history of industrial corporations and during the second half-year on the regulation of corporations. Special courses of lectures were given during the year by Dr. Frank R. Rutter, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, on "The Tariff Problem;" by Professor Thomas W. Page, of the University of Virginia, on "Immigration;" and by Mr. Logan G. McPherson, Director of the Bureau of Railway Economics, on "Transportation."

The courses offered for 1911-12 are as follows:

1. The Economic Seminary.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER and Associate Professor BARNETT.

The work of the year will continue to be a systematic study of the history, structure, and activities of labor organizations in the United States.

2. Economic Theories since Adam Smith.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER.

A critical survey will be made of the development of fundamental concepts of economic science from Adam Smith to current thought. The topical or cross-sectional method of treatment will be adopted, and the history of the theories of Wages, Interest, Profits, Rent, Value, Production, Distribution, and Consumption will be successively reviewed.

3. American Public Finance.

Two hours weekly, through the year. Professor HOLLANDER.

The financial experiences of the States and Territories of the United States will be taken as the basis for critical and comparative study. Attention will be paid to recent tendencies in commonwealth taxation and exercise will be afforded in the use of original sources of financial information.

4. Banking.

One hour weekly, through the year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

During the first half-year the history of American banking will be considered. During the second half-year attention will be given to a comparative study of modern banking systems.

Special courses of lectures will be given by non-resident lecturers upon such practical economic problems as charities and correction, railway transportation, industrial organization.

A reading class is organized yearly by the more advanced students of the department for the co-operative study of economic texts and for the critical discussion of current economic literature.

In co-operation with the departments of history and political science, opportunity is offered in the Historical and Political Science Association for the presentation and discussion of original papers in economic science by instructors and invited speakers, and for the review by students of current publications of importance in these fields.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. (a) Economic History.

The economic development of England from the tenth century to the present time and the most important experiences of the United States are studied.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

(b) Elements of Economics.

Particular attention is given to the theory of distribution and its application to leading economic problems.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

2. (a) Finance.

The theory and practice of finance are considered, with particular reference to problems of taxation as presented in the experience of the United States.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Professor HOLLANDER.

(b) Money and Banking.

The principles of monetary science are taught with reference to practical conditions in modern systems of currency, banking, and credit.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

3. (a) Statistical Methods.

After a preliminary study of the value and place of statistics as an instrument of investigation, attention is directed to the chief methods used in statistical inquiry.

Three hours weekly, first half-year. Associate Professor BARNETT.

(b) Economic Theory.

Critical study is made of recent economic theories.

Three hours weekly, second half-year. Professor HOLLANDER.

NOTE.—Undergraduate Course 2 is open only to such students as have completed Course 1; and, save under exceptional circumstances, Course 3 only to students who have completed 1 and 2.

Political Science

Graduate Courses

The graduate work in Political Science has for its aim the preparation of advanced students for professional and original work in the fields of Constitutional Law, International Law and Diplomacy, and Political Philosophy. It seeks also to supply the necessary training for those desiring to enter the higher branches of the public service, and to furnish a broad and philosophical equipment to those who expect later to pursue the study and practice of the law.

Seminary

In addition to the Historical and Political Science Association, at which the students of the departments of History, Economics, and Political Science meet jointly for the presentation of papers by the instructors and by invited speakers, a fortnightly Seminary is conducted by Professor Willoughby, at which reports upon special subjects are read by the students and discussed.

Journal Club

A fortnightly meeting of the advanced students, under the direction of Professor Willoughby, is held for the discussion of current political literature—books and periodicals.

Lectures

The lectures are so arranged as to give three or more years of continuous instruction, covering the following subjects: The Theory of the State (being a general introduction to the study of Constitutional and International Law), Foreign Constitutional Law, United States

Constitutional Law, the Legal Aspects of Economic and Industrial Problems, the History of Political Theories and of Political Literature, and Historical Jurisprudence.

During the year 1911-12 the following courses will be given:

1. United States Constitutional Law. Professor WILLOUGHBY.
   Three hours weekly, first half-year.
   This course is in continuation and completion of the course given in 1910-11.
2. Introduction to the Study of Public Law; Principles of Political Philosophy. Professor WILLOUGHBY.
   Three hours weekly, second half-year.
3. Political Theories and Political Literature in France in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries. Professor WILLOUGHBY.
   One hour weekly, throughout the year.
4. Principles of International Law. Dr. J. B. SCOTT.
   One hour weekly, throughout the year.
   This course is a continuation of the one given in 1910-11.
5. The Principles and Practice of Diplomacy. Dr. J. B. SCOTT.
   One hour weekly, throughout the year.
6. Historical Development of the Judicial Institutions of England. Dr. B. C. STEINER.
   One hour weekly, throughout the year.

Undergraduate instruction in Political Science is given in the departments of History and Economics.

Philosophy, Psychology, and Education

Graduate Courses

The graduate work of the department takes different directions according as the chief interest of the student lies in the field of Philosophy, in Experimental and Comparative Psychology, or in Education.

In Philosophy, opportunity is offered for specialization in systematic philosophy, in logic and the philosophy of natural science, in the history of philosophy, or in ethics. In Psychology, the student may center his study upon human psychology, animal behavior, or psychiatry. In Education, the work recognizes the bearing of the historical and theoretical material upon present practical problems.

The student's program during the first and second years is adapted, so far as possible, to his individual needs and his purposes as teacher or investigator. In the third year, the student concentrates upon the topic of his dissertation.

Graduate Conference.

Meetings of all the instructors and graduate students are held as occasion may arise for the presentation of the results of work of members of the department, for hearing papers by invited guests, and for the informal discussion of important recent publications.

Philosophy

1. Seminary.

Individual work to be separately arranged for each student under the direction of Professor Lovejoy. The work will consist of required reading, methodical analysis of problems, the presentation of a connected series of fortnightly or monthly papers, and frequent conferences with the instructor.

2. British Empiricism.

Professor Griffin. One hour a week, through the year.

3. Post-Kantian Philosophy: Fichte and Schelling.

Professor Buchner. One hour a week, through the year.

4. Contemporary Tendencies in Metaphysics and Epistemology.
Professor LOVEJOY. Two hours a week, through the year.

5. English Ethics from Hobbes to Price.
Professor GRIFFIN. One hour a week, through the year.

6. The Ethical Theory of Distribution.
Professor LOVEJOY. One hour a week, through the year.

Psychology

7. Introduction to Experimental Psychology.
Dr. DUNLAP. Lectures and laboratory exercises, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 2 to 4 p. m.

8. Experimental Psychology (Research Course).
Professor WATSON and Dr. DUNLAP. Two hours a week, through the year.

9. Introduction to Comparative Psychology.
Professor WATSON. Lectures and laboratory exercises. Two hours a week, through the year.

10. Comparative Psychology (Research Course).
Professor WATSON. Two hours a week, through the year.

11. Advanced General Psychology.
Professor WATSON. Two hours a week, through the year.

12. Psychological Journal Club.
One hour a week, through the year.

(For related courses, see under Biology in this Register, and under Psychiatry in the Catalogue of the Faculty of Medicine.)

Education

13. Seminary.
Professor BUCHNER. Two hours a week, through the year.
The work of the year will be a study of the history and principles of secondary education.

14. Educational Psychology.
Professor BUCHNER. One hour a week, through the year.
In this course, which is a continuation of the one given in 1910-11, attention will be paid to the psychology of school activities.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

1. a. Deductive and Inductive Logic.

Creighton's Introductory Logic is at present used as a text-book, with references to the works of Jevons, Mill, Bain, Keynes, and other writers.

Professor GRIFFIN. Three hours weekly, until Christmas.

b. Psychology.

Text-books, liable to change from year to year, are made the basis of instruction, but the subject is presented largely through informal lectures and discussions, and by means of passages in various authors assigned for reading. A series of lectures and demonstrations on physiological and experimental psychology is included in the course. One essay on an assigned subject is required from each member of the class.

Professor WATSON. Four hours weekly, January to April.

c. Ethics.

The subject is taught by lectures, recitations from a text-book—Mackenzie's Manual of Ethics being used at present—and references to the works of the most important writers.

Professor GRIFFIN. Three hours weekly, after April 1.

2. Outlines of the History of Philosophy.

Rogers's Student's History of Philosophy, Weber's History of Philosophy, and other works of reference, are used as the basis of lectures, discussions, and recitations.

Professor GRIFFIN. Two hours weekly, through the year; a third hour, for readings from the works of leading philosophers, may be taken.

All candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts are required to follow Course 1 during the last year of residence.

DRAWING

1. Freehand Drawing.

The instruction aims to teach students the principles of seeing and rendering correctly any object or group of objects.

The practical value of this training is found in the illustration of lectures and laboratory work in biology and medicine.

Students looking forward to teaching as a profession will find the ability to clearly demonstrate their lectures by means of drawings to be of great service.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. WHITEMAN.

2. Descriptive Geometry and Mechanical Drawing.

This course is offered to students who intend studying architecture or engineering. The work consists of lectures in the theory, and of the practical application in working problems. The study of linear perspective and the perspective of shadows, together with orthographic and isometric projections, is taken up later in the course.

Three hours weekly, through the year. Mr. WHITEMAN.

PUBLIC SPEAKING AND DEBATE

A course in reading and platform speaking is required of undergraduate students in their second year. For the sake of convenience in instruction, the class is divided into several small sections, to each of which is devoted one hour a week. A course in debating, which involves the study of parliamentary law, the collection and arrangement of material, and frequent practice in debate under the direction of an instructor, is assigned to students in their third year. The work of the two years is counted as a half-course. During the fourth year opportunity for a more detailed study of the art of debate and for practice in argumentative composition is open to those who desire it. Prize contests in public speaking and in debate are held annually, and one intercollegiate debate is, as a rule, undertaken each year.

PHYSICAL TRAINING AND ATHLETICS

The authorities of the university, recognizing the importance of systematic physical exercise under suitable advice, have placed the gymnasium in charge of Dr. Ronald T. Abercrombie, and have put the work of this department on a parity with the work done in the regular courses of study.

A careful physical and medical examination is made of each undergraduate, and such exercises are prescribed as are best suited to his needs. During his first year of residence, he is required to follow the prescribed gymnasium course, which includes also his attendance on a course in hygiene. Regular class instruction is given every afternoon from five to six o'clock. The use of the gymnasium is optional in the case of graduate students; it is offered to all members of the university upon payment of the ordinary locker fee.

The gymnasium—127 feet long by 35 feet wide—is provided with convenient lockers, baths, etc., as well as with the newest forms of apparatus. Adjoining the gymnasium proper is a "cage"—an enclosed and covered space for practice in running and in athletic sports—127 feet long, 66 feet wide, and 30 feet high.

"Hopkins Field," the athletic ground at Homewood, is now in use by the students. In its construction special attention was paid to the problem of drainage, and in this respect the field is well-nigh perfect. It is enclosed by one of the best quarter-mile cinder tracks in the country, with a 220-yard "straightaway." A club-house provides dressing rooms, lockers, and shower baths. Two stands built of ferro-concrete and accommodating each about fifteen hundred spectators have been erected. Immediately adjoining Hopkins Field are well-equipped tennis courts.

In order to prevent ill-advised participation in outdoor sports, and to guard against over-indulgence in training, the athletic teams of the university are under the control of the director of the gymnasium. No student is allowed to become a member of a team unless his physical condition is satisfactory and his "strength test" up to the prescribed standard; and no student is allowed to be a member of, or a candidate for, an athletic team, who is seriously deficient in his studies.

THE DEGREE OF MASTER OF ARTS

The degree of Master of Arts is offered to students who have obtained the baccalaureate degree from a college of good standing, have then followed courses of university study under proper guidance for at least two years, and have satisfied the requirements mentioned below.*

The Board of University Studies reserves the right to decide in each case whether the preliminary training has been satisfactory, and, if any of the years of graduate work have been passed by the candidate away from this University, whether they may be considered as spent in accordance with these regulations.

At least one academic year must be passed in this University, and in every case this must be the one immediately preceding the final examinations, unless special permission to the contrary is granted by the Board of University Studies for some extraordinary reason.

The candidate for the degree must make formal application to the Board of University Studies at least one academic year before he expects to present himself for his final examinations. In this application he must state the subject which it is his intention to pursue as his principal study, and in his choice of additional subjects he must be guided by the advice of the professor in charge of his principal work.

In order to obtain the degree the candidate must satisfy two requirements:

1. He must prepare an essay upon a subject approved by the Board of University Studies. This must be completed and submitted to the Board at least four weeks before the time of the final examinations. Two referees will then be designated who shall present to the Board a written report. This essay shall be prepared for presentation to the Board in the manner prescribed for the dissertations submitted for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

*It is to be understood that the University work for one of these years may be distributed through two or more years, in cases where the student can devote only a part of his time to study.

2. If the report on the essay is satisfactory, the candidate will then be admitted to the final written examinations.

The candidate is, however, permitted to take at the end of any academic year examinations on the subjects followed during that year, or at the beginning of the next year. In case these are passed in a satisfactory manner, he will not be examined further in them. Reports of these examinations shall be made to the Board of University Studies.

The names of the candidates found worthy of the degree will be submitted to the Board of Trustees, and with their approbation the degree will be publicly conferred.

THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is offered to students who, after obtaining the baccalaureate degree from a college of good standing, have followed courses of university study under proper guidance and without serious distractions for at least three years, and have satisfied the requirements mentioned below.

The Board of University Studies reserves the right to decide in each case whether the preliminary training has been satisfactory, and which, if any, years of graduate work not spent in this University are to be considered as spent in accordance with these regulations.

At least one academic year must be passed in this University, and, except in extraordinary cases, the one preceding the final examinations.

Principal and Subordinate Subjects

To become a candidate for the degree the student must select a subject on which he intends to concentrate his efforts and must place himself under the guidance of the professor of this subject. This is called his "principal" study. With the advice of the professor and subject to the approval of the Board of University Studies, the student must choose two other studies, known as "subordinate" subjects, which he must follow. These are called the "first subordinate" and the "second subordinate," and the two should represent one year's work, two-thirds of this being devoted to the former. Additional information concerning the selection of these subjects is given on pages 174-181.

Acceptance of the Candidate

A student who wishes to be considered a candidate for the degree must make written application to the Board of University Studies, upon a form provided for this purpose, at least one academic year before he expects to present himself for his final examinations* Before this application can be accepted, he must satisfy the University examiners that he is able to translate at sight French and German journals and monographs relating to his principal subject.

Requirements for the Degree

Certain examinations, as outlined below, must be passed by a candidate, in order to obtain the degree; but the distinctive requirement is the presentation of evidence that the candidate has carried to successful completion an original investigation in his principal subject upon a theme approved by his chief professor. The results of this investigation must be embodied in a dissertation, and submitted to the Board of University Studies.

Regulations concerning the Dissertation

a. The dissertation must be prepared for presentation to the Board of University Studies in accordance with instructions to be obtained from the Registrar, and to every such dissertation must be appended a brief biographical sketch of the author. It must be submitted to the Board at least four weeks before the examinations in the principal subject.

b. The Board shall designate two or more referees, who shall make a written report on the dissertation.

Regulations concerning the Examinations†

a. The candidate shall be subjected to written examinations in his principal subject, and, whenever prac-

*A student who has been admitted as a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, will be considered to have satisfied the requirements for admission to courses leading to the degree of Master of Arts.

†If a student who has absolved the examinations required for the degree of Master of Arts in this University, becomes a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, he may, at the discretion of the professors, be excused from any further written examinations in the particular courses in which he has already passed.

ticable, in both his subordinate subjects. The results of the examinations shall be reported in writing to the Board of University Studies; and, if these reports and the report on the dissertation are satisfactory, the candidate shall be admitted to an oral examination in his principal and first subordinate subjects before the Board or a section of it.

b. The written examinations in the subordinate subjects may be taken at any time during the candidate's residence at the University subject to the judgment of the examiners.

c. In the written examinations no session shall exceed five hours. In the oral examinations before the Board, the time allotted shall be one hour; and three quarters of this shall be devoted to the principal subject.

Other Regulations

Before the candidate is admitted to the oral examination he must signify his intention, in the event of his receiving the degree, to print his dissertation in full or in part, and to satisfy the requirements specified below.

If the dissertation is not printed in full, an abstract must be prepared or a portion selected with the approval of the professor, which shall contain when printed not less than twenty-four octavo pages.

One hundred and fifty printed copies of the dissertation must be presented to the University within one year of the time when the degree is conferred. These must have the prescribed title page and must contain the biographical sketch.

The candidate is advised to have these printed copies ready for presentation before the date for the conferring of the degree; otherwise a deposit of $50.00 with the Treasurer of the University must be made. This deposit is returned when the printed copies are presented to the University. If these have not been received within the year specified, the Board of University Studies may declare the deposit forfeited and may apply the amount in printing the dissertation or a part of it.

Conferring of the Degree

The names of the candidates found worthy of the degree will be submitted to the Board of Trustees, and with their approbation the degree will be publicly conferred.

Choice of Subordinate Subjects

The following suggestions are not to be understood as limiting the attention of the student to the subjects directly connected with the requirements for the degree. In order to secure the full benefit of university training, it is often desirable to broaden the outlook through acquaintance with other subjects—especially those that are conterminous with the chosen field of study. It is also important to learn to appreciate the methods and to come under the influence of other personalities than those that dominate the student's special line of work.

In the choice of subordinate subjects to be associated with a principal one, considerable freedom is permitted by the Board of University Studies. Certain combinations have been recognized officially in previous years, and others are admissible.

In the study of any principal subject the knowledge of a limited number of other subjects is, as a rule, essential. If, on entrance, the student is not sufficiently proficient in these, he must follow courses in this university which will give him the requisite knowledge. These courses need not, however, of necessity be offered as first and second subordinates.

In order to guide the student in his selection of subordinate studies, a number of statements are given below in tabular form, which apply to the various departments of study in this university. These statements furnish—

I. In case the student selects a given subject as his principal one—

a. A list of the other subjects an adequate knowledge of which is considered essential.

b. A list of subjects which in the past have been accepted as first or second subordinates in connection with the principal subject.

II. In case the student selects a given subject as his subordinate one—

A list of the courses in that department, which are ordinarily considered sufficient.

Mathematics

I. a. While no other subject can be said to be essential to the study of mathematics, it is very desirable that one taking up graduate work should have adequate knowledge of natural sciences, particularly of physics.

b. Physics, Geological Physics, Electricity, Astronomy, History of Philosophy, Psychology.

II. Two or more of the following: Elementary Differential Equations, Theory of Functions, Vector Analysis, Dynamics.

Physics

I. a. Chemistry and Mathematics.

b. Chemistry, Physical Chemistry, Mathematics, Astronomy, Applied Electricity, Geological Physics.

II. Physics 1, 2, or 3, with corresponding laboratory courses, Advanced General Physics, Applied Electricity.

Astronomy

II. Celestial Mechanics, Cosmical Physics, with observatory work.

Chemistry

I. a. Mathematics (through the Calculus), General Physics, Mineralogy, Physical Chemistry.

b. Mathematics, Physics, Mineralogy, Geology, Physical Chemistry, Biology 1.

II. Chemistry 2 or 3, Physical Chemistry, with corresponding laboratory courses.

Geology

I. a. Students who take Geology as their principal subject, are allowed to select courses suitable as a training for general geology and teaching, or those which lead to specialization in Paleontology, Stratigraphic Geology, Petrography, Mineralogy, or Geological Physics. All students are expected to be familiar with the matter given in the elementary or undergraduate courses.

b. (1) Biology, (2) Chemistry, (3) Physics, (4) Petrography, (5) Mineralogy, (6) Paleontology.

Nos. 1–3 may be taken as second subordinates by all students in Geology.

Nos. 4–5 may be taken as a first subordinate by students specializing in Paleontology or Stratigraphic Geology, who are advised to take Biology or Physics as a second subordinate.

No. 6 may be taken as a first subordinate by students specializing in Petrography or Mineralogy, who are advised to take Chemistry or Physics as a second subordinate.

II. For students in Physics: Geological Physics, Exploratory Surveying, Crystallography—Optical Mineralogy (Geology 1 in part, Advanced Mineralogy in part).

For students in Chemistry: Geology 3 and Economic Geology, Geology 1, Advanced Mineralogy.

For students in Biology: Geology 1 or 2, Paleontology and Paleobotany, Historical Geology.

Zoology

I. a. Two or more of the following: Chemistry, Physics, Botany, Geology, Physiology, Psychology.

b. Botany, Physiology, Geology, Anatomy, Pathology.

II. Biology 1, Biology 2 (Part 1), Biology 3 (Part 1), a graduate course.

Botany

I. a. Physics, Chemistry, General Biology, Zoology.

b. Zoology, Physical or Organic Chemistry, Geology, Physiology, Pathology.

II. An undergraduate course, with laboratory work; one of the graduate courses.

Physiology

I. a. Physics, Chemistry, and Biology.

b. Zoology, Botany, Physics, Chemistry, Physiological Chemistry.

II. Course 4, as on page ——

Greek

I. a. Latin and English (language and literature).

b. Latin, Comparative Grammar, Sanskrit, English, Semitic, Classical Archæology, Philosophy.

II. Prescribed courses of reading in the chief ranges of Classical Greek literature of greater or less extent for first or second subordinate. Two courses of practical exercises for the first subordinate, one course for the second. Attendance on the Seminary for two years for the first subordinate, one year for the second.

Latin

I. a. Greek and English (language and literature).

b. Greek, Sanskrit and Comparative Philology, Classical Archæology (Greek and Roman), English, a Romance language, a Semitic language, History.

II. Attendance on the Seminary and lectures during two years for the first subordinate subject, one year for the second, in both cases with prescribed courses of reading in Roman literature.

Those who make Latin their principal subject must take Greek as one of their subordinate subjects. They must also follow the regular courses in Latin Epigraphy and Palæography, as well as in the Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European languages.

Classical Archæology

I. a. Latin and Greek.

b. Latin, Greek, History, Sanskrit and Comparative Philology, Italian or another Romance language.

II. Five hours weekly for two years for the first subordinate; five hours weekly for one year for the second. Prescribed course of reading.

Those who make Classical Archæology a principal subject are urged to plan for at least a year of residence in Europe, preferably in the American School of Classical Studies at Athens or in the American School of Classical Studies in Rome. For advanced students of Roman Archæology, a reading knowledge of Italian is indispensable.

Sanskrit and Comparative Philology

I. a. Classical or Modern Philology, History, Philosophy.

b. Greek, Latin, Germanic Philology, English, Semitic Philology, Philosophy.

II. For the first subordinate subject, a course in Sanskrit, two lectures a week during two years, and attendance on the Vedic Seminary for a half-year, one hour a week; for the second subordinate subject, a course in Sanskrit, two hours a week during a year and a half.

In no case has a student whose principal subject was Sanskrit and Comparative Philology restricted himself to two subordinate subjects. As a rule, Avestan, Lithuanian, Gothic, English, and other subjects figured among his courses, in addition to the principal and the two subordinate subjects.

Oriental Seminary

I. a. For Hebrew as the principal subject—German, Greek, Latin, Arabic, History of the Ancient East, Biblical Antiquities, Geography of Western Asia.

b. Assyrian, Arabic, Syriac, or Ethiopic, as the first or second subordinate subject; Egyptology, History of the Ancient East, History of Philosophy, Greek, Sanskrit, Philippine languages, as the second subordinate.

II. For Hebrew as first subordinate—Comparative Hebrew Grammar, Hebrew Prose Composition, Old Testament Seminary.

For Hebrew as second subordinate—the second year's course in Hebrew and private reading of at least fifty chapters of the Hebrew Bible.

English

I. a. Gothic, Old High German, Middle High German, Old Norse, Old French, German and French Literature.

b. German, French, Italian, Spanish, Greek, Latin, Sanskrit, History, Philosophy.

II. Courses in the history of the Language and the Literature, and some special work in selected periods or subjects.

German

I. a. English, French, Latin.

b. English, French, Latin, Sanskrit, Spanish, Greek, History of Philosophy, History.

II. German as second subordinate—Courses 1, 2, 5, Seminary in Middle High German, one year's membership in the Germanic Society (or a similar amount of work in German Literature).

German as first subordinate—a combination of the two alternates indicated above; two years' membership in the Germanic Society.

Romance Languages

I. a. Latin; a reading knowledge of Spanish, or of Italian, if either of these is chosen as the principal subject; an elementary acquaintance with French, Spanish, or Italian history, according to selection of subject.

b. Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, German, English, History, Philosophy.

II. For the first subordinate, Literature (old and modern), Language (old and modern), Physiological Phonetics, Popular Latin, Private Reading.

For the second subordinate, Literature (modern), Language (modern), Private Reading.

History

I. a. Political Economy, Political Science, Latin, French, German.

b. Political Economy, Political Science, Philosophy, English, French.

II. For the second subordinate, lectures, with collateral research, two hours a week for two years, either in European, English, or American history; for first subordinate, four hours a week for two years, with choice in the same subjects.

Political Economy

I. a. History and Political Science.

b. History, Political Science, Philosophy, English, Mathematics, Biology.

II. For the first subordinate, two graduate courses for two years, with prescribed reading; for the second subordinate, two graduate courses for one year, with prescribed reading.

Political Science

I. a. History, Political Economy, and the Principles of Private Law.

b. History, Political Economy, Philosophy, the Principles of Private Law.

II. Two hours' lecture work, with collateral reading, for two years, for the second subordinate; four hours' work for two years for the first subordinate.

Philosophy, Psychology, and Education

The choice of subordinate subjects is made in consultation with the professors. The different branches of the department—Philosophy, Psychology, and Education—do not lend themselves to a single scheme of subordinate subjects, since wide variations arise in individual cases.

COLLEGIATE INSTRUCTION

The Johns Hopkins University makes ample provision for collegiate instruction. The courses offered to undergraduates are maintained with no less care and thoroughness than those intended for advanced students; many of the most experienced members of the academic staff coöperate in the conduct of them. No small part of the influence and usefulness of the university is in connection with the collegiate classes, in which, since 1876, more than twenty-one hundred students have been enrolled.

Certain features of organization and administration have contributed to the effectiveness of the undergraduate work. The scrupulous observance of the distinction between the disciplinary methods appropriate to college teaching and the freer methods of advanced instruction; the "group" arrangement of studies, combining a reasonable liberty of choice with a sufficient exercise of authority; the facilities afforded young men of superior capacity for carrying their studies beyond the requirements of graduation; the influence upon younger pupils of the presence of a large body of graduate scholars conducting investigations in all the great departments of learning,—these conditions have proved favorable to the development of earnestness and scholarly devotion.

ARRANGEMENT OF COURSES

Upon admission to the university, an undergraduate student is assigned to an Adviser (see page 197), and under his guidance is expected to select a scheme of studies composed of courses more or less connected. In order to help the student in this selection, five groups of studies are organized, details concerning which are given below. Having once made a choice, a student may not change his group, except with the consent of his Adviser, and with the approval of the Executive Committee of the Board of Collegiate Studies.

In the formation of the groups it is intended to combine such studies as shall give the student the essential elements of a liberal education, and, at the same time, special training in certain coördinate subjects. By this method the student is not bound to a particular routine of work for which he may feel no special inclination, nor yet is it possible for him to waste his time and attention by the injudicious selection of wholly unrelated subjects. In each group certain studies are prescribed for all students who are candidates for a degree, and certain other studies are peculiar to the individual group.

By reference to the detailed statement of each group given on pages 186-191 it will be seen that the courses of the first two years are prescribed, but that in each of the last two years there are but one or two prescribed studies. In each of these last two years, therefore, a student may, subject to the provisions already noted, elect four courses. With the approval of his Adviser he may select any courses which he is prepared to enter.

The following is a general statement of the characteristic features of the several groups:

Group I. Ancient Languages

In Group I the emphasis is laid upon Latin and Greek, each of which is studied for at least two years. In the last two years the courses are so arranged that the student may continue the study of these languages; or, if he desires, he may devote himself to the study of History, Modern Languages, or Science.

Group II. Modern Languages

In Group II the study of Latin is continued for two years, but the literary training of the student is based chiefly on the study of English, French and German, with Spanish and Italian if desired. In the later years, the courses are arranged so as to permit the student to continue the study of Modern Languages, or to give his attention to History or Science.

Group III. History and Political Economy

In Group III the study of Latin is continued as in Groups I and II, but the student devotes the greater part of his time to History and Political Economy. He may continue these studies during the last two years, or he may take advanced courses in Latin, Modern Languages, or Science.

Group IV. Mathematics and Physics

In Group IV the training of the student is based upon the study of the exact sciences rather than upon language and history. Mathematics and Physics are studied for at least two years, and the student may also follow courses in Chemistry, Biology, or Geology. In the last two years, the student may continue the former studies, or he may take advanced courses in Modern Languages and History.

Group V. Chemistry, Biology, and Geology

In Group V the natural sciences form the basis of instruction, being supplemented by the prescribed courses in Modern Languages, History or Political Economy, and Mathematics. In the later years, the student may continue the study of Science, or he may devote his attention to Modern Languages or History.

Students who intend to enter the medical department of this university, should choose Group V, and should arrange to pursue the following courses: English, French and German, each for two years; Mathematics for two years; Chemistry for three years; Biology and Physics, each for one year. Other prescribed courses are History or Economics for one year, and Philosophy for one year. These students are advised by the Medical Faculty to arrange their work so that their last year shall include courses in Chemistry and Biology, and, if possible, a course in the Chemistry of the Carbon Compounds.

These courses may be arranged as follows:—First year: Chemistry 1, French 1 or German 1, English Composition 1, Mathematics 1, Physical Training. Second year: English Literature 1, German 1 or French 1, Mathematics 2, Chemistry 2, Vocal Training, and a half-course to be elected. Third year: Physics 1, with laboratory, General History (History 2) or Political Economy, French 2 or German 2, Biology 1, Forensics. Fourth year: Philosophy, German 2 or French 2, Chemistry 3, Biology 2.

It should be noted that, in order to enter the medical department, the degree of Bachelor of Arts is required, and further that the conditions for this degree, as stated on page 195, prescribe at least three courses in one definite subject.

GROUP I. ANCIENT LANGUAGES

First Year

PRESCRIBED SUBJECTS

Elective Courses

A student may take as an elective any course that he is prepared to enter. In addition to the courses already described under the separate groups, any of which may be chosen, electives are regularly offered in the following subjects:

Latin.
Greek.
Greek and Roman Life.
Classical Archæology.
Sanskrit.
Comparative Philology.
Hebrew.
English and Anglo-Saxon.
French.
German.
Spanish.
Italian.
Mathematics.
Chemistry.
Physical Chemistry.
Physics.
Astronomy.
Zoology.
Botany.
Geology.
History.
Political Economy.
Philosophy.
Psychology.
Drawing.

Before the summer vacation each student is expected to consult his Adviser with regard to the electives to be taken in the following academic year. Detailed information concerning the various courses will be found under Courses of Instruction, pages 106-168.

REQUISITES FOR THE DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF ARTS

As evidence that the collegiate course has been successfully completed, the degree of Bachelor of Arts is conferred at its close. The degree signifies in the case of every recipient such instruction in ancient and modern languages, in mathematics, in the physical and natural sciences, in literature, philosophy, and history, as is believed to be essential to a liberal education.

Twenty courses are required for graduation, and no combination of studies is accepted which does not include three courses in one subject and two courses in another subject.*

All candidates for a degree take the following prescribed courses, which are for one year unless otherwise noted:

Rhetoric.
English Literature.
French.
German.
History or (in Groups IV and V) Political Economy.
Physics.
Mathematics—
  In Groups I, II, and III, a half-year.
  In Groups IV and V, one year.
Philosophy.
Vocal Training.
Forensics.
Physical Exercises.
A Laboratory Course—
  In Groups I, II, and III, Natural History (a half-year).
  In Groups IV and V, Chemistry and Physics.

*The "standard course" of study consists of three meetings, of one hour each, weekly through the year. In certain cases a course requires four hours a week.

The remaining courses necessary to complete the number required are chosen, subject to the approval of the Adviser, in accordance with the schemes outlined under the several groups.

A student may be admitted to advanced standing, in accordance with the regulations given on page 206, but in all cases the candidate must pursue the last year of his undergraduate course in this institution.

In general, four years of residence are necessary for the completion of the courses required for a degree. A capable student may, however, complete this work in three years. Such a student may—

(1) anticipate certain of the courses by special examination at entrance.*

The courses that may be thus absolved are first-year courses in languages (except English), in Mathematics, and in Chemistry; under ordinary circumstances a student is not allowed to anticipate at entrance more than two courses.

The examinations for absolving courses at entrance will be held at or near the time of the regular matriculation examinations in June and September, and those who wish to anticipate courses must make application, and take the examination, in the June or September next preceding entrance into the University. In case any condition is incurred in the September examination, it may not be made up until the September examination of the following year.

The application must be in the hands of the Registrar of the University at least one week before the examination.

(2) present himself, at the beginning of an academic year, for examination in a single course, provided the Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing, being satisfied that the student can obtain competent instruction, has authorized him, in advance, to prepare this course during the summer vacation.*

In all such cases the instructor must be approved by the examiner before whom the student is to come, and must not be changed except with the examiner's consent, and the instruction must conform to the directions of the examiner in (a) the number of hours per week and the number of weeks, and (b) the amount and quality of the work done. The instruction must be regular and systematic, and must approximate in number of hours the time given to the course in the university. It must constitute a full equivalent of that course.

The examination will be both oral and written, and must be reported to the Registrar upon the usual blank. The time for the examination will be determined by the Committee.

(3) take, under certain conditions, in any year of residence except the first, a greater number of courses than is called for in the program.

Students who give evidence of especial ability by passing at entrance one or two courses for advanced standing, or by attaining a high grade in the scholarship examination, or by submitting evidence of exceptional proficiency from the school in which they were prepared for college, may be permitted to take in the first year one or more courses additional to the number scheduled for that year.

(4) offer nineteen courses for graduation instead of twenty, in accordance with the following provision:

In case a student has an average of not less than 9 for the work of his third year, and has not received a mark as low as 7 for any of his courses since admission to the university, he need offer only nineteen courses for graduation.

A student whose average in his studies for each of his last two years has not been less than 9, and who has not received a mark less than 7.5 for any of his courses during his last three years, shall receive the degree WITH HONOR.

Special students who have been in residence at least two years, and who have completed their work in a satisfactory manner, may receive certificates stating the facts and signed by the President of the University.

COMMITTEES AND ADVISERS

Standing Committees. The Board of Collegiate Studies appoints four standing committees:

1. The Executive Committee, which has charge of such matters pertaining to discipline and general administration as may be delegated to it by the Board of Collegiate Studies.
2. The Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing.
3. The Committee on Scholarships and Honors.
4. The Committee on Assignment of Advisers.

The Dean of the College Faculty is ex officio a member of each of these.

Advisers. When an undergraduate student is admitted to the university, he is assigned to an Adviser by the standing committee charged with this duty, and he will, under ordinary circumstances, remain under the direction of the same Adviser during his whole course. The approval of the Adviser is necessary before the student can enter upon any course of study; no instructor will receive into a class a student who does not bring with him (in a book provided for that purpose) assurance that his Adviser approves his pursuing the study at that time, and no student is allowed, without the consent of his Adviser, to discontinue any work. Each Adviser endeavors to establish relations of friendliness and confidence with the students assigned to his care; he not only gives counsel in regard to the selection of studies, but promotes the welfare of his students in every practicable way.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Those who wish to pursue undergraduate courses in this university should apply to the Registrar for a blank form of "Application for Admission," which must be filled up and returned to the Registrar one week at least before the time set for the entrance examinations. These examinations are held at the university in June and September of each year.

To accommodate those who wish to take their examinations elsewhere, the university will accept certificates from the College Entrance Examination Board for subjects passed in accordance with its regulations. (See page 206.)

APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION

Those who wish to become candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must present evidence of a satisfactory knowledge of the following subjects:

Mathematics.	Greek, or French and German.
English.	Physical Geography, or a science such as Botany, Chemistry, or Physics.
History.
Latin.	Free-hand Drawing.

Details of the requirements will be found in the following pages:

To show that he has a satisfactory knowledge of these subjects the applicant must present evidence of two kinds:

1. He must present certified statements of the successful completion of courses in the subjects required. These statements should specify the number of weeks and the number of hours per week that the applicant has given to the study of each subject, and the amount of ground covered in each. The authors read in each language should be specified, and the statement as to science should show that the student did laboratory work.

Blank spaces for these certified statements will be found in the form of "Application for Admission" referred to above, and these should be filled and signed by the teacher under whom the applicant has prepared for college, or by the head of the school.

2. If these statements are satisfactory, the applicant will be admitted to the matriculation examination in Mathematics, History, and the several languages, but will not be required to take an examination in Physical Geography or Science, or in Drawing.

If the statements are unsatisfactory, the Committee on Admission will prescribe such conditions as may be necessary. An applicant who has not had a satisfactory course in Drawing, will, if admitted, be required to take the course offered by the university.

Applicants are received without examination from certain schools in or near the City of Baltimore which have been approved by the Board of Collegiate Studies, provided their "Applications" fully and satisfactorily cover the requirements for admission.

In the case of other schools, and in the case of candidates from approved schools whose certificates are not fully satisfactory, examinations are required, either upon all the subjects necessary for matriculation, or upon selected portions of these subjects, at the discretion of the Committee on Admission.

Division of the Matriculation Examinations

The applicant may pass a part of the examinations one year before his admission to the university and receive credit, under the following conditions:

In his application he must distinctly declare his intention to divide the examinations. The subjects passed will not count towards matriculation unless the applicant offers the remaining subjects within the ensuing year. The first part of the divided examination will be confined to the following subjects, of which the applicant will be expected to pass in the first three at least:

English (a).	French or
Algebra (a).	German.
Latin I.	History of the United States or
Plane Geometry.	of Greece.
Greek (a).	History of England or of Rome.

Requirements for Matriculation

1. Mathematics.—Algebra; Plane Geometry; Plane Trigonometry.

The requirements in Algebra are as follows:

(a). To Quadratics including the four fundamental rules, the use of parentheses, factoring, highest common factor, lowest common multiple, complex fractions, equations of the first degree in one or more unknown quantities, and problems leading to such equations, inequalities, radicals, and the use of fractional and negative exponents.

(b). Quadratics and beyond, including quadratic equations in one and two unknown quantities, and problems leading to such equations, the theory of quadratic equations in one unknown quantity, ratio and proportion, the progressions, the elementary treatment of permutations and combinations, the binomial theorem for positive integral exponents, and the use of logarithms.

The subjects required in Plane Geometry and in Trigonometry are those treated in the ordinary text-books.

2. English.—The examination consists of two parts:

a. Reading. The candidate will be required to write a paragraph or two on each of several topics chosen by him from a considerable number—perhaps ten or fifteen—set before him in the examination paper. These topics are selected with reference to certain books, a list of which is given below. This part of the examination is designed, primarily, to test the candidate's power of clear and accurate expression, and will call for only a general knowledge of the substance of the books. As additional evidence of preparation, the candidate may present an exercise book, properly certified by his instructor, containing compositions or other written work.

The books prescribed for this part of the examination are:

In 1911 and 1912: Group I (two to be selected).

Shakespeare's As You Like It, Henry V, Julius Cæsar, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night.

Group II (one to be selected).

Bacon's Essays; Bunyan's The Pilgrim's Progress, Part I; The Sir Roger de Coverley Papers in The Spectator; Franklin's Autobiography.

Group III (one to be selected).

Chaucer's Prologue; Spenser's Fœrie Queene (Book I); Pope's The Rape of the Lock; Goldsmith's The Deserted Village; Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Books II and III, with especial attention to Dryden, Collins, Gray, Cowper, and Burns.

Group IV (two to be selected).

Goldsmith's The Vicar of Wakefield; Scott's Ivanhoe; Scott's Quentin Durward; Hawthorne's The House of the Seven Gables; Thackeray's Henry Esmond; Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford; Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities; George Eliot's Silas Marner; Blackmore's Lorna Doone.

Group V (one to be selected).

Irving's Sketch Book; Lamb's Essays of Elia; De Quincey's Joan of Arc and The English Mail Coach; Carlyle's The Hero as Poet, The Hero as Man of Letters, and The Hero as King; Emerson's Essays (selected); Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies.

Group VI (two to be selected).

Coleridge's The Ancient Mariner; Scott's The Lady of the Lake; Byron's Mazeppa and The Prisoner of Chillon; Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Book IV, with especial attention to Wordsworth, Keats, and Shelley; Macauley's Lays of Ancient Rome; Poe's Poems; Lowell's The Vision of Sir Launfal; Arnold's Sohrab and Rustum; Longfellow's The Courtship of Miles Standish; Tennyson's Gareth and Lynette, Lancelot and Elaine, and The Passing of Arthur; Browning's Cavalier Tunes, The Lost Leader, How They Brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix, Evelyn Hope, Home Thoughts from Abroad, Home Thoughts from the Sea, Incident of the French Camp, The Boy and the Angel, One Word More, Hervé Riel, Pheidippides.

In 1912, Tennyson's The Princess will be substituted for the three Idylls of the King.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

b. Study and Practice. This part of the examination presupposes the careful study of each of the works named below. The examinations will be upon subject-matter, form, and structure, and will also test the candidate's ability to express his knowledge with clearness and accuracy.

The books set for this part of the examination are:

In 1911 and 1912: Shakespeare's Macbeth; Milton's L'Allegro. Il Penseroso, and Comus; Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America, or Washington's Farewell Address and Webster's First Bunker Hill Oration; Macauley's Life of Johnson, or Carlyle's Essay on Burns.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

In connection with the reading and study of the required books, parallel or subsidiary reading should be encouraged, and a considerable amount of English poetry should be memorized. The essentials of English grammar should not be neglected in preparatory study.

No candidate will be accepted in English whose work is notably defective in spelling, punctuation, idiom, or division into paragraphs.

Although candidates will be permitted to take the entire examination at the time of entrance, it is strongly recommended that Part a be taken as a preliminary examination and Part b as a final examination. Candidates will thus have an opportunity to make up deficiencies which may be discovered at the preliminary examination, and to enter the university without a condition in English.

3. HISTORY. The outlines of the History of England and the United States, or of the History of Greece and Rome, and the outlines of the geography of these countries.

4. LATIN. I. Amount and Range of the Reading Required.

a. The Latin reading required is not less in amount than Cæsar, Gallic War, I-IV; Cicero, the orations against Catiline, for the Manilian Law, and for Archias; Vergil, Aeneid, I-VI.

(b) The amount of reading specified above should be selected by the schools from the following authors and works: Cæsar (Gallic War and Civil War) and Nepos (Lives); Cicero (orations, letters, and De Senectute) and Sallust (Catiline and Jugurthine War); Vergil (Bucolics, Georgics, and Aeneid) and Ovid (Metamorphoses, Fasti, and Tristia).

II. Subjects and Scope of the Examinations

(a) Translation at Sight. Candidates will be examined in translation at sight of both prose and verse. The vocabulary, constructions, and range of ideas of the passages set will be suited to the preparation secured by the reading indicated above.

(b) Prescribed Reading. Candidates will be examined also upon the following prescribed reading: Cicero, orations for the Manilian Law and for Archias, and Vergil, Aeneid, I, II, and either IV or VI at the option of the candidate, with questions on subject-matter, literary and historical allusions, and prosody. Every paper in which passages from the prescribed reading are set for translation will contain also one or more passages for translation at sight; and candidates must deal satisfactorily with both these parts of the paper, or they will not be given credit for either part.

(c) Grammar and Composition. The examinations in grammar and composition will demand thorough knowledge of all regular inflections, all common irregular forms, and the ordinary syntax and vocabulary of the prose authors read in school, with ability to use this knowledge in writing simple Latin prose. The words, constructions, and range of ideas called for in the examination in composition will be such as are common in the reading of the year, or years, covered by the particular examination.

5. GREEK.—A systematic course of instruction extending over at least three school years is presupposed. The applicant should have read the following texts:

Xenophon, Anabasis, at least four books.

Homer, Iliad, at least four books, or Odyssey, at least six books.

The examination includes three elements:

(a) Greek Grammar (both forms and syntax), based largely on Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I and II.

(b) Translation into English of Attic prose and of Homer, together with questions suggested by the text, including questions on Homeric life and the prosody of the Homeric poems. A part of the translation may be at sight, and in all translations simple, idiomatic English will be required.

(c) Translation into Greek (with accents) of a passage of easy connected English prose.

In case the examination is divided, as provided for on page 199, (a) should be offered at the preliminary examination.

Applicants not offering Greek must meet the following requirements in French and German:

6. FRENCH.—The requirements in French presuppose a systematic course extending over at least two school years, at the end of which time the student should be able to pronounce French accurately, to read at sight easy French prose, to put into French simple English sentences taken from the language of every-day life or based upon a portion of the French text read, and to answer questions on the rudiments of French grammar. The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Questions on the elements of French grammar, including the inflection of adjectives, participles, and pronouns;

the conjugation of verbs; the use of personal pronouns, common adverbs, prepositions, and conjunctions; the order of words in the sentence; and the elementary rules of syntax.

(b) The translation into French of short sentences illustrative of the rules of grammar, and of a short paragraph based on a French text given. In place of the translation of this paragraph, the candidate may substitute an original exercise in French on a subject set by the examiner.

(c) The translation, at sight, of easy French prose.

(d) An oral exercise in pronunciation.

The candidate should have read from 400 to 500 pages of French prose taken from the texts edited for elementary use, as listed by the leading publishers; especially those of the works of About, Bruno, Dumas, Erckmann-Chatrian, Halévy, Laboulaye, Labiche and Martin, Malot, Sand, and Verne. Grammars recommended are Fraser and Squair's, part I, Longman's, Chardenal's Complete French Course, and Perry and Reum's French Book.

7. GERMAN.—The requirements in German presuppose at least two years of school work under approved methods, with four recitations weekly, and the reading of a minimum of 300 pages of easy dialogue and narrative prose.

Candidates are expected to give particular attention to pronunciation, to the acquisition of an elementary German vocabulary, and to an accurate knowledge of the rudiments of German grammar, in quantity corresponding to Vos's Essentials of German.

The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Translation at sight of passages of simple dialogue and narrative prose. Help will be given on unusual words and constructions.

(b) Questions on grammatical forms and syntax. These will, as a rule, be based upon the passages assigned for translation.

(c) Translation into German of easy English from the language of every-day life. In addition, a brief rendering of English into German, based on the passages described under (a), may be required.

Selections may be made from such texts as the following:

Baumbach, Sommermärchen, Der Schwiegersohn. Benedix, Eigensinn, Der Prozess. Gerstäcker, Germelshausen. Hauff, Das kalte Herz. Heyse, L'Arrabbiata. Riehl, Burg Neideck. Saar, Die Steinklopfer. Seidel, Leberecht Hühnchen. Stifter, Das Haidedorf. Storm, Immensee, In St. Jürgen. Sudermann, Teja. Wildenbruch, Das edle Blut, Der Letzte.

Applicants for Advanced Standing

A student may be admitted to advanced standing at entrance by passing the necessary examinations. Forms of application for this privilege and all necessary information may be obtained from the Registrar. Under ordinary circumstances a student is not allowed to anticipate at entrance more than two courses, which may be first-year courses in languages (except English) and in mathematics.

A student entering from another college of good standing may be credited with work done there, provided he submits certificates satisfactory to the Committee on Admission and Advanced Standing.

Special Students

The university is ready to receive as special students those who are qualified by age, character, attainments, and habits of study, to attend its classes and lectures with profit to themselves and the institution. Such persons may be admitted, without matriculation, to a limited number of undergraduate courses; but the privilege once accorded will be forfeited if the student is found unworthy of it.

The requirements for admission as a special student are that the applicant shall pass such examinations, and shall present such other evidence of fitness to pursue the desired courses as may in each case be required by the Committee on Admission. Unless excused for some definite reason, the applicant will be required to satisfy the matriculation requirements in English, in French or German, and in either Latin or Mathematics. In the past, many excellent students have been thus enrolled, among whom not a few have subsequently changed their plans, passed the matriculation examinations, and at length received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Admission on these terms will not be granted unless the applicant be of some maturity, of serious intent, and of proved ability, and can satisfy the Committee on Admission that there are valid grounds for admitting him without full matriculation. A student cannot be admitted as a special student merely on the ground that he is unable to meet the full matriculation requirements.

College Entrance Examination Board

The College Entrance Examination Board holds examinations at numerous places in the country about the third week of June in each year, information in regard to which may be obtained by addressing The College Entrance Examination Board, Post Office Sub-Station 84, New York.

These examinations, if passed with a mark of not less than 60 per cent., will be accepted for admission, in accordance with the following scheme of equivalents:

II. FACULTY OF MEDICINE

Terms of Admission

The courses in medicine given in this university are planned for the professional education of such students as are especially fitted for it by having received preliminary training in the liberal arts, and especially in the sciences underlying medicine, including physics, chemistry and biology. Men and women are admitted upon the same terms.

The following classes of students are received as candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine:

1. Those who have completed the chemical-biological course in this university (Group V) leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

2. Graduates of approved colleges or scientific schools who can furnish evidence: (a) That they have acquaintance with Latin and a reading knowledge of French and German; (b) That they have such knowledge of physics, chemistry, and biology as may be obtained by a year's course in these subjects when accompanied by laboratory work.

In biology the candidate, in addition to lectures and recitations, should have followed for at least a year a laboratory course of six or more hours a week in the structure, life-history, and vital activities of selected types of animal and vegetable life. Courses in botany or zoology will be accepted, provided the laboratory work has been adequate. It is desirable also that candidates should have taken a laboratory course in embryology.

The candidate should have followed a course in general chemistry for at least a year. This should include laboratory work, for five hours a week through the year, together with lectures and class-room work covering the outlines of inorganic and the elements of organic chemistry. A good knowledge of the subject as presented in Remsen's "Introduction to the Study of Chemistry" may be regarded as the minimum requirement, although fuller knowledge is desirable.

In physics, the candidate should have followed a collegiate course for at least one year. This should include four hours a week of class-room work and at least three hours a week of quantitative work in the laboratory. Special attention should be given to theoretical mechanics and to the mechanical and electrical experiments.

In Latin the candidate should have studied Latin grammar and should possess at least such knowledge of the language as may be acquired by reading four books of Cæsar or their equivalent.

3. Those who give evidence by examination that they possess the general education implied by a degree in arts or in science from an approved college or scientific school, and the knowledge of French, German, Latin, physics, chemistry, and biology above indicated.

Applicants for admission will receive blanks to be filled out relating to their previous courses of study. They are required to furnish certificates from officers of the colleges or scientific schools in which they have studied, as to the courses pursued in physics, chemistry, and biology. If the certificates are satisfactory, no examination in these subjects will be required from those who possess a degree in arts or in science from an approved college or scientific school.

Hearers and special workers, not candidates for a degree, will be received at the discretion of the Faculty.

ADMISSION TO ADVANCED STANDING

Applicants for admission to advanced standing must furnish evidence (1) that the foregoing terms of admission as regards preliminary training have been fulfilled, (2) that they have satisfactorily completed medical courses equivalent in kind and amount to those given here in the year or years preceding that to which admission is desired, and (3) must pass examinations, at the beginning of the session in October, in all those subjects that have been already pursued by the class to which admission is sought. Certificates of standing elsewhere cannot be accepted in place of these examinations.

General Plan of Instruction

The course of instruction is planned for those who have received a liberal education and the training in physics, chemistry, and general biology which has been specified. The required period of study for the degree of Doctor of Medicine is four years. The academic year begins on the first of October and ends about the middle of June. There are short recesses at Christmas and Easter.

The first two years of the course are devoted mainly to the fundamental medical sciences, a large part of the time being spent in practical work in the laboratories. In the last two years, medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and the various specialties are studied in the clinical laboratories, the dispensary, and the wards of the hospital.

Throughout the entire course opportunity is given to pursue elective courses. In each year a certain number of courses are required, but, in addition, the student must select from a group of electives enough work to make up from twenty-five to thirty hours of work a week.

The principal required studies of the first year are anatomy (including normal histology), physiology, physiological chemistry and bacteriology. In the second year anatomy and physiology are continued, and general pathology, pathological anatomy, pharmacology, and hygiene are studied.

During the third year the general principles of medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and gynecology are studied, and clinical instruction is given in these subjects and in nervous diseases. Leading features of the work of this year are the courses in the clinical laboratories and practical work in the dispensary.

During the fourth year the practical study of medicine and surgery is continued, and instruction is given in the various special branches, viz.: dermatology, genito-urinary diseases, orthopedic surgery, laryngology and rhinology, ophthalmology and otology, pediatrics, and psychiatry. In this year the students serve as clinical clerks and surgical dressers in the wards of the hospital and are in daily attendance at special classes in the dispensary. They also have an opportunity to take various elective courses which are described specifically in the catalogue of the medical department. For the ward and dispensary work the class is divided into small groups.

Instruction in hygiene, medical zoology, forensic medicine, and medical history is provided during the course.

Work in the dissecting room, in the laboratories, and at the bedside, demonstrations, clinics, lectures, and recitations are the main features of the methods of instruction. Simple didactic lectures occupy a subsidiary position, as compared with instruction by recitations and demonstrations and especially by practical work in the various laboratories, in the hospital wards, and in the dispensary.

Courses for Graduates in Medicine

Courses of instruction for graduates in medicine are given throughout the year. These courses are in Anatomy, Histology and Organology, Pathology, Bacteriology, Pharmacology and Toxicology, Physiology, Neurology, Neurological Technique, Embryology, Physiological Chemistry, Clinical Microscopy, Medicine, Gynecology, Serum Diagnosis, Pediatrics, Obstetrics, Gynecological Pathology, Surgical Pathology, Orthopedic Surgery, Genito-Urinary Surgery, X-Ray Diagnosis and Therapeutics, Cystoscopy, and Ophthalmology and Otology. The instruction is intended to meet the requirements of practitioners of medicine, and is almost wholly of a practical character. It includes laboratory courses, demonstrations, beside teaching, and clinics in the wards, dispensary, amphitheatre, and operating rooms of the hospital.

Scholarships

THE JOSEPH KERNOCHAN GARR SCHOLARSHIP

Through the kindness of Mrs. Henry Lee Smith, of Baltimore, the faculty of the medical department is enabled to grant a scholarship amounting to $100 a year to a deserving student. The scholarship is known as "The Joseph Kernochan Garr Scholarship."

HOPKINS SCHOLARSHIPS

Six Hopkins Scholarships are annually open to students from North Carolina and Virginia. These scholarships grant free tuition for one year. Three are given to fourth-year students, two to third-year students, and one to a second-year student. Applications should be addressed to the President of the University before May 1, in accordance with a prescribed form.

Detailed statements as to the courses of instruction and other information are given in the annual Catalogue and Announcement, which will be sent upon application to the Registrar of the school.

Group II (one to be selected).

Bacon's Essays; Bunyan's The Pilgrim's Progress, Part I; The Sir Roger de Coverley Papers in The Spectator; Franklin's Autobiography.

Group III (one to be selected).

Chaucer's Prologue; Spenser's Fœrie Queene (Book I); Pope's The Rape of the Lock; Goldsmith's The Deserted Village; Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Books II and III, with especial attention to Dryden, Collins, Gray, Cowper, and Burns.

Group IV (two to be selected).

Goldsmith's The Vicar of Wakefield; Scott's Ivanhoe; Scott's Quentin Durward; Hawthorne's The House of the Seven Gables; Thackeray's Henry Esmond; Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford; Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities; George Eliot's Silas Marner; Blackmore's Lorna Doone.

Group V (one to be selected).

Irving's Sketch Book; Lamb's Essays of Elia; De Quincey's Joan of Arc and The English Mail Coach; Carlyle's The Hero as Poet, The Hero as Man of Letters, and The Hero as King; Emerson's Essays (selected); Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies.

Group VI (two to be selected).

Coleridge's The Ancient Mariner; Scott's The Lady of the Lake; Byron's Maseppa and The Prisoner of Chillon; Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series), Book IV, with especial attention to Wordsworth, Keats, and Shelley; Macauley's Lays of Ancient Rome; Poe's Poems; Lowell's The Vision of Sir Launfal; Arnold's Sohrab and Rustum; Longfellow's The Courtship of Miles Standish; Tennyson's Gareth and Lynette, Lancelot and Elaine, and The Passing of Arthur; Browning's Cavalier Tunes, The Lost Leader, How They Brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix, Evelyn Hope, Home Thoughts from Abroad, Home Thoughts from the Sea, Incident of the French Camp, The Boy and the Angel, One Word More, Hervé Riel, Pheidippides.

In 1912, Tennyson's The Princess will be substituted for the three Idylls of the King.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

b. Study and Practice. This part of the examination presupposes the careful study of each of the works named below. The examinations will be upon subject-matter, form, and structure, and will also test the candidate's ability to express his knowledge with clearness and accuracy.

The books set for this part of the examination are:

In 1911 and 1912: Shakespeare's Macbeth; Milton's L'Allegro. Il Penseroso, and Comus; Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America, or Washington's Farewell Address and Webster's First Bunker Hill Oration; Macauley's Life of Johnson, or Carlyle's Essay on Burns.

In 1913 the examination will be based upon the recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English, which met February 22, 1909. A statement of these recommendations can be obtained by application to the Registrar.

In connection with the reading and study of the required books, parallel or subsidiary reading should be encouraged, and a considerable amount of English poetry should be memorized. The essentials of English grammar should not be neglected in preparatory study.

No candidate will be accepted in English whose work is notably defective in spelling, punctuation, idiom, or division into paragraphs.

Although candidates will be permitted to take the entire examination at the time of entrance, it is strongly recommended that Part a be taken as a preliminary examination and Part b as a final examination. Candidates will thus have an opportunity to make up deficiencies which may be discovered at the preliminary examination, and to enter the university without a condition in English.

3. HISTORY. The outlines of the History of England and the United States, or of the History of Greece and Rome, and the outlines of the geography of these countries.

4. LATIN. I. Amount and Range of the Reading Required.

a. The Latin reading required is not less in amount than Cæsar, Gallic War, I-IV; Cicero, the orations against Catiline, for the Manilian Law, and for Archias; Vergil, Aeneid, I-VI.

(b) The amount of reading specified above should be selected by the schools from the following authors and works: Cæsar (Gallic War and Civil War) and Nepos (Lives); Cicero (orations, letters, and De Senectute) and Sallust (Catiline and Jugurthine War); Vergil (Bucolics, Georgics, and Aeneid) and Ovid (Metamorphoses, Fasti, and Tristia).

II. Subjects and Scope of the Examinations

(a) Translation at Sight. Candidates will be examined in translation at sight of both prose and verse. The vocabulary, constructions, and range of ideas of the passages set will be suited to the preparation secured by the reading indicated above.

(b) Prescribed Reading. Candidates will be examined also upon the following prescribed reading: Cicero, orations for the Manilian Law and for Archias, and Vergil, Aeneid, I, II, and either IV or VI at the option of the candidate, with questions on subject-matter, literary and historical allusions, and prosody. Every paper in which passages from the prescribed reading are set for translation will contain also one or more passages for translation at sight; and candidates must deal satisfactorily with both these parts of the paper, or they will not be given credit for either part.

(c) Grammar and Composition. The examinations in grammar and composition will demand thorough knowledge of all regular inflections, all common irregular forms, and the ordinary syntax and vocabulary of the prose authors read in school, with ability to use this knowledge in writing simple Latin prose. The words, constructions, and range of ideas called for in the examination in composition will be such as are common in the reading of the year, or years, covered by the particular examination.

5. GREEK.—A systematic course of instruction extending over at least three school years is presupposed. The applicant should have read the following texts:

Xenophon, Anabasis, at least four books.

Homer, Iliad, at least four books, or Odyssey, at least six books.

The examination includes three elements:

(a) Greek Grammar (both forms and syntax), based largely on Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I and II.

(b) Translation into English of Attic prose and of Homer, together with questions suggested by the text, including questions on Homeric life and the prosody of the Homeric poems. A part of the translation may be at sight, and in all translations simple, idiomatic English will be required.

(c) Translation into Greek (with accents) of a passage of easy connected English prose.

In case the examination is divided, as provided for on page 199, (a) should be offered at the preliminary examination.

Applicants not offering Greek must meet the following requirements in French and German:

6. FRENCH.—The requirements in French presuppose a systematic course extending over at least two school years, at the end of which time the student should be able to pronounce French accurately, to read at sight easy French prose, to put into French simple English sentences taken from the language of every-day life or based upon a portion of the French text read, and to answer questions on the rudiments of French grammar. The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Questions on the elements of French grammar, including the inflection of adjectives, participles, and pronouns;

the conjugation of verbs; the use of personal pronouns, common adverbs, prepositions, and conjunctions; the order of words in the sentence; and the elementary rules of syntax.

(b) The translation into French of short sentences illustrative of the rules of grammar, and of a short paragraph based on a French text given. In place of the translation of this paragraph, the candidate may substitute an original exercise in French on a subject set by the examiner.

(c) The translation, at sight, of easy French prose.

(d) An oral exercise in pronunciation.

The candidate should have read from 400 to 500 pages of French prose taken from the texts edited for elementary use, as listed by the leading publishers; especially those of the works of About, Bruno, Dumas, Erckmann-Chatrian, Halévy, Laboulaye, Labiche and Martin, Malot, Sand, and Verne. Grammars recommended are Fraser and Squair's, part I, Longman's, Chardenal's Complete French Course, and Perry and Reum's French Book.

7. GERMAN.—The requirements in German presuppose at least two years of school work under approved methods, with four recitations weekly, and the reading of a minimum of 300 pages of easy dialogue and narrative prose.

Candidates are expected to give particular attention to pronunciation, to the acquisition of an elementary German vocabulary, and to an accurate knowledge of the rudiments of German grammar, in quantity corresponding to Vos's Essentials of German.

The examination, which may not be divided, comprises:

(a) Translation at sight of passages of simple dialogue and narrative prose. Help will be given on unusual words and constructions.

(b) Questions on grammatical forms and syntax. These will, as a rule, be based upon the passages assigned for translation.

(c) Translation into German of easy English from the language of every-day life. In addition, a brief rendering of English into German, based on the passages described under (a), may be required.

Selections may be made from such texts as the following:

Baumbach, Sommermärchen, Der Schwiegersohn. Benedix, Eigensinn, Der Prozess. Gerstäcker, Germelshausen. Hauff, Das kalte Herz. Heyse, L'Arrabbiata. Riehl, Burg Neideck. Saar, Die Steinklopfer. Seidel, Leberecht Hühnchen. Stifter, Das Haidedorf. Storm, Immensee, In St. Jürgen. Sudermann, Teja. Wildenbruch, Das edle Blut, Der Letzte.

FELLOWSHIPS

Fellowships by Courtesy

The Academic Council may, at their discretion, by special vote, enroll as Fellows by Courtesy—

(a) Gentlemen who are, or who have been, teachers in colleges and other like institutions, and who wish, for brief periods, to avail themselves of the opportunities here afforded for study and for the use of books and laboratories.

(b) Holders of fellowships in other colleges, during their residence here.

(c) Those who have been fellows of this university and desire to continue in residence.

Fellows by Courtesy will not be exempt from the payment of fees, except by special vote.

University Fellowships

Twenty fellowships, each yielding five hundred dollars but not exempting the holder from the charges for tuition, are annually awarded.

The system of fellowships was instituted for the purpose of affording to young men of talent from any place an opportunity of continuing their studies in the Johns Hopkins University, while looking forward to positions as professors, teachers, and investigators, or to other literary and scientific vocations. The fellowships are given to students who wish to follow systematically through the year the instructions of the teachers here engaged, and those who are appointed are expected to proceed to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. The appointments are made not merely in recognition of good work already done, but as aids and incentives to good work in the future; in other words, the fellowships are not so much honors and prizes bestowed for past achievements, as helps to further progress and stepping-stones to honorable intellectual careers. They are not offered to those who are definitely looking forward to the practice of any one of the three learned professions (though such persons are not formally excluded from the competition), but are bestowed almost exclusively on persons desirous of becoming teachers of science and literature, or of devoting their lives to special branches of learning which lie outside of the ordinary studies of the lawyer, the physician, and the minister.

Each candidate is expected to submit his college diploma or other certificate of proficiency from the institution where he has been taught, with recommendations from those who are qualified to speak of his character and attainments. But this is only introductory. He must also submit, orally or in writing, such evidence of his past success in study and of his plans for the future, together with such examples of his literary or scientific work, as will enable the professors to judge of his fitness for the post. The examination is, indeed, in a certain sense competitive, but not with uniform tests, nor by formal questions submitted to the candidates. First, the head of a given department considers, with such counsel as he may command, the applicant's record. The professors then collectively deliberate on the nominations made by individual members of their body. The list upon which they agree, with the reasons for it, is finally submitted by the President of the University to the Executive Committee, and by them to the Trustees for final registration and appointment. By all these precautions the highest results which were anticipated have been secured. A company of most promising students has been brought together, and their ability as teachers and scholars has been recognized by calls they have received to permanent and desirable posts in various parts of the country.

The number of applications for fellowships has hitherto been very large, and it may have happened that some candidates have failed of appointment who were really superior to those selected. But, if so, this has resulted from the fact that a considerable number of applicants have each year forwarded to the university merely testimonials from their instructors, without examples of their own work, and, in consequence, the professors, from want of adequate knowledge, have possibly passed over candidates who may have been in the highest degree meritorious.

The applicants are notified of the result by means of a printed list of the successful candidates.

The absence of candidates from Baltimore has been no bar to their appointment, in cases where adequate evidence of their claims has been presented; but it is obvious, from the nature of the case, that graduate students residing in Baltimore must have better opportunities than others of making their powers known to the appointing board, and during the last few years the number of persons appointed, who had not previously been resident here, is very small.

Regulations

1. The application must be made prior to May 1, in writing, addressed to the President of the University, and he will refer the papers to the Academic Council, by whom the nominations will be made to the Board of Trustees, at their meeting in June. There is no prescribed form of application.

2. The candidate must give evidence of a liberal education, such as the diploma of a college of good repute; of decided proclivity towards a special line of study, such as an example of some scientific or literary work already performed; and of upright character, such as a testimonial from some instructor.

3. The value of each fellowship is five hundred dollars. The holder is not exempt from the charges for tuition. In case of resignation, promotion, or removal from the fellowship, payments will be made for the time during which the office shall have been actually held.

4. Every holder of a fellowship will be expected to perform such duties as may be allotted to him in connection with his course of study, to act when called upon as an examiner or as moderator in the examination room, to give all his influence for the promotion of scholarship and good order, and in general to co-operate in upholding the efficiency of the University, as circumstances may suggest. He must reside in Baltimore during the academic year.

5. He will be expected to devote his time to the prosecution of special studies (not professional), under the direction of the head of the department to which he belongs, and before the close of the year to give evidence of progress by the preparation of a thesis, the completion of a research, the delivery of a lecture, or by some other method.

6. He may give instruction, with the approval of the President, by lectures or otherwise, to persons connected with the University, but he may not engage in teaching elsewhere.

7. He may be reappointed at the end of the year, but only for exceptional reasons.

8. Usually not more than two fellows will be appointed in any department of study.

9. As these fellowships are awarded as honors, those who are disposed, for the benefit of others, or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list.

Adam T. Bruce Fellowship

This fellowship was founded in 1887 by the mother of Adam T. Bruce, Ph. D., late fellow and instructor in this university, as a memorial of her son, and is awarded annually. It is bestowed by the appointing board upon the candidate whom they consider most likely to promote biological science, and especially animal morphology, by original research. The stipend is the income of the Adam T. Bruce Fellowship endowment of ten thousand dollars. Preference is given to those who have already held fellowships in the Johns Hopkins University.

The electors consist of the President of the University, the chief instructor in animal morphology, the chief instructor in animal physiology, and a non-resident member annually chosen by the resident electors.

REGULATIONS

Candidates for the Bruce Fellowship must make application, in writing, to the President of the Johns Hopkins University before the first of April. They must forward to the President, at the same time, such evidence of their qualifications for appointment as they desire to be considered by the electors, who may require any candidate to appear before them in person.

The Bruce Fellow shall devote his time to study and research in biology at a place approved by the President of the University, and he shall, during the month of February in the year of his tenure of the fellowship, send to the President a written statement of the scientific work accomplished by him since his appointment.

The tenure of the fellowship shall commence on the first of September.

Two hundred and fifty dollars shall be paid to the Fellow on October 1, and the remainder at convenient intervals during the tenure of the fellowship.

The holder shall not be more than thirty years of age at the date of his election.

The Bruce Fellow may be re-elected, but not oftener than twice, and he shall be exempt from charges for tuition.

The electors shall have the power to declare the fellowship vacant, if its holder prove, in their opinion, unworthy; and no further stipend shall be paid to such person.

WILLIAM S. RAYNER FELLOWSHIP

The Rayner Fellowship was founded in 1899 by Mrs. Bertha Rayner Frank and Mr. Albert W. Rayner, of Baltimore, to perpetuate in this university the name of their father, Mr. William S. Rayner, who had made unusual attainments in the Hebrew language and was interested in the promotion of Semitic studies. The gift amounted to ten thousand dollars, and the income is available for a fellowship, which is bestowed annually by the Academic Council upon an advanced student in the department of Semitic Languages.

The Edmund Law Rogers Fellowship

This endowment, the amount of which is ten thousand dollars, was established in 1910 by Mrs. Edmund Law Rogers and her daughter, Mrs. Kirby Flower Smith, in memory of the late Edmund Law Rogers of Baltimore, and is known as the Edmund Law Rogers Fellowship.

The fellowship, to which the University has added the privilege of exemption from tuition fees, is awarded annually for proficiency in both the Greek and the Latin Languages and Literatures. The candidate must have had at least two years of graduate study in the Johns Hopkins University, or have satisfied the examiners of his training and ability by written examinations and the submission of a thesis. In other respects, the conditions of the fellowship are the same as those applying to the University fellowships in this institution. Application must be made prior to May 1, in writing, to the President of the University.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR GRADUATES

I. University Scholarships

For the encouragement of scholarship among those who have received the baccalaureate degree, and wish to continue their studies here, a number of University Scholarships are annually bestowed, as stated below:

1. Fifteen scholarships are open about the first of January to graduates of this or of other institutions, who have been studying here during the previous part of the session. Those who wish to be candidates must make formal application to the President, about December 15, stating where they have been previously trained and what studies they have pursued in this university. He will appoint a committee of five to consider the applications, and, with the aid of such evidence as may be obtained, to make nominations to the Board of University Studies.

2. These scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition and are tenable for one year. They do not carry exemption from laboratory fees.

3. They are awarded as honors, and those who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, or who are desirous of studying elsewhere, may do so and still have their names retained on the honor list. Those who receive the emolument will be expected to pursue their studies exclusively in this university.

4. The Board will reserve appointments, if worthy candidates do not offer.

II. Hopkins Scholarships

In the will of the founder of this university, his Trustees are requested to "establish, from time to time, such number of free scholarships in said university as may be judicious, and to distribute the said scholarships among such candidates from the States of Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina, as may be most deserving of choice, because of their character and intellectual promise, and to educate the young men so chosen free of charge."

Fifteen Hopkins Scholarships, entitling the holders to free tuition, are now awarded by the Academic Council to graduate students from Virginia, and fifteen to graduate students from North Carolina. Applications, in accordance with a prescribed form, must be filed at the President's office prior to May 1.

Students can be recognized as candidates only when actual residents of the State from which they desire to be appointed, during at least the year next preceding their enrolment in the university. If the appointing board is not sure as to the legal residence of any candidate, the point in question shall be determined by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

These scholarships are all bestowed for merit, and are tenable for the year subsequent to the appointment, the holders being re-eligible.

Successful candidates who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list. The scholarships may be forfeited, because of frequent or prolonged absence, defective scholarship, or unworthy conduct.

Scholarships made vacant by resignation, by forfeiture, or by the non-appearance of worthy candidates at the regular times of selection, may be bestowed by the appointing board, at their discretion, upon other candidates who are found worthy, provided that the principles of this foundation are not departed from.

Holders of scholarships are not exempt from laboratory fees.

ally be $25,000. The donor expressed the wish that "such lectures be given annually if possible, * * * and that persons of promise or prominence be selected to lecture, who are capable of interesting as well as instructing an audience." The lectureship was inaugurated in April, 1909, and three courses have been given, by Abbott Lawrence Lowell, George W. Prothero, and John B. Moore.

The Albert Shaw Lectureship

Dr. Albert Shaw, of New York, a graduate of this University, gives annually the sum of $250 as the honorarium of a lecturer on Diplomatic History. The lectures are given before the advanced students of history and political science, and eleven courses have been delivered, beginning in 1898. The lecturers, with two exceptions, have been alumni of the University.

In January, 1904, the Trustees decreed that certain chairs should bear the names of leading contributors to the Endowment Fund of 1902, as memorials of their liberality. In pursuance of this action four professorships have been thus designated: The B. N. Baker Professorship of Chemistry; the Francis White Professorship of Greek; the W. W. Spence Professorship of Semitic Languages; the Henry Walters Professorship of Zoology.

THE JOHNSTON SCHOLARSHIPS

These scholarships, of which there are three, known as the Henry E. Johnston Scholarship, the James Buchanan Johnston Scholarship, and the Henry E. Johnston, Jr. Scholarship, were founded in 1904 by Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston, of Washington, formerly of Baltimore, in memory of her husband and her two sons. They are awarded annually by the Trustees on the recommendation of the Academic Council. The stipend of each scholarship is the income of thirty thousand dollars. They are offered primarily to young men who have given evidence of the power of independent research. The holders of the scholarships will be expected to devote themselves to study and research in their chosen subjects, though they may be required to do some teaching. Each one will be designated as the "Holder of the ..... Johnston Scholarship."

Regulations

Candidates for the Johnston Scholarships must make application, in writing, to the President of the University before the first of April. The applications must be accompanied by such evidence of the candidates' fitness as they may be able to present. The President will refer the papers to the Academic Council, by whom the nominations will be made to the Board of Trustees at their meeting in May.

Holders of the scholarships may not engage in teaching elsewhere.

The scholars will be appointed for one year; but, if their work should prove satisfactory, they will generally be reappointed.

FELLOWSHIPS

Fellowships by Courtesy

The Academic Council may, at their discretion, by special vote, enroll as Fellows by Courtesy—

(a) Gentlemen who are, or who have been, teachers in colleges and other like institutions, and who wish, for brief periods, to avail themselves of the opportunities here afforded for study and for the use of books and laboratories.

(b) Holders of fellowships in other colleges, during their residence here.

(c) Those who have been fellows of this university and desire to continue in residence.

Fellows by Courtesy will not be exempt from the payment of fees, except by special vote.

3. They are awarded as honors, and those who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, or who are desirous of studying elsewhere, may do so and still have their names retained on the honor list. Those who receive the emolument will be expected to pursue their studies exclusively in this university.

4. The Board will reserve appointments, if worthy candidates do not offer.

II. Hopkins Scholarships

In the will of the founder of this university, his Trustees are requested to "establish, from time to time, such number of free scholarships in said university as may be judicious, and to distribute the said scholarships among candidates from the States of Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina, as may be most deserving of choice, because of their character and intellectual promise, and to educate the young men so chosen free of charge."

Fifteen Hopkins Scholarships, entitling the holders to free tuition, are now awarded by the Academic Council to graduate students from Virginia, and fifteen to graduate students from North Carolina. Applications, in accordance with a prescribed form, must be filed at the President's office prior to May 1.

Students can be recognized as candidates only when actual residents of the State from which they desire to be appointed, during at least the year next preceding their enrolment in the university. If the appointing board is not sure as to the legal residence of any candidate, the point in question shall be determined by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

These scholarships are all bestowed for merit, and are tenable for the year subsequent to the appointment, the holders being re-eligible.

Successful candidates who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list. The scholarships may be forfeited, because of frequent or prolonged absence, defective scholarship, or unworthy conduct.

Scholarships made vacant by resignation, by forfeiture, or by the non-appearance of worthy candidates at the regular times of selection, may be bestowed by the appointing board, at their discretion, upon other candidates who are found worthy, provided that the principles of this foundation are not departed from.

Holders of scholarships are not exempt from laboratory fees.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR UNDERGRADUATES

I. Hopkins Scholarships

Sixteen Hopkins Scholarships are open to residents of the State of Maryland. They entitle the holder to free tuition, but do not carry exemption from laboratory fees. They are tenable for the year subsequent to the appointment, the holders being re-eligible. Successful candidates who are disposed, for the benefit of others or for any other reason, to waive the pecuniary emolument, may do so, and still have their names retained on the honor list. The scholarships may be forfeited because of frequent or prolonged absence, defective scholarship, or unworthy conduct. Holders of these scholarships are appointed by the Board of Collegiate Studies, in accordance with the following regulations:

1. Four scholarships are open, at the beginning of the session, to those who have just completed their matriculation examinations, and who stand best in a subsequent special examination in Mathematics, Latin, and Greek (or French and German), as required for matriculation.

2. Four are awarded in June to matriculated students whose records in the studies of the first year are most creditable. By "studies of the first year" is meant either the studies laid down for the first year in one of the regular groups, or such other studies, equivalent in amount, as may be approved of by the Committee on Scholarships and Honors.

3. Four are awarded for excellence in the studies of the second year, upon the same terms as in the case of the first year, provided that the candidates shall have absolved the "studies of the first year" as above defined.

4. Four are awarded for excellence in the studies of the third year upon the same terms as in the case of the second year, provided that the candidates shall have absolved the studies of the first and second years.

II. Washington Scholarships

The Trustees offer to residents of the District of Columbia two scholarships yielding free tuition. These, like the Hopkins Scholarships, are awarded to undergraduate students for merit, do not carry exemption from laboratory fees, and are tenable for one year, the holders being eligible for re-appointment.

III. Woodyear Scholarships

Mrs. William E. Woodyear, of Baltimore, gave to the Trustees in 1893, as a memorial of her husband, the sum of ten thousand dollars, in order to provide for the annual bestowal of five scholarships, of one hundred dollars each, under such conditions as the Trustees may from time to time prescribe. At present they are awarded to young men who are known to the President of the University to be in need of pecuniary assistance, and who, at the same time, have given evidence of character and ability.

IV. Maryland Scholarships

Twenty "Maryland Scholarships" are annually offered to residents of this State. They entitle the holders to free tuition, but do not carry exemption from laboratory fees. The scholarships are for the benefit of all parts of the State, and, accordingly, not more than one-half the number are awarded to residents of the city of Baltimore, and not more than one-half to those who are already members of the university. The appointing board consists of the President of the Board of Trustees, the President of the University, and the Dean of the College Faculty. The usual entrance examinations must be passed by the candidate, who must make application in accordance with a prescribed form; this must be accompanied by testimonials certifying to the applicant's character and pecuniary need. Students already in residence must apply before June 1; newly-entering students about October 1.

PRIZES

The John Marshall Prize

This prize was established in 1891 by a lady living in New England. It consists of a bronze replica of a likeness of Chief Justice Marshall, and is awarded annually by the Academic Council to that graduate of the Johns Hopkins University who has made within the year the most valuable contribution to historical or political science.

The Henrico Medallion

This prize is the gift (made in 1902) of the Colonial Dames of America, Chapter I, and consists of a copper medallion bas-relief commemorating the foundation of a university at Henrico, in Virginia, in the year 1619. It is bestowed in alternate years upon a graduate or student of the Johns Hopkins University, not more than ten years after his receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts, as a recognition of special excellence in early American History.

The Tocqueville Medal

The Tocqueville medal is annually given to the Johns Hopkins University by the Baron Pierre de Coubertin, of Paris, and is offered by the university to that student who shall have written the best essay on some subject illustrating any phase of French History, political or social, from 1815 to 1890, or a review of some important historical work published in France since 1890. The medal is given in honor of the illustrious Frenchman, Alexis de Tocqueville (1805-1859), author of the well-known historical and political studies, "Ancien Régime" and Démocratie en Amérique." The conditions of the award may be learned at the office of the university.

The Sylvester Prize

The Sylvester Prize is the gift of several Baltimore gentlemen, and is offered to advanced students of mathematics as a reward for original research. It consists of a medallion likeness of Professor J. J. Sylvester, the first professor of mathematics in this university.

The Severn Teackle Wallis Memorial Prize

The Severn Teackle Wallis Memorial Prize was established in 1905 by the Wallis Memorial Association of Baltimore. It consists of about fifty dollars in money, and is offered to an undergraduate or a graduate student of the university for an essay on some subject connected with Spanish Literature or History, or for some original work done in either of said subjects.

The Adams Prizes and Medal

The Trustees set aside annually the sum of fifty dollars for the purchase of books to be awarded as prizes to the undergraduates who are successful in the annual public debate between members of the two higher classes. These prizes, which were originally offered by the late Professor Herbert B. Adams, are known as the Adams Prizes.

A gold medal known as the Adams Medal is also awarded annually to the best speaker in the public contest participated in by members of the second-year undergraduate class.

TUITION FEES AND EXPENSES

A. In the Philosophical Department

Tuition Fees

The charge for tuition is one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, payable at the Treasurer's office in semi-annual instalments, October 1 and February 1. There is no extra charge for instruction in any department of study, or for the use of the library and reading-room.

Gymnasium Fee

A gymnasium fee of five dollars per annum is charged to every undergraduate during his residence in the university, and the money thus acquired is devoted to defraying the expenses of the University Athletic Association. Graduate students who use the gymnasium are also required to pay this fee.

Fees are charged, as below stated, for registration, for material consumed in the laboratories, and for diplomas.

No deduction is made at the Treasurer's office because of absence for a period of less than half a year, or because a student gives only a part of his time to study, or because he belongs to but one class. Prompt payment of fees is required.

Registration Fee and Caution Money

Every student in full and regular standing is required at entrance to pay a registration fee of five dollars and deposit ten dollars as caution money, the latter being re paid to him when he leaves the university, if there are no charges against him.

Fees for Limited Attendance

Persons engaged in other pursuits—such as clergymen, lawyers, physicians—who are able to give only a portion of their time to study, and who are prepared to follow graduate courses, are permitted to attend certain courses of lectures, not exceeding five weekly, or to work in a scientific laboratory (without attendance on lectures) at such times as may be arranged with the Director thereof, on the payment, at entrance, of fifty dollars for the year, besides the registration fee and caution money. For a course of lectures not exceeding five weekly, with accompanying laboratory work, the fee is seventy-five dollars per annum.

In the College Courses for Teachers, the charge for instruction is ten dollars per year for each hour per week, payable in semi-annual instalments. Three hours of laboratory work are charged as one hour of recitation or lecture.

Laboratory Charges

In Chemistry: For undergraduates and for graduates who take Chemistry as a subordinate subject, twenty-four dollars a year; for graduates and special students following Chemistry as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

In Physics: For students who work two afternoons a week, twenty-four dollars a year; for those who take Physics as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

In Biology: For undergraduates and for graduates who take Zoology, Botany, or Physiology as a subordinate subject, twenty-four dollars a year; for graduates and special students following a biological science as their principal subject, thirty-six dollars a year. For a half-year, one-half of these amounts.

In Geology: Ten dollars a year; for a half-year, one-half of this amount.

Students taking courses in Geology are expected to take part in a series of excursions, and to pay their personal expenses, which will, however, in no case amount to more than $14.00.

In all the laboratories, a charge is made for breakage and for apparatus not returned in good condition.

Fellows by Courtesy and others who have the privileges of guests in the various laboratories, are expected to pay the usual laboratory charges.

Doctors of Philosophy of this university who desire to remain for a time in the university after having received their diplomas, may do so without charge for tuition, but they are required to pay the usual laboratory charges.

Exception to the foregoing charges can be made only at the written request of the Director of a laboratory, approved by the President of the university.

Graduation Fees

The graduation fees are as follows, payable before the delivery of diplomas:

Doctor of Philosophy, ...	$10.00
Master of Arts,*	10.00
Bachelor of Arts, ...	5.00

B. In the Medical Department

The charge for tuition is two hundred dollars per annum, payable in semi-annual instalments, October 1 and February 1. There are no extra charges for matriculation, for graduation, for instruction in any department, or for laboratory courses, except in special cases for materials consumed. To a student who does not possess a microscope, there is an annual charge of five dollars for the use of one, with an additional charge of two dollars for the use of an oil-immersion lens. One dollar is charged for the rental of a dissecting microscope for one year. The student is responsible for damage to the microscope thus rented. A deposit of ten dollars as caution money is required from each student at the time of his enrolment. The caution money is repaid to the student when he leaves, if there are no charges against him. Special charges are made for breakage and for damage to apparatus.

*If a Master of Arts proceeds to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, he will be charged but $5.00 additional for that degree.

Payment of bills may be made at the office of the Registrar in the Physiological Building, which is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., or at the office of the Treasurer of the University, on North Howard Street, which is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4.15 p. m.

The fees required of graduates of medical colleges who desire to follow special courses in medicine, are stated in detail in the annual catalogue of the medical department.

Living Expenses

The university has no dormitories or other living accommodations. Students may find comfortable homes in the vicinity,—in boarding houses or with families. The price of board ranges from three dollars and a half a week upward, and rooms from one dollar and a half a week.

Lists of desirable places are kept by the Secretary of the university branch of the Young Men's Christian Association and by the Registrar of the medical department.
